22 Nazi Planes Shot Down during Raids on England; British Lose Four

Fourteen Killed and 47 Injured in Twilight Attacks Alone; Raids Continue All Night

(By The Associated Press)

Unrelenting air attacks on British cities took a heavy toll of life yesterday as Britain battled for mastery of her skies. The total of dead was not disclosed but fourteen were killed and forty-seven injured in twilight attacks alone, seemingly concentrated on southern England.

The British claimed twenty-two of the raiders shot down, many others damaged and acknowledged the loss of four defense planes.

German U-Boats Active

Germany, meanwhile announced that her World War weapon, the submarine, was achieving new records of deadliness in a starvation blockade of the island kingdom.

U-boats are sinking 100,000 tons of shipping weekly now, said the Germans—a third more than the world war average. Harbors taken from beaten France have helped the under-sea raiders.

In the Mediterranean Italy, neck-deep now in war, admitted heavy losses in the air and naval conflict with Britain's armed might, but simultaneously claimed damaging blows against the enemy—including a bombing attack on the super-dreadnaught H. M. S. Hood. Britain denied this.

France prepared to turn far back its seat and mode of government to historic Versailles, in German-occupied territory, and to the old decentralized, provincial system of political economy.

The voice of aged Marshal Henri Petain told Frenchmen of the contemplated move and explained the nature of the new authoritarians regime under which they must live.

"Capitalism and Socialism are things of the past," he exclaimed. "It is now necessary to fight all internationalisms!"

64 Congressmen Urge Roosevelt To Lead Party

Declare President Should Accept Third Term Nomination

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—A declaration that President Roosevelt "should accept renomination and continue his aggressive leadership," was issued today by sixty-four Democratic members of the House, while the chief executive continued his studied silence.

Rep. Smith (D-Wash) said that in signing the statement the House members "expressed their earnest desire" that Mr. Roosevelt accept a third term nomination from the Democratic National Convention which opens Monday at Chicago. Signatures of members from the midwest predominated on the statement.

Third term talk also came from other quarters. Secretary Ickes expressed to reporters his belief that Mr. Roosevelt would accept renomination—but explained that this was only his own opinion and that it was based on no word from the president.

May Talk Today

The White House still had nothing to say about the third term matter. Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, was asked about reports that Mr. Roosevelt might make a statement tomorrow, but replied that "I don't intend to have anything to say about any statement the president may make until the president does."

Meanwhile, Democrats began an exodus toward Chicago. Congress recessed late today until July 22 to give its majority members a chance to attend the convention.

Before the recess, Senator Wiley (R-Wis) proposed on the Senate floor that the Senate campaign expenditures committee investigate a chain postcard which he said was being circulated in Washington to urge President Roosevelt to run for a third term.

He made the proposal shortly after the committee had decided there was insufficient evidence to justify an investigation of reports that a 'high pressure" telegraphic drive was employed in the successful campaign of Wendell Willkie for the Republican presidential nomination.

ROME, July 11 — Italy, neck deep now in war, listed heavy manpower losses in air and sea today and combined them with claims of damaging bomb hits on the world's mightiest warship, Britain's 42,100-ton battle cruiser Hood, and the 22,000-ton British aircraft carrier Ark Royal (pictured above).

Military headquarters said 151 Italian fliers were lost and 103 wounded in the first twenty days of war against Britain.

Moreover, Italy's air chief, General Francisco Pricolo, disclosed that a great part of the Italian aerial force of 300 planes which fought the British fleet in the Mediterranean early this week had not come home damaged, with wounded aboard, and that three planes had not come home at all.

Farley Says There Will Be Money in Bank at End of Convention

By RICHARD L. TURNER

CHICAGO, July 11 (AP)—With an air of satisfaction, National Chairman James A. Farley said today that "for the first time in history" the Democratic party would have all its bills paid and money in the bank when the coming national convention is over.

The occasion for this announcement was the receipt of a $30,000 check from Chicago business organizations, the last payment on the $150,000 which the local citizens pledged to lure the convention here.

For the rest, Farley would say but little in the course of a press conference devoted to what has now become an old game of trying to worm from him the secret which he has been grinningly guarding since Sunday—whether President Roosevelt will accept the third term nomination which the convention is ready to give him.

Predictions that he would do so continued to accumulate meanwhile as convention notables arrived.

Headquarters for Vice President Garner announced meanwhile that his name would be put before the convention by Wright Morrow, Houston, Tex., lawyer.

Farley said he had chosen the man to make his own nominating speech but would not reveal who it would be.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill) reached the city asserting that Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy had proved "so thoroughly right" that the people would "not take 'no' for an answer" on the renomination question. Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia said he presumed Mr. Roosevelt would be renominated and would accept.

War Department Asks Compulsory Military Training

Gen. Marshal Says Armed Forces Cannot Be Raised Otherwise

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP) — The War department went on record as favoring compulsory military training today, when Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, expressed the view that the armed forces could not be built up to "essential" strength by voluntary enlistments.

Marshall is scheduled to testify tomorrow before a Senate committee on the Burke-Wadsworth training bill, and he indicated in talking to reporters that the War department would endorse it with "minor" amendments.

It was understood that the army chief favored an army of 500,000 men or more. The army now is working toward a goal of 280,000 enlisted men by Aug. 30.

The Burke-Wadsworth bill provides for eight months of compulsory combat training, but Marshall said the War department favored a longer period.

The Senate Military Committee heard the compulsory training measure criticized today as an attempt to "Hitlerize" America, while the House Military Committee was told that it was needed because the country "was facing the greatest menace in all history."

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, contended before the Senate group, that compulsory training would lead "straight to militarism, imperialism, and ultimately to American Fascism and war."

He referred to Senator Burke (D-Neb.), sponsor of the bill which proposes registration of all men between eighteen and sixty-five, as an admirer of Adolf Hitler and said

$100,000,000 in Plane Contracts Signed by Board

National Defense Commission Announces Start of Program

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP) — Working toward a goal of 25,000 new warplanes in the next two years, the national defense commission announced today that $100,000,000 worth of contracts had been awarded since July 1, when funds for the expansion program became available.

Officials said the fact that competitive bidding was not required had assisted them in launching the program swiftly. The army and the navy merely drew up specifications, found manufacturers capable of handling their orders and then let the contracts.

Authorizing a seventy percent increase in the fleet, was passed by the Senate yesterday after an hour's debate and today the House hastened to approve minor Senate changes.

The Senate appropriations committee approved an appropriation of $25,000,000 for further handling their orders and then let the contracts.

First plane deliveries are expected by early fall.

Agree Upon Program

Dr. George J. Mead, aeronautical adviser to the committee, declared at a press conference today that representatives of the army and navy, aircraft manufacturering companies, the national advisory committee for aeronautics and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had met Tuesday and had agreed on a program of air defense cooperation.

The following steps were taken:

1. Army and navy representatives agreed to standardize their specifications and inspection work, hitherto carried on independently.

2. Representatives of the industry agreed to undertake quick expansion of their plants, to place immediate orders for necessary tools and materials and to begin enlisting additional trained workers.

3. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation agreed to make loans immediately available for this expansion.

4. The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics announced that it had begun work on new research facilities at Langley Field, Va., and Sunnyvale, Calif., to improve the airplanes it already has created. This committee is the government's principal organization for research and design of airplanes.

Plan Naval Expansion

Congress, Meanwhile, completed work on the $4,000,000,000 naval expansion bill and sent it to the White House. This measure, authorizing a seventy percent increase in the fleet, was passed by the Senate yesterday after an hour's debate and today the House hastened to approve minor Senate changes.

The Senate appropriations committee approved an appropriation of $25,000,000 for further development of power resources in the Tennessee Valley area. The fund, it was explained, was necessary to speed production of defense materials, particularly alumnium for airplanes.

A House committee approved the fund yesterday, but today Rep. McLean (R-NJ) blocked a plan for the house to consider it immediately by

Petain Is Made French Dictator By Parliament

Declares Capitalism and Socialism Are Things of the Past

By The Associated Press

BERN, Switzerland, July 11 (AP)—Defeated France upset the hourglass tonight and turned back to the old provincial system of a by-gone day, with an authoritarian base and a seat of government in the glittering palace of kings in German-occupied Versailles.

"Capitalism and Socialism are things of the past!" cried Marshal Philippe Henri Petain, 84-year-old head of state by decree, in a radio address from Vichy heard over France and in neighboring countries. "It is now necessary to fight against all internationalisms!"

Then he outlined France's new system, a strange medley of the political past and the political present.

After he had spoken the French radio announced that effective tomorrow Petain would succeed President Albert LeBrun as head of the French state and would become chief of the executive department of the government, a president and prime minister all in one.

Will Have Full Power

Too, he will have full legislative power until a new chamber is formed and in case of serious internal or external crisis he is empowered to legislate without consulting the chamber at all.

This, the marshal said, is what is to supplant the dead French republic:

A government of twelve national ministers, headquartered at Versailles, but some of the ministries to function in Paris, which also is in Nazi hands.

Each of the thirty-odd French provinces — which were important units in royal and imperial France —to have its governor and complete civil staff, and the ninety prefects of departments to be stripped of much of their manpower.

As Petain told the country of his use of the power to re-form France so sweepingly granted by Parliament, he coughed wearily and frequently into the microphone.

Big Bombers Rock Whole Towns and Machine Gun People in Streets; Many Homes Wrecked

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 12 (Friday) — King George of England escaped death or injury by only a few minutes in a German bombing raid at an undisclosed time and place in southern England, it was disclosed today after a day and night of constant Nazi air attacks which took a heavy uncounted number of lives.

Where the king was visiting when the bombers roared over was not disclosed "for reasons of security" but it was indicated that he left the scene of heavy bombing only a matter of minutes before the raiders struck.

Also for "security" reasons the government did not disclose the number of casualties across England, but in after dusk renewal of the pounding of southern England alone fourteen were killed and forty-seven, including two French sailors, were wounded.

Altogether the British claimed twenty-two raiders shot down, thirteen of them bombers, and many more seriously damaged."

Raiders Losses Heavy

The late night communique said one squadron of hurricanes alone bagged eight German planes and indicated that in the final count the raiders' losses might be well above twenty-two.

But uncounted other big bombers and their speedy swarm of escort fighters sliced through, machine-gunning city streets and splintering homes with heavy explosives.

Whole towns shook with the force of the biggest blasts. In one southeast town eight heavy bombs smashed into a residential section.

In the northeast single communities had as many as thirty to forty dwellings wrecked.

But the late day and after-dusk attacks were concentrated largely on the southeast coast — nearest defense line to Nazi captured take-off points for invasion of England.

Harbor Facilities Bombed

The listing of two French sailors among the wounded was taken as a possible indication that harbor facilities or shipping in British ports bore part of the brunt of the attack.

A British announcement said the day raids could be split into two main actions, both fought over different parts of the south coast. The first lasted three hours, "before lunch," in which time twelve German planes were brought down. The second, in the afternoon, scattered into a succession of dogfights. One patrol of hurricanes smashed into a German fighter escort flight and downed one light plane and three guarded bombers.

The British asknowledged the loss of four planes.

Germany Sinking Vast Amount of British Shipping

More Tonnage Down Than During U-Boat Campaign in World War

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 11—Germany proclaimed tonight that her U-boats, bent on a starvation blockade of England, had exceeded even the rate of imperial Germany's unrestricted underseas campaign of the World War in destruction of British ships and British food.

In the six-weeks period ended July 8, said a communique, 609,000 tons of "enemy commercial shipping" was sent to the bottom by submarine alone, and this quickened tempo was attributed to the "favorable bases" which Germany acquired on the English channel and Atlantic coasts knocking out France.

The claimed rate of destruction thus more than 100,000 tons a week, against a weekly average of less than 65,000 tons lost by the United Kingdom by action of every kind during the twenty-one month period of unrestricted U-boat warefare loosed by Germany in February, 1917.

Merchantmen sunk by the air force were not included in the high command's figures, although bombers have been busy for weeks, especially against convoys. Only today it was announced that German fliers had raided harbor facilities, airports and armament factories in the south and southwest English coasts.

Summarizing naval activity against British commerce since the beginning of the war, the authoritative commentary service Dienst Aus Deutschland asserted 3,000,000 tons of neutral and "enemy" vessels had been destroyed. The loss, it added, was reflected by "the appearance of numerous shortages" in England.

Landon Declares Willkie Has Won Liking of People

Republican Leader Writes To Presidential Candidate

BY WILLIAM B. ARDERY

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., July 11 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, received a letter today from Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential candidate, saying that he had "caught the imagination" of the people.

Landon's letter, which carried a "Dear Wendell" greeting, came to Willkie, vacationing in Colorado's mountain area, while the nominee was making plans to talk next week with Republican leaders.

The guest list was expected to include Landon, former president Herbert Hoover, Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who managed Willkie's Philadelphia campaign, and Representative Joe Martin (R-Mass), new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

In his letter, Landon said that he had talked with a traveling salesman "on whom I have depended a great deal for the last twelve years for reports on public sentiment in this section."

Favorite in Missouri

"He has just told me," the letter continued, "that out of 118 interviews in the Democratic section of Missouri, eighty-two percent were favorable to you x x x."

"There is no doubt that you have caught the imagination of the American people."

Willkie spent today resting. He told reporters that he was "trying deliberately to be lazy," and that "I feel a lot better already" as a result of his take-it-easy program.

Claim Election Of Gen. Camacho

MEXICO CITY, July 11 (AP) — Supporters of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, declared tonight he had swept into the presidency by a five to one majority in the counting of Sunday's election ballots.

Gen. Juan Almazan, however, issued a statement that he himself would take the oath of office as Mexico's next president December 1 when President Lazaro Cardenas leaves th post.

Almazan's supporters boycotted the official counting centers and set up their own tallying headquarters since they voted in their own election booths Sunday after charging Camacho's election officials barred them from the polls.

The anti-government candidate declared more than 150 Almazanistas had been elected "absolutely legally" to the Congress which has a normal membership of 172, and asserted his men would assume their seats in this capital next September.

Hull Accuses Germany of Attempt To Intimidate the Latin Americas

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull, accusing Germany of an apparent attempt to intimidate Latin American countries, indicated plainly today that non-American powers should keep hands off the forthcoming pan-American conference at Havana.

The conference was called with the view of soldifying a United front of the twenty-one American republics for defense and economic cooperation in view of developments in Europe.

At a press conference, a reporter asked Hull about dispatches reporting that German diplomats had "warned" some of the southern republics against taking any action at Havana aimed directly or indirectly against Germany.

Charges Unfair Attitude

Hull said he had heard something of this nature. This, he asserted with emphasis, apparently was a species of intimidation of nations whose sovereignty and freedom of action and integrity were entitled to the fullest respect by every other country. There was no theory, he added, upon which any country should attack this sovereignty and freedom of action.

The Havana conference, he asserted, was to be an inter-American affair held by agreement of the American nations to consider matters relating solely to these twenty-one republics.

In other quarters, it was learned that the United States was refusing to take any non-American countries, including Great Britain, into its confidence on matters to come before the Havana conference, which opens on July 20.

Has Ticket for Havana

Secretary Hull himself plans to head the United States delegation which will leave Washington next Thursday. Asked about the possibility that he might go first to the

Rumanian Navy Holding 50 British Oil Tankers

BUCHAREST, July 11 (AP)—The pro-Nazi Rumanian navy threw its weight into the oil scales against Great Britain today.

Gunboats of King Carol's fleet mounted guard over fifty British tankers lying idle in Rumanian ports, to prevent them from sailing.

It was another move in the series of recent actions designed to forestall any British attempt to keep British-owned oil and other British property from falling into the hands of Hitler.

Last week numerous British oil men were ordered to leave Rumania, apparently as a precaution against possible attempt to wreck the British-owned wells. Later a decree was issued forbidding the unauthorized sale in foreign countries of shares in Rumanian enterprises, thus blocking a reported British plan to keep British wells out of Hitler's hands by transferring title to Moscow.

Now, apparently, it is going to be impossible for the British to withdraw even their tankers from the German-dominated Danube area.

Rumania's own worries over Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial demands meanwhile subsided, temporarily at least, as the result of Hitler's "keep-your-shirts-on"advice to impatient Budapest and Sofia.

Hatch Bill Passes and Goes to the President

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The Hatch bill, curbing political activity by an army of state and local government employes, was finally passed by Congress today.

The measure was sent to the White House after the Senate agreed to changes the House approved yesterday.

The legislation is a companion piece to the original Hatch act, applying to federal employes. The new measure applies to officials and employes working on programs financed in whole or in part by the federal government.

These employes would be forbidden to use their position to influence the result of elections, to coerce other employes or to engage actively in political campaigns. Various elective officials would be exempt from the last restriction.

In addition, the bill would limit individual campaign contributions to $5,000 in any one year and would restrict the expenditures of any political committee to $3,000,000 a year.

The revised measure — effective when signed by the president—was given Senate approval after a brief discussion in which Senator Hatch (D-NM) the author, replied to questions concerning House changes.

ESCAPES BOMBERS

King George VI

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 12 (Friday) — King George of England escaped death or injury by only a few minutes in a German bombing raid at an undisclosed time and place in southern England, it was disclosed today after a day and night of constant Nazi air attacks which took a heavy uncounted number of lives.

Where the king was visiting when the bombers roared over was not disclosed "for reasons of security" but it was indicated that he left the scene of heavy bombing only a matter of minutes before the raiders struck.

Also for "security" reasons the government did not disclose the number of casualties across England, but in after dusk renewal of the pounding of southern England alone fourteen were killed and forty-seven, including two French sailors, were wounded.

Altogether the British claimed twenty-two raiders shot down, thirteen of them bombers, and many more seriously damaged."

Raiders Losses Heavy

The late night communique said one squadron of hurricanes alone bagged eight German planes and indicated that in the final count the raiders' losses might be well above twenty-two.

But uncounted other big bombers and their speedy swarm of escort fighters sliced through, machine-gunning city streets and splintering homes with heavy explosives.

Whole towns shook with the force of the biggest blasts. In one southeast town eight heavy bombs smashed into a residential section.

In the northeast single communities had as many as thirty to forty dwellings wrecked.

But the late day and after-dusk attacks were concentrated largely on the southeast coast — nearest defense line to Nazi captured takeoff points for invasion of England.

Harbor Facilities Bombed

The listing of two French sailors among the wounded was taken as a possible indication that harbor facilities or shipping in British ports bore part of the brunt of the attack.

A British announcement said the day raids could be split into two main actions, both fought over different parts of the south coast. The first lasted three hours, "before lunch," in which time twelve German planes were brought down. The second, in the afternoon, scattered into a succession of dogfights. One patrol of hurricanes smashed into a German fighter escort flight and downed one light plane and three guarded bombers.

The British asknowledged the loss of four planes.

Germany Sinking Vast Amount of British Shipping

More Tonnage Down Than During U-Boat Campaign in World War

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 11—Germany proclaimed tonight that her U-boats, bent on a starvation blockade of England, had exceeded even the rate of imperial Germany's unrestricted underseas campaign of the World War in destruction of British ships and British food.

In the six-weeks period ended July 8, said a communique, 609,000 tons of "enemy commercial shipping" was sent to the bottom by submarine alone, and this quickened tempo was attributed to the "favorable bases" which Germany acquired on the English channel and Atlantic coasts knocking out France.

The claimed rate of destruction thus more than 100,000 tons a week, against a weekly average of less than 65,000 tons lost by the United Kingdom by action of every kind during the twenty-one month period of unrestricted U-boat warefare loosed by Germany in February, 1917.

Merchantmen sunk by the air force were not included in the high command's figures, although bombers have been busy for weeks, especially against convoys. Only today it was announced that German fliers had raided harbor facilities, airports and armament factories in the south and southwest English coasts.

Summarizing naval activity against British commerce since the beginning of the war, the authoritative commentary service Dienst Aus Deutschland asserted 3,000,000 tons of neutral and "enemy" vessels had been destroyed. The loss, it added, was reflected by "the appearance of numerous shortages" in England.

Claim Election Of Gen. Camacho

MEXICO CITY, July 11 (AP) — Supporters of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, declared tonight he had swept into the presidency by a five to one majority in the counting of Sunday's election ballots.

Gen. Juan Almazan, however, issued a statement that he himself would take the oath of office as Mexico's next president December 1 when President Lazaro Cardenas leaves th post.

Almazan's supporters boycotted the official counting centers and set up their own tallying headquarters since they voted in their own election booths Sunday after charging Camacho's election officials barred them from the polls.

The anti-government candidate declared more than 150 Almazanistas had been elected "absolutely legally" to the Congress which has a normal membership of 172, and asserted his men would assume their seats in this capital next September.

Landon Declares Willkie Has Won Liking of People

BY WILLIAM B. ARDERY

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., July 11 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee, received a letter today from Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential candidate, saying that he had "caught the imagination" of the people.

Landon's letter, which carried a "Dear Wendell" greeting, came to Willkie, vacationing in Colorado's mountain area, while the nominee was making plans to talk next week with Republican leaders.

The guest list was expected to include Landon, former president Herbert Hoover, Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who managed Willkie's Philadelphia campaign, and Representative Joe Martin (R-Mass), new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

In his letter, Landon said that he had talked with a traveling salesman "on whom I have depended a great deal for the last twelve years for reports on public sentiment in this section."

Favorite in Missouri

"He has just told me," the letter continued, "that out of 118 interviews in the Democratic section of Missouri, eighty-two percent were favorable to you x x x.

"There is no doubt that you have caught the imagination of the American people."

Willkie spent today resting. He told reporters that he was "trying deliberately to be lazy," and that "I feel a lot better already" as a result of his take-it-easy program.

Rumanian Navy Holding 50 British Oil Tankers

BUCHAREST, July 11 (AP)—The pro-Nazi Rumanian navy threw its weight into the oil scales against Great Britain today.

Gunboats of King Carol's fleet mounted guard over fifty British tankers lying idle in Rumanian ports, to prevent them from sailing.

It was another move in the series of recent actions designed to forestall any British attempt to keep British-owned oil and other British property from falling into the hands of Hitler.

Last week numerous British oil men were ordered to leave Rumania, apparently as a precaution against possible attempt to wreck the British-owned wells. Later a decree was issued forbidding the unauthorized sale in foreign countries of shares in Rumanian enterprises, thus blocking a reported British plan to keep British wells out of Hitler's hands by transferring title to Moscow.

Now, apparently, it is going to be impossible for the British to withdraw even their tankers from the German-dominated Danube area.

Rumania's own worries over Hungarian and Bulgarian territorial demands meanwhile subsided, temporarily at least, as the result of Hitler's "keep-your-shirts-on"advice to impatient Budapest and Sofia.

Hull Accuses Germany of Attempt To Intimidate the Latin Americas

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull, accusing Germany of an apparent attempt to intimidate Latin American countries, indicated plainly today that non-American powers should keep hands off the forthcoming pan-American conference at Havana.

The conference was called with the view of soldifying a United front of the twenty-one American republics for defense and economic cooperation in view of developments in Europe.

At a press conference, a reporter asked Hull about dispatches reporting that German diplomats had "warned" some of the southern republics against taking any action at Havana aimed directly or indirectly against Germany.

Charges Unfair Attitude

Hull said he had heard something of this nature. This, he asserted with emphasis, apparently was a species of intimidation of nations whose sovereignty and freedom of action and integrity were entitled to the fullest respect by every other country. There was no theory, he added, upon which any country should attack this sovereignty and freedom of action.

The Havana conference, he asserted, was to be an inter-American affair held by agreement of the American nations to consider matters relating solely to these twenty-one republics.

In other quarters, it was learned that the United States was refusing to take any non-American countries, including Great Britain, into its confidence on matters to come before the Havana conference, which opens on July 20.

Has Ticket for Havana

Secretary Hull himself plans to head the United States delegation which will leave Washington next Thursday. Asked about the possibility that he might go first to the

Hatch Bill Passes and Goes to the President

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The Hatch bill, curbing political activity by an army of state and local government employes, was finally passed by Congress today.

The measure was sent to the White House after the Senate agreed to changes the House approved yesterday.

The legislation is a companion piece to the original Hatch act, applying to federal employes. The new measure applies to officials and employes working on programs financed in whole or in part by the federal government.

These employes would be forbidden to use their position to influence the result of elections, to coerce other employes or to engage actively in political campaigns. Various elective officials would be exempt from the last restriction.

In addition, the bill would limit individual campaign contributions to $5,000 in any one year and would restrict the expenditures of any political committee to $3,000,000 a year.

The revised measure — effective when signed by the president—was given Senate approval after a brief discussion in which Senator Hatch (D-NM) the author, replied to questions concerning House changes.

Big American Bomber Crashes; Pilot Is Killed

Lieut. N. R. Dick Dies When Parachute Fails To Open

SOMERSET, Pa., July 11 (AP)—A big army bomber, crippled by motor trouble, crashed in flames atop Laurel mountain in the Alleghenies "graveyard of aviators" late today after the pilot, Lieut. N. R. Dick of Wright Field, Dayton, O., leaped to his death.

The ship identified by the army as a twin-motored B-10 model enroute from Mitchel Field, New York, to Wright Field, Dayton, was enveloped in flames for more than two hours after it skimmed tree tops and plowed into a small clearing.

Ripcord not Pulled

Dr. J. V. O'Donovan, Connellsville, Pa., dentist, who was the first to reach the body of the dead pilot, said the ripcord of the flier's parachute "had not been touched." Although a flight book listed another man and witnesses of the crash reported they believed three persons were in the ship, a search of the ruins disclosed no traces of others.

A scrap of note paper fluttered from the officer's pocket said "Lt. Dick you are OD (officer of the day) tomorrow instead of Thursday" indicating Dick would not have been on flight duty if original plans had been carried out.

Clark Johnson, Donora, Pa., newspaper publisher en route to New York by automobile, saw the plane circling above the park, heard the crash and reached the scene a few minutes later. Piecing together the stories of other witnesses, he gave the description of the mishap:

"The plane's port (left) motor went dead and the other seemed to be sputtering. The pilot began to circle Laurel Park in search of a clearing in the brush and trees.

Body Badly Mangled

"Gradually, it sank lower—to about 500 feet. About that time, a man jumped but his 'chute failed to open. He struck the ground and bounced a couple of times. The body was badly mangled.

"The ship seemed to be still under control for it headed straight for a small opening in the park, keeping just above the tree tops. As it reached the opening it nosed down, plowing into the ground for fifty or sixty feet, throwing dirt ahead of it. Then it exploded into a mass of flames.

"The front wheels, motors, cabin and most of the wings were torn off as the plane skidded along. The tail and rear wheel were still undamaged."

Former Mrs. Astor Again an American

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Lady Ribblesdale, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, long a leader of London society, renounced her British title today and was repatriated as an American citizen.

She became plain "Mrs. Ava Ribblesdale" after swearing allegiance to this country and taking a special oath by which she cast away the title of nobility in a Federal court ceremony bestowing citizenship on 250 other aliens.

Mrs. Ribblesdale arrived from Europe as a war refugee several weeks ago. The former wife of John Jacob Astor, who perished in the Titanic disaster in 1912, she married the late Lord Ribblesdale in London in 1919. She is the mother of Vincent Astor of New York city.

Her speedy repatriation was made possible under a Congressional act of 1936 relating to citizenship of former American citizens.

Four Found Dead in Murder-Suicide Tragedy

MT. CARROLL, Ill., July 11 (AP) — A man and wife and their two children died here today in what police described as a murder-suicide tragedy.

The victims were: Mrs. Glenn Sack, Sr., 35, Glenn Sack, Sr., 35, Beatrice, 12, and Glenn, Jr., 14.

Police said a relative of the Sacks found all dead in the family car parked in a garage in the rear of their home.

According to the story police pieced together from the evidence, the elder Sack shot to death his wife and two children and then turned the gun on himself. A pistol was found in his hand.

All were shot through the head.

Hull Accuses

Democratic convention in Chicago, Hull wryly replied that he had a ticket to Havana.

Indication that consideration was being given here to some form of mandate or protectorate over certain European possessions in this hemisphere came from Hull when his attention was called to a statement yesterday by Foreign Minister Aranha of Brazil.

Hull said he always had respect for the views of Aranha, who formerly was Brazilian ambassador to the United States.

Aranha said Brazil would favor a proposal at Havana for some form of mandate or protectorate which would prevent these possessions from falling into German or Italian hands. He suggested further that countries neighboring on these possessions be delegated some supervisory or administrative control over them, citing as an example some such control by Brazil over French, British and Netherlands Guiana.

Dr. A. N. Johnson, Road Expert, Dies

BALTIMORE, July 11 (AP)—The "father" of Maryland's hard-surfaced roads system died today.

He was Dr. A. N. Johnson, Dean Emeritus of the College of Engineering of the University of Maryland and internationally-known authority on highway construction. Dr. Johnson, who was 69, had been in poor health for some time.

He was made Maryland state highway engineer in 1898 and later laid down the first hard-surfaced test road—preliminary to a $5,000,000 roads program voted by the legislature.

He left Maryland in 1905 to become chief engineer of the U. S. bureau of public roads and the following year became state highway engineer of Illinois.

In 1914, he became highway engineer of the New York bureau of Municipal Research.

Dr. Johnson became dean of the University's College of Engineering in 1920 and held the post until his retirement in 1936.

Funeral services will be held here Saturday. The Rev. George Parsons of College Park will officiate.

New War Jacket May Save Many Lives

NEW YORK, July 11. (AP)—A fifteen-pound jacket that looks like an elaborate baseball chest protector is the 1940 suit of armor that may prevent untold casualties in war.

It was devised by Gerald Laughlin, general manager of the U. S. Armour Corporation here, and word came from London today that the British army is considering adoption of it.

Far advanced beyond the bullet-proof vest, it protects the back and sides as well as the front. In tests it has stopped bullets from a Thompson sub-machine gun, and from a German Mauser pistol at a distance of twenty-five yards.

The front is composed of three solid thin layers of secret-formula steel separated by two narrow strips of thin rubber, bolted together, and the whole covered with khaki canvas; the back is of similar construction, only with two layers of steel, and jointed. It can be produced in quantity for $35.

The steel, 25, 1000 of an inch thick, looks like ordinary roofing tin, but will stop a .45 caliber bullet at close range. Laminated with rubber, its strength is increased many times.

New York Capitol Closed after Threat

ALBANY, N. Y., July 11 (AP)—An anonymous threat to bomb New York's capitol closed the massive building to all but accredited persons tonight.

State police and Albany city detectives guarded all entrances.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman said the bombing threat was made by postcard received in the Albany postoffice.

"State police think it is the work of a child and I agree there is probably nothing in it, but we naturally are taking all necessary precautions," he added.

Campaign managers for Vice President Garner said at Chicago his name would be placed in nomination by Wright Morrow of Houston, Tex., an old friend. Postmaster General Farley has evidenced no intention of withdrawing his name from at least first ballot voting.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

In the darkest hours for Britain during the World War, the expression "cheerio" became a national slogan of unshaken morale, just as the "thumbs up" gesture of British tommies amid today's even darker portents is an ironic defiance of Nazi and Fascists salutes.

British war leadership of this day, however, is at obvious pains to dispel any thought in British minds that delay in the full development of the German attack on England lessens the certainty that it will come. Cabinet spokesmen, from Prime Minister Churchill down, insistently reiterate, in effect, that paradoxical Americanism, "cheer up, the worst is yet to come."

The warning by the undersecretary for war, Sir Edward Grigg, that an attack might come in "several places at dawn" falls into that class. Presumably he meant any dawn, not a particular dawn.

Keeps Britons on Alert

His remark was obviously intended to keep public attention centered on the fear of invasion that haunts British pillows for the first time in many generations. That fear has a definite asset value for the beleaguered nation because it keeps Britons on the constant alert.

Yet there are many circumstances still suggesting that a German attempt to invade England would be the ultimate victory move of Nazi strategy, not the first stroke. It also seems highly probable that when and if invasion is tried, Dover Strait, the narrowest stretch of the English channel, must be the main point of assault. There alone are there obvious possibilities of a Nazi bridge-head being established which would permit the swift ferrying to England of the mas forces and heavy mechanized equipment that successful invasion would require.

Surprise Attack Unlikely

If that is true, it does not appear possible that the water transport necessary for such a movement could be assembled anywhere along the German-held coasts of France, Belgium, Holland or Norway without detection by British air scouts or submarines. Perilous as England's situation is, it does not follow that the Germans can achieve invasion by surprise.

Actually, the intesifying German air and submarine campaign against British shipping and the danger of a Nazi effort to seize Ireland and thus encircle England by a starvation blockade are probably of much more immediate concern to British leadership than invasion prospects. The new triple-purpose British mine barrage from the Orkneys to the coast of Greenland is evidence of that.

It represents an effort to prevent German forces from Norway from reaching the Emerald Isle. At the same time it is designed to reduce the number of British naval and air units required for effective patrol in so wide a stretch of sea.

Danger from Starvation

The Dover Strait air battle looks more like an indication of intensifying Nazi siege warfare against England than a possible prelude to invasion. It is linked with German claims that 609,000 tons of British Merchant shipping were sent down within the last six weeks by Nazi submarines alone.

If those claims are well founded, England still has more to fear from starvation than from immediate invasion porabilities, for all the official warnings that may be uttered in London to keep the nation on a fighting edge.

Doubt Bombs Were Set in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, July -- (AP) — Police of the nation's first and third cities disagreed today over a report that bombs had been planted close to Philadelphia's $5,000,000 convention hall while the Republican party was meeting there two weeks ago.

Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine said "several" bombs were found during the convention in the Pennsylvania metropolis. Another New York police source reported seven or eight bombs were discovered, including two powerful dynamite bombs placed near convention hall.

Mayor Roberth E. Lamberton and op-ranking Philadelphia police officials insisted, however, that no bombs had been found in the auditorium area.

"The government already has passed through difficult hours.

"It has suffered a new trial—this time from England, which has ungratefully attacked the French fleet demobilized in its harbors after unjustly accusing us of being willing to let it pass into the hands of Italy and Germany.

"Attacked today by England, France is forced to make new sacrifices.

"I need your confidence."

While these important decisions were being taken, some former French leaders, including ex-Premier Edouard Daladier, were believed to be still in North Africa.

They had been prevented from returning to France, Vice Premier Pierre Laval told the assembly yesterday, by the refusal of the German-French armistice committee at Wiesbaden to furnish them transportation.

Poor School System Blamed for Defeat Of France in War

COLLEGE PARK, MD., July 11 (AP)—Dr. Harold Benjamin today blamed France's predicament on her lack of a Democratic educational system.

Speaking before the Maryland Congress on parents and teachers, the dean of the College of Education here said France had an educational system that failed to "make the country work politically."

France, he declared, had a Democratic form of government for 150 years but never had a Democratic school system. He asserted that France had one school for aristocrats and another for non-aristocrats.

Dr. Benjamin told the women "we need to give youth an education for work. More time is wasted trying to teach students where to put commas than I can think of."

He said traditional subjects "are fine but we waste a lot of time teaching them. If a connection between industry and education is necessary to prepare youth for work, then fine, let's have that connection."

Every school, the speaker continued, needs a parent - teacher group. He aded that P.—T. organizations were successful in improving elementary schools but not so successful with secondary schools because the latter were rooted to the "old, traditional curricula."

O'Conor Upheld on State Surplus Claim

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 11 (AP)—Governor O'Conor announced today that auditors of national reputation had reviewed Maryland's financial statement and declared that the $4,467,725 left over last September 30 could be "styled a general fund surplus".

Controversy over whether Maryland had a true surplus at the close of its fiscal year started several weeks ago. Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, whom O'Conor had defeated in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, and other city officials challenged the state's report.

The governor, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, his assistant, Joseph OC, McCusker, and State Auditor Daniel L. Clayland all upheld the statement showing a general fund surplus.

O'Conor said:

"Arrangements were made to have auditors of national reputation review the accounts of the state xxx. These certified public accountants pursued their analysis along lines formulated by the national committee on municipal accounting of Chicago, which has developed and prepared the plans for the standardization of state accounting.

"xxx The following conclusion was announced by the certified public accountants:

" 'It will, therefore, be seen that in conformity with what appears to be accepted accounting practice, at least the amount of $4,467,725 shown on the balance sheet x x x can properly be styled "general fund surplus" ' ".

The Italians said the Hood was bombed and set afire and the Ark Royal struck twice with bombs south of the Baleares islands Tuesday. This was about the time that other Italian and British naval units were fighting a hot, six-hour battle in the Ionian sea.

The new and belated Italian communique announcing successful action against the Hood and Ark Royal revised the score of the developing battle of the Mediterranean as it is put forward here:

Italian successes claimed: Damage to the Hood and Ark Royal; a sinking "believed" to have occurred, "probably a battleship;" the sinking of a destroyer and bomb damage to an unspecified number of other warships, classifications not given.

Italian losses acknowledged: The 1,073-ton destroyer Zeffiro; a submarine; three planes and a British hit on a warship that killed twenty-nine and injured sixty-nine.

British May Not Send Children Away

LONDON, July 11(AP)—The British government was reported tonight to have postponed its scheme for moving British chilidren to the dominions.

A well-informed source said the decision would be announced in the House of Commons next week and added that even though the scheme eventually is put in operation it would be "much modified."

Reports had been current since yesterday that England's children might have to stay at home and face it out after all because of a shortage of ships to convoy them.

There have been some suggestions in Commons that the United States furnish both ships and convoys.

Sky Is the Limit For Buying Planes in U. S., Beaverbrook Says

LONDON, July 11 (AP) — Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, told the House of Lords tonight that "the sky is the limit" for British aircraft purchases in America.

"Our program is perfectly simple," he said. "It is to buy everything we can possibly get."

There is no "shortage" of planes, Beaverbrook said, but "we will need more airplanes every day and must go on developing that program (of American purchases) as fully as possible."

Counting French purchases, Beaverbrook disclosed, allied plane buying has amounted to more than $600,000,000.

Britain is planning on a long-range basis both in machines and personnel.

An abundant flow of trained pilots from across the seas, particularly from Canada is expected in a few months. Australia and New Zealand also are training large numbers of men for overseas, and elementary flying instruction is being given in several colonies.

South Africa has been concentrating on production of airmen for its own section of the world but it is possible that she, too, shortly will start training aviators for overseas duty.

Asks Annulment of Marriage when Mate Of Years Ago Appears

DENVER, July 11 (AP) — A woman whose first husband made an "Enoch Arden" re-appearance after a twenty-two year absence, asked today for annulment of her marriage to a second husband at Osceola, Iowa, in 1930.

Mrs. Maybelle Bennett told County Judge C. F. Kettering that Harry Washburn, whom she married at Medina, Ohio, July 13, 1907, and who disappeared in 1918, came to her Denver home two months ago to see their three children.

She said she and Arthur Bennett were married at Osceola Jan. 12, 1930, twelve years after Washburn had vanished and after Washburn's brother told her that her husband was believed dead.

Judge Ketering said Bennett would make no objection to the annulment, but had expressed a desire that a property settlement be made for possessions obtained through the joint efforts of Bennett and the woman who has been his wife for ten years.

WASHINGTON, July 11, (AP). The justice department announced tonight that it would file in Philadelphia federal district court tomorrow a civil action against the Pullman companies and thirty-one individuals, including outstanding financial leaders, in an effort to divorce control of sleeping car manufacture from operation of the equipment.

Among those whom the department said would be named are J. Pierpont Morgan, Richard K. Mellon, Sewell Avery, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Harold S. Vanderbilt, George Whitney, C. W. Seabury, H. S. Morgan, all directors of one or more of the companies.

The complaint will charge, the department said in a statement, that the Pullman companies "have refused to operate modern lightweight railroad equipment purchased by the railroads from any manufacturer other than the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Company, and have threatened to withdraw the existing sleeping car service and opertions if railroads should buy and operate themselves any cars made by other manufacturers."

The statement said further that the complaint would allege that the Pullman organization through its operating monopoly "charges the public artificial and unreasonably high prices for Pullman accommodations, and exacts non-competitive and onerous terms from railroads for the sleeping-car service which it provides."

Big American Bomber Crashes; Pilot Is Killed

Lieut. N. R. Dick Dies When Parachute Fails To Open

SOMERSET, Pa., July 11 (AP)—A big army bomber, crippled by motor trouble, crashed in flames atop Laurel mountain in the Alleghenies "graveyard of aviators" late today after the pilot, Lieut. N. R. Dick of Wright Field, Dayton, O., leaped to his death.

The ship identified by the army as a twin-motored B-10 model enroute from Mitchel Field, New York, to Wright Field, Dayton, was enveloped in flames for more than two hours after it skimmed tree tops and plowed into a small clearing.

Ripcord not Pulled

Dr. J. V. O'Donovan, Connellsville, Pa., dentist, who was the first to reach the body of the dead pilot, said the ripcord of the flier's parachute "had not been touched." Although a flight book listed another man and witnesses of the crash reported they believed three persons were in the ship, a search of the ruins disclosed no traces of others.

A scrap of note paper fluttered from the officer's pocket said "Lt. Dick you are OD (officer of the day) tomorrow instead of Thursday" indicating Dick would not have been on flight duty if original plans had been carried out.

Clark Johnson, Donora, Pa., newspaper publisher en route to New York by automobile, saw the plane circling above the park, heard the crash and reached the scene a few minutes later. Piecing together the stories of other witnesses, he gave the description of the mishap:

"The plane's port (left) motor went dead and the other seemed to be sputtering. The pilot began to circle Laurel Park in search of a clearing in the brush and trees.

Body Badly Mangled

"Gradually, it sank lower—to about 500 feet. About that time, a man jumped but his 'chute failed to open. He struck the ground and bounced a couple of times. The body was badly mangled.

"The ship seemed to be still under control for it headed straight for a small opening in the park, keeping just above the tree tops. As it reached the opening it nosed down, plowing into the ground for fifty or sixty feet, throwing dirt ahead of it. Then it exploded into a mass of flames.

"The front wheels, motors, cabin and most of the wings were torn off as the plane skidded along. The tail and rear wheel were still undamaged."

Former Mrs. Astor Again an American

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—Lady Ribblesdale, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, long a leader of London society, renounced her British title today and was repatriated as an American citizen.

She became plain "Mrs. Ava Ribblesdale" after swearing allegiance to this country and taking a special oath by which she cast away the title of nobility in a Federal court ceremony bestowing citizenship on 250 other aliens.

Mrs. Ribblesdale arrived from Europe as a war refugee several weeks ago. The former wife of John Jacob Astor, who perished in the Titanic disaster in 1912, she married the late Lord Ribblesdale in London in 1919. She is the mother of Vincent Astor of New York city.

Her speedy repatriation was made possible under a Congressional act of 1936 relating to citizenship of former American citizens.

Four Found Dead in Murder-Suicide Tragedy

MT. CARROLL, Ill., July 11 (AP) — A man and wife and their two children died here today in what police described as a murder-suicide tragedy.

The victims were: Mrs. Glenn Sack, Sr., 35, Glenn Sack, Sr., 35, Beatrice, 12, and Glenn, Jr., 14.

Police said a relative of the Sacks found all dead in the family car parked in a garage in the rear of their home.

According to the story police pieced together from the evidence, the elder Sack shot to death his wife and two children and then turned the gun on himself. A pistol was found in his hand.

All were shot through the head.

Democratic convention in Chicago, Hull wryly replied that he had a ticket to Havana.

Indication that consideration was being given here to some form of mandate or protectorate over certain European possessions in this hemisphere came from Hull when his attention was called to a statement yesterday by Foreign Minister Aranha of Brazil.

Hull said he always had respect for the views of Aranha, who formerly was Brazilian ambassador to the United States.

Aranha said Brazil would favor a proposal at Havana for some form of mandate or protectorate which would prevent these possessions from falling into German or Italian hands. He suggested further that countries neighboring on these possessions be delegated some supervisory or administrative control over them, citing as an example some such control by Brazil over French, British and Netherlands Guiana.

WAR REFUGEES INSPECT AMERICAN HAVEN

Young British war refugees are taken on an inspection tour about their sanctuary, Hempstead House, the Sands Point, L. I., home of Mrs. Harry Guggenheim. The 50-room house with its 100-acre grounds will serve as a reception home where refugee children can await preparation of foster homes for duration of the war. Guiding the children above are their hostess and Marshall Field, chairman of the U. S. Committee for the Care of European Children.

Dr. A. N. Johnson, Road Expert, Dies

BALTIMORE, July 11 (AP)—The "father" of Maryland's hard-surfaced roads system died today.

He was Dr. A. N. Johnson, Dean Emeritus of the College of Engineering of the University of Maryland and internationally-known authority on highway construction. Dr. Johnson, who was 69, had been in poor health for some time.

He was made Maryland state highway engineer in 1898 and later laid down the first hard-surfaced test road—preliminary to a $5,000,000 roads program voted by the legislature.

He left Maryland in 1905 to become chief engineer of the U. S. bureau of public roads and the following year became state highway engineer of Illinois.

In 1914, he became highway engineer of the New York bureau of Municipal Research.

Dr. Johnson became dean of the University's College of Engineering in 1920 and held the post until his retirement in 1936.

Funeral services will be held here Saturday. The Rev. George Parsons of College Park will officiate.

New War Jacket May Save Many Lives

NEW YORK, July 11. (AP)—A fifteen-pound jacket that looks like an elaborate baseball chest protector is the 1940 suit of armor that may prevent untold casualties in war.

It was devised by Gerald Laughlin, general manager of the U. S. Armour Corporation here, and word came from London today that the British army is considering adoption of it.

Far advanced beyond the bullet-proof vest, it protects the back and sides as well as the front. In tests it has stopped bullets from a Thompson sub-machine gun, and from a German Mauser pistol at a distance of twenty-five yards.

The front is composed of three solid thin layers of secret-formula steel separated by two narrow strips of thin rubber, bolted together, and the whole covered with khaki canvas; the back is of similar construction, only with two layers of steel, and jointed. It can be produced in quantity for $35.

The steel, 25, 1000 of an inch thick, looks like ordinary roofing tin, but will stop a .45 caliber bullet at close range. Laminated with rubber, its strength is increased many times.

New York Capitol Closed after Threat

ALBANY, N. Y., July 11 (AP)—An anonymous threat to bomb New York's capitol closed the massive building to all but accredited persons tonight.

State police and Albany city detectives guarded all entrances.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman said the bombing threat was made by postcard received in the Albany postoffice.

"State police think it is the work of a child and I agree there is probably nothing in it, but we naturally are taking all necessary precautions," he added.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

In the darkest hours for Britain during the World War, the expression "cheerio" became a national slogan of unshaken morale, just as the "thumbs up" gesture of British tommies amid today's even darker portents is an ironic defiance of Nazi and Fascists salutes.

British war leadership of this day, however, is at obvious pains to dispel any thought in British minds that delay in the full development of the German attack on England lessens the certainty that it will come. Cabinet spokesmen, from Prime Minister Churchill down, insistently reiterate, in effect, that paradoxical Americanism, "cheer up, the worst is yet to come."

The warning by the undersecretary for war, Sir Edward Grigg, that an attack might come in "several places at dawn" falls into that class. Presumably he meant any dawn, not a particular dawn.

Keeps Britons on Alert

His remark was obviously intended to keep public attention centered on the fear of invasion that haunts British pillows for the first time in many generations. That fear has a definite asset value for the beleaguered nation because it keeps Britons on the constant alert.

Yet there are many circumstances still suggesting that a German attempt to invade England would be the ultimate victory move of Nazi strategy, not the first stroke. It also seems highly probable that when and if invasion is tried, Dover Strait, the narrowest stretch of the English channel, must be the main point of assault. There alone are there obvious possibilities of a Nazi bridge-head being established which would permit the swift ferrying to England of the mas forces and heavy mechanized equipment that successful invasion would require.

Surprise Attack Unlikely

If that is true, it does not appear possible that the water transport necessary for such a movement could be assembled anywhere along the German-held coasts of France, Belgium, Holland or Norway without detection by British air scouts or submarines. Perilous as England's situation is, it does not follow that the Germans can achieve invasion by surprise.

Actually, the intesifying German air and submarine campaign against British shipping and the danger of a Nazi effort to seize Ireland and thus encircle England by a starvation blockade are probably of much more immediate concern to British leadership than invasion prospects. The new triple-purpose British mine barrage from the Orkneys to the coast of Greenland is evidence of that.

It represents an effort to prevent German forces from Norway from reaching the Emerald Isle. At the same time it is designed to reduce the number of British naval and air units required for effective patrol in so wide a stretch of sea.

Danger from Starvation

The Dover Strait air battle looks more like an indication of intensifying Nazi siege warfare against England than a possible prelude to invasion. It is linked with German claims that 609,000 tons of British Merchant shipping were sent down within the last six weeks by Nazi submarines alone.

If those claims are well founded, England still has more to fear from starvation than from immediate invasion porabilities, for all the official warnings that may be uttered in London to keep the nation on a fighting edge.

Doubt Bombs Were Set in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, July -- (AP) — Police of the nation's first and third cities disagreed today over a report that bombs had been planted close to Philadelphia's $5,000,000 convention hall while the Republican party was meeting there two weeks ago.

Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine said "several" bombs were found during the convention in the Pennsylvania metropolis. Another New York police source reported seven or eight bombs were discovered, including two powerful dynamite bombs placed near convention hall.

Mayor Roberth E. Lamberton and op-ranking Philadelphia police officials insisted, however, that no bombs had been found in the auditorium area.

be work, the family and the fatherland.

"The government already has passed through difficult hours.

"It has suffered a new trial—this time from England, which has ungratefully attacked the French fleet demobilized in its harbors after unjustly accusing us of being willing to let it pass into the hands of Italy and Germany.

"Attacked today by England, France is forced to make new sacrifices.

"I need your confidence."

While these important decisions were being taken, some former French leaders, including ex-Premier Edouard Daladier, were believed to be still in North Africa.

They had been prevented from returning to France, Vice Premier Pierre Laval told the assembly yesterday, by the refusal of the German-French armistice committee at Wiesbaden to furnish them transportation.

Poor School System Blamed for Defeat Of France in War

COLLEGE PARK, MD., July 11 (AP)—Dr. Harold Benjamin today blamed France's predicament on her lack of a Democratic educational system.

Speaking before the Maryland Congress on parents and teachers, the dean of the College of Education here said France had an educational system that failed to "make the country work politically."

France, he declared, had a Democratic form of government for 150 years but never had a Democratic school system. He asserted that France had one school for aristocrats and another for non-aristocrats.

Dr. Benjamin told the women "we need to give youth an education for work. More time is wasted trying to teach students where to put commas than I can think of."

He said traditional subjects "are fine but we waste a lot of time teaching them. If a connection between industry and education is necessary to prepare youth for work, then fine, let's have that connection."

Every school, the speaker continued, needs a parent - teacher group. He aded that P.—T. organizations were successful in improving elementary schools but not so successful with secondary schools because the latter were rooted to the "old, traditional curricula."

O'Conor Upheld on State Surplus Claim

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 11 (AP)—Governor O'Conor announced today that auditors of national reputation had reviewed Maryland's financial statement and declared that the $4,467,725 left over last September 30 could be "styled a general fund surplus".

Controversy over whether Maryland had a true surplus at the close of its fiscal year started several weeks ago. Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, whom O'Conor had defeated in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, and other city officials challenged the state's report.

The governor, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, his assistant, Joseph OC, McCusker, and State Auditor Daniel L. Clayland all upheld the statement showing a general fund surplus.

O'Conor said:

"Arrangements were made to have auditors of national reputation review the accounts of the state xxx. These certified public accountants pursued their analysis along lines formulated by the national committee on municipal accounting of Chicago, which has developed and prepared the plans for the standardization of state accounting.

"xxx The following conclusion was announced by the certified public accountants:

" 'It will, therefore, be seen that in conformity with what appears to be accepted accounting practice, at least the amount of $4,467,725 shown on the balance sheet x x x can properly be styled "general fund surplus" ' ".

Billmyre Is Able To Return Home

Charles W. Billmyre, 23, of 216 Grand avenue, a Celanese worker, who was injured Wednesday night in a motorcycle-automobile crash, was released from Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon.

Billmyre's motorcycle struck the car driven by Gil Minnigh, 304 Virginia avenue. Both drivers are slated for trial in Police court on charges of careless driving.

British May Not Send Children Away

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—The British government was reported tonight to have postponed its scheme for moving British children to the dominions.

A well-informed source said the decision would be announced in the House of Commons next week and added that even though the scheme eventually is put in operation it would be "much modified."

Reports had been current since yesterday that England's children might have to stay at home and face it out after all because of a shortage of ships to convoy them.

There have been some suggestions in Commons that the United States furnish both ships and convoys.

Student Pilot and Instructor Injured

BALTIMORE, July 11 (AP) — William H. Koester, Jr., a student pilot, and Charles F. Thompson, an instructor, were injured today in the crash of a training plane at the Curtiss-Wright airport here.

Witnesses said the engine of the ship stopped as the plane took off and Thompson turned back to land with about fifty feet altitude.

Thep lane was damaged considerably. Thompson escaped with a bruised forehead and Koester suffered a wrenched back. They were hopitalized for treatment.

Bananas for Poor

LISBON, July 11 (AP)—The master of the French freighter Kilissi, tied up at Tagus since the French armistice, today offered the civil governor of Lisbon ten tons of bananas for distribution among the poor.

He said the fruit, originally bound for England, was "too ripe to await clarification of the situation."

Sky Is the Limit For Buying Planes in U. S., Beaverbrook Says

LONDON, July 11 (AP) — Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, told the House of Lords tonight that "the sky is the limit" for British aircraft purchases in America.

"Our program is perfectly simple," he said. "It is to buy everything we can possibly get."

There is no "shortage" of planes, Beaverbrook said, but "we will need more airplanes every day and must go on developing that program (of American purchases) as fully as possible."

Counting French purchases, Beaverbrook disclosed, allied plane buying has amounted to more than $600,000,000.

Britain is planning on a long-range basis both in machines and personnel.

An abundant flow of trained pilots from across the seas, particularly from Canada is expected in a few months. Australia and New Zealand also are training large numbers of men for overseas, and elementary flying instruction is being given in several colonies.

South Africa has been concentrating on production of airmen for its own section of the world but it is possible that she, too, shortly will start training aviators for overseas duty.

Asks Annulment of Marriage when Mate Of Years Ago Appears

DENVER, July 11 (AP) — A woman whose first husband made an "Enoch Arden" re-appearance after a twenty-two year absence, asked today for annulment of her marriage to a second husband at Osceola, Iowa, in 1930.

Mrs. Maybelle Bennett told County Judge C. F. Kettering that Harry Washburn, whom she married at Medina, Ohio, July 13, 1907, and who disappeared in 1918, came to her Denver home two months ago to see their three children.

She said she and Arthur Bennett were married at Osceola Jan. 12, 1930, twelve years after Washburn had vanished and after Washburn's brother told her that her husband was believed dead.

Judge Ketering said Bennett would make no objection to the annulment, but had expressed a desire that a property settlement be made for possessions obtained through the joint efforts of Bennett and the woman who has been his wife for ten years.

"There was a bit of an explosion," he remarked with a grin.

Willkie's resignation as president of the Commonwealth and Southern Utility Company was effective last midnight, "I'm off the payroll now," he remarked to his press conference.

Ship Survivors Safe

LONDON, July 11 (AP) — Twenty survivors of the British motorship tanker Athellaird, 8,999 tons, which was torpedoed July 2 about 400 miles southwest of Ireland, arrived tonight at an Irish port. Italian losses acknowledged: The 1,073-ton destroyer Zeffiro; a submarine; three planes and a British hit on a warship that killed twenty-nine and injured sixty-nine.

CHICAGO, July 11 (AP) — M. L. Annenberg, affluent publisher who has been sentenced to three years in prison for evading $1,217,296 in income taxes, made a new plea for clemency today.

His attorney, Weymouth Kirkland, presented to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson a memorandum and several affidavits supporting his previous petition for probation and contending that imprisonment would endanger Annenberg's health.

Three affidavits signed by Philadelphia physicians set forth that Annenberg, 63, was not well, and needed immediate operations and that imprisonment would endanger his health.

A hearing on the petition for probation was set for next Monday.

Not Removed from The Campaign

SEVERAL COMMENTATORS have expressed the opinion that because President Roosevelt has at last got around to recognition of widespread public opinion by declaring that American men will not be required to take part in European wars, but that we will repel any aggression, the question has been definitely removed from the campaign.

But, has it? How can the country depend upon Mr. Roosevelt to observe consistency or to keep any promises in view of the many he has broken during his tenure? There are his party platform pledges for example. Then, too, what reassurance does the country have that the Roosevelt impulsiveness, his known liking for the dramatic, his proclivity for the unusual and the bizarre, his itch for personal notoriety will not become manifest at any unexpected time?

The president's foreign policies have long been of uncertain nature. There is nothing as yet consistent or definite about them. Also, he is an opportunist of the first water and if he sees any good in switching from one thing to the other for the sake of advantage, he has the facility of finding plenty of weasel words and crooning charm to gloss over the transition.

No, the president's acknowledgment of a public sentiment already definitely demonstrated cannot remove from the campaign this momentous question of foreign war participation simply for the reason that the people cannot depend upon his mental quirks and for the additional reason that he himself cannot be sure of his own future course.

A Good Man for GOP Leadership

REPRESENTATIVE JOSEPH W. MARTIN JR., of Massachusetts, Republican leader of the House of Congress, is preeminently the right man to be chairman of the Republican National Committee and director of Wendell L. Willkie's campaign for the presidency. In naming him Mr. Willkie kept his record of doing the right thing at the right time inviolate.

To Representative Martin, more than to any other man, belongs the credit for bringing the Republican party to this presidential campaign with its present roseate chances for victory. Events have made effective political action difficult during this last year, regardless of the opportunities presented for Republicans to score, but as Republican leader of the House Representative Martin has steered a magnificent course and held to a constructive route that has won the admiration of the country.

Following the election in which Republicans are expected to gain control of the House by most observers, "Joe" Martin will undoubtedly be elected speaker of the House. In the meantime he has a big task ahead of him—a task in which he will need the active support of every voter who is opposed to a third term for Roosevelt whether in person or by proxy. Granted unstinted aid by an aroused nation, Chairman Martin will accomplish the job of guiding the Willkie campaign to a successful conclusion.

The Hatch Bill Wins Out After All

DESPITE the frantic efforts of the Palace Politicians, the Hatch bill to curb political activities of state employes paid wholly or in part with government funds has been passed by a large majority in the House of Representatives. It now goes to the Senate, which passed it in March, for action on changes made by the House. If these cannot be composed there, the measure will go to conference.

But, the bill has progressed sufficiently to insure its enactment. One of the desirable amendments attached by the House was that the act should become effective immediately upon being signed by the president instead of going over until October, as was provided in the original bill.

Thus again is seen the desirability of continuing the session of the Congress. Other important measures should be given attention at this session, including the Walter-Logan bill and the amendments to the National Labor Relations act. These are imperative in the interest of getting industry back into full operation so that the increased manufacture required in the national defense preparations may be brought about. The sooner that is done the better.

The Mystery of the French Gold Hoard

BEFORE LONG the busy newspaper men may be able to spread before the public the facts about the French gold which the Germans may not have found when they captured France. Today the reporters are confined to guessing about it. Their guess is that as the German army advanced Belgium's gold was hurried over to Paris and as the hostile hosts kept coming that the French and Belgian gold was gotten out of France and sent away, a little to South America and more to the United States and Canada.

Since the Laval-Petain Fascist-Nazis did not take over the French government until after the abandonment of Paris, this seems probable.

Several years ago elaborate articles were printed depicting underground chambers in Paris which were to be flooded in event of enemy attack. Perhaps the floodgates were duly opened and the gold is still under Paris. But the chances are that it is not. The Germans, since the occupation of France, have made no boasts of gold capture. Incidentally, at the time of the German invasion the United States government purchased a big cargo of French gold and brought it to America on an American warship, thus saving freight.

Holland's gold held in that country before the German advance is thought to have been taken to England. With England under threat the Netherlands hoard has now probably been moved to this side of the Atlantic along with much British gold.

Fiscal Curbs Needed Now More than Ever

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has asked for another $4,848,71,957, bringing the total sum sought for national defense to approximately fourteen billions. Worthy as is the cause, this is an enormous amount of money. Its prospective expenditure raises a number of points with which American taxpayers will be vitally and justifiably concerned.

What assurance is there that the funds will be budgeted so as to do the most good? Billions have been spent on the army and navy during the past decade, and yet experts declare that America is woefully unprepared to resist aggression. Have different arrangements been made in the present case? Or is the country again to be taken on a vast spending spree without rhyme or reason?

Military secrets, of course, cannot be released without defeating the primary aim of preparedness. But the people are entitled to knowledge as to general objectives and to at least a glimpse of the fiscal safeguards, if any, that are being raised with a view to prevention of wastefulness, inefficiency, lop-sided emphasis and plain extravagance.

Sacrifices already are being made by the American people in connection with the defense program. They are being made willingly, for everyone recognizes the urgency of national self-protection. This popular support can best be maintained, however, by the development of a budgeting process of unquestioned effectiveness.

Fourteen billion dollars of other people's money is a sum large enough to demand immediate fixing of the most rigorous financial restraints that can be devised and applied under a sound budgeting system.

Pedestrians Have Obligations Also

"THE WORM TURNED" down in Tennessee recently, the Keystone Automobile Club, Maryland, reports, and a pedestrian who was the real cause of an automobile accident was held responsible by the supreme court and ordered to pay damages to an injured motorist.

"Everyone knows," says Keystone Motorist, official publication of the club, "that the law will enforce the pedestrian's right to courtesy and care from the motorist. What some persons do not seem to realize is that the pedestrian owes the same duty of courtesy and care to the motorist, and that the courts will impose the same penalties upon careless and inconsiderate pedestrians as upon the same kind of automobile drivers."

The circumstances of the case are of interest. A motorist was proceeding along a highway with his car under control. He observed a man standing alongside a parked car talking to the occupants. There was plenty of room to pass in safety, and it was obvious the pedestrian was aware of the car's approach. When the automobile was only a short distance away, the pedestrian strode out into the highway, directly in its path. In an effort to avoid striking him the driver ran off the road. His car was wrecked and he was injured.

Investigation disclosed that the pedestrian in this instance was a strong-minded individual who believed in sticking up for his rights. He had heard somewhere that pedestrians have superior rights on the highway, and he made a practice of walking in front of cars and shouting abuse at drivers. The case was carried all the way to the supreme court, which ruled that the pedestrian's conduct was unjustifiable. A judgment of $1,150 against him was affirmed.

The population of Washington, D. C., has increased thirty-six per cent since 1930. Business seems to have been booming in Washington.

That province in Rumania has changed hands so often the natives probably refer to it as Messarabia.

Problem of War Children Not An Easy One

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON.—If there are any effective legal restrictions preventing child refugees from England coming to homes offered them in America, they ought to be removed. I don't know whether there are or not. The president says there are none which have kept us from receiving the small numbers yet in prospect. Mrs. Roosevelt says there are. It seems to be a matter of interpretation of the quota law. If these children are temporary visitors, we apparently can receive as many as are offered. If they are immigrants, there is a quota limit but it is very generous for people of English birth.

The real problem is down another alley. At present these children come where there is a willing host financially ready, able and willing to give them a home—either with or without aid from relatives in England. This kind of role is apt to work in favor of children of the most properous classes. That does not necessarily condemn it, but some plan of more general application would taste better.

Fluctuation Seen

There is a more cogent question. Some institutions for the care of homeless children have experienced a marked seasonal rise in applications for adoption around the precious Christmas season when the warmth of peace and good-will is at its all-year high and people are apt to act on highly creditable impulse.

At varying later periods there is a rise in the returned goods department. The little darlings don't seem so desirable as they did in the shop when the emotion and novelty wear off and the expense and downright hard work and care of bringing them up begins to be felt. The shallow and fond, but foster parents either want to exchange them for a pekinese or some other kind of pet or just turn them in and charge it off to experience.

Drama Is Created

This creates a sad and sometimes tragic drama. A legal obligation may have been assumed, but that does not cure the tortured situation of an unwanted child in the home of people who are not its parents or of any blood relation.

On this ground, usually, the institution that gave the child, will take it back, but what is going to happen in a similar situation with these piteous fugitives? Apparently there is to be no institutional responsibility or recourse here and no governmental obligation—state or national.

Is More Persuasive

Heaven knows we have such a terrific burden in taking care of the millions of our own destitute that we are not making a very good job of it, and few if any of their children are being guaranteed a home. But the plight of little children under bombing operations is more than persuasive—it is compelling.

Many good and responsible people are offering to assume the financial and personal burden of receiving these kids into their homes. The possible future disappointment discussed in this column will perhaps happen only in a small percentage of cases, but doesn't confidence in the whole scheme require provision now for that possibility? It could be either a residual obligation against some privately endowed financial reserve, a bonding of the now-willing-hosts to provide an allowance in case of later incompatibility—or an outright governmental guarantee.

Heavy Responsibility

It hardly seems likely now that the amount of money required would be great, but suppose this war results, as did the last one, in the financial ruin of millions of now prosperous people. A plan for dealing with the future lives of little children is about the heaviest human responsibility It should have no apparent or predictable loophole. It is too early to foresee the possible extent of this projected child migration but the blue-print for it seems not too well worked out.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

SEVEN YEARS WITHOUT A TICK

Interviewers Show That Third Term Dodge Quips Are Not at All Amusing

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, July 11. — This press conference was six days before the opening of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, and nine days before that convention will name its presidential candidate. As the newspaper men came in, the third term question was much in their minds — put there by the nearness of the decisive hour, and by that much written about cryptic Sunday talk between President Roosevelt and Mr. Farley.

Mark Sullivan

The querying was begun by Mr. Earl Godwin, of the Washington Times-Herald. He put his question in one of the most venerable forms for extracting information by indirect leverage. He said a bet had been made—the president's military aide, General Edwin M. Watson, had bet $300 that Mr. Roosevelt will be renominated and reelected, against $200 bet by the administration's ambassador to Belgium, Mr. John Cudahy. (Query: Was Mr. Cudahy wise to bet against Mr. Roosevelt's continued elevation, even when the odds were so attractive? The ambassadorship to Belgium may not last, since Germany's occupation of that country, and Mr. Cudahy may have need of continued administration favor.)

Dodged Again

Smilingly, with accentuated inscrutability—Sphinx with a grin—Mr. Roosevelt listened. Cryptically he answered — whoever won, the money would be in good hands.

There were several other questions similarly indirect, similarly semi-humorous—if you think this treatment of a serious public question can be funny at all. One query said that three newspaper men were going to speak on the radio about the third term — and would Mr. Roosevelt give them any suggestions? He inquired the hour of the radio talk. It was to be 11:15 p. m. and he said that most unfortunately he would be in bed and could not listen; if they would advance the hour he would be glad to listen and judge the merit of their prognostications.

But there was not, really, as much humor in it as Mr. Roosevelt seemed to wish to preserve. To the newspaper men, it had long lost its capacity to evoke hilarity. When the third term question first arose, some eight or nine months ago, Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward it was one of irritation. Toward newspaper men who raised it, at that time, he showed exasperation. One of them he consigned to the dunce cap corner. A little later he almost angrily tabooed questions about a third term.

For a while, the questioning lapsed. But the newspaper men could hardly ignore, permanently, a subject so momentous. As passage of time made the matter more pressingly imminent, the questions began again. At this stage, for several weeks past, Mr. Roosevelt's attitude has been one of jocularity. But the jocularity could hardly avoid becoming stale with repetition; and becoming artificial and forced, almost macabre, because of the essential gravity of the issue involved. At this week's press conference, here described, there was no ringing laughs from the newspaper men. Indeed their mood was almost at the point where tacit tolerance merges into active unappreciation.

This attitude of many newspaper men is not professional. It is not that they resent Mr. Roosevelt's attitude of prolonged evasiveness about one of the most important pieces of news in the contemporary world. It is rather that—themselves endowed with more humor than the average—they have just ceased to find entertainment in Mr. Roosevelt's ingenuity of sustained cryptiness. They enjoy guessing once, or even twice or thrice. But to be kept guessing for eight or nine months is a little boring.

Hitlerian Treatment

If it is that way with the newspaper men, who are mere onlookers, it is more so with the Democratic leaders, whose sense of obligation to party trust is involved, and also their personal dignity. Their feeling about Mr. Roosevelt's course is suggested by the remark that "he is treating the Democratic national convention like Hitler treats the German Reichstag — using them merely as an audience and sounding-board for what he has to say, reducing their function to hearing, and approving, what he has decided."

This spirit of silent sullenness runs throughout the whole group of Democratic leaders—Democratic leaders as distinct from New Dealers. It is perfectly true that most of them, at this stage, want Mr. Roosevelt renominated—they think his nomination is the best they can make. But inwardly, sometimes subconsciously, they resent the condition which now compels them to take this view, the process by which this condition was imposed upon them. As the convention comes nearer, they resent the queer awkwardness imposed upon them by Mr. Roosevelt's continued silence.

Groping in the Dark

In detail after detail, Mr. Roosevelt's course makes this convention out of the ordinary. In a normal convention, every name proposed for the presidential nomination is put forward in a nominating speech, usually delivered by a high party leader, who puts time and thought and pride into preparing the speech. In this convention, no one knows whether the leading candidate is a candidate at all.

If anyone has been chosen by Mr. Roosevelt to place his name before the convention (which is improbable) the bearer of that distinction is the only one who shares with Mr. Roosevelt the most important secret in the contemporary world. All the other speakers who are to make the nominating speeches for other candidates, are handicapped by not knowing whether there will be a speech in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt. Practically every person who addresses the early sessions of the convention must speak in the dark. The writers of the platform cannot know whether to point with pride to Mr. Roosevelt's peerless past, or paint with rococo confidence his glorious future.

Everything about this convention must be contingent—must have an atmosphere of "when, as and if."

GOP United Behind Willkie

From the New York Herald Tribune

It is not too much to say that the Republican party is already united behind Mr. Willkie—united with an enthusiasm and an absence of grudges rare in the history of any party. Partly this swift reaction from the hard-hitting struggle at Philadelphia is due to the bright prospects of victory in November. Like everybody else, politicians love a winner. Even more, the swift arrival of good feeling is due to Mr. Willkie himself—to the complete absence of personal attacks by his supporters, upon which he insisted at Philadelphia, and to the generosity of his nature which is incapable of bitterness or petty resentment.

The advisory campaign committee chosen by Mr. Willkie records this get-together spirit in effective fashion. It should be of real service in the active days that lie ahead. With this usual boldness of approach to a problem, Mr. Willkie is seriously considering a new method of directing the campaign. There is much to appeal in the novel conception of a three-man board created solely for the period of the campaign and leaving the national committee to function as the permanent directing body, which it primarily is. But, obviously, any plan, whether old-fashioned or newly devised, depends for its success upon the individuals chosen to execute it. It is doubtless to this task of selection that Mr. Willkie is devoting his best endeavor at the moment.

Randolph County Is Pleased

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

Citizens of Randolph county, W. Va., are rejoicing over the fact that that mountain area has shown an increase of more than 5,000 in population the past decade. The increase amounts to more than twenty percent. The Elkins Inter-Mountain expresses the opinion that much of this increase in population is due to the Sewell coal devolpments which have taken place in the county. During the past decade a number of new mines have been opened and they are employing a lot of people.

The opinion is expressed that the importance of the vast deposits of Sewell coal in Randolph county must not be overlooked or minimized. Randolph county possesses valuable natural resources as do numerous other counties in West Virginia. We should not be satisfied, however, with merely using up and exhausting these natural resources but we should plan for manufacturing industries which will convert natural products into valuable goods, giving employment to vastly greater numbers of citizens.

Older Books Are More Enlightening, Edwin Hill Says

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

This department recently referred to the public service rendered by the late Arthur Brisbane in bringing to the attention of Americans the historical studies of Henry Thomas Buckle. Brisbane was unique among his contemporaries in his discovery of the eternal timeliness of the past. He was a step-down transformer for the high-voltage thought-processes of a few great men to the range of our common understanding. In this, over a long period of years, he served a public good to a degree unmatched in our journalistic history.

We read every day in the newspapers competent and well-written reviews of current books. That is a public service, too, and our book-reviewing is attaining a high standard of skill, and clarity and an informed viewpoint. But, unfortunately, it would seem, any great work of the past is like a tale that is told, no matter how pertinent it may be to our pressing urgencies and issues of the moment.

Storehouse of Truth

Our libraries are cluttered with dust-gathering books which offer more cogent truths about our present problem than any of the current literary journalese. Here's President Stringfellow Barr, of St. John's College, who rediscovers the great books of history and bases his curriculum thereon. If I were a book reviewer, I would co-operate with him, and ever so often break pace with a reexamination of one of the classics.

In our recent reference to Buckle, we also cited J. B. Bury, the Cambridge don who, about thirty years ago, wrote an unassuming little book called "History of Freedom of Thought." It is sound and salutary reading for any citizen who would take inventory of our American heritage, discover how we came by it and answer for himself the question of what part of it is worth saving and why. Henry Holt and Company printed it in a compact edition, small enough to go into a commuter's pocket, in 1913. I saw this edition on a second-hand book stall for fifteen cents the other day. It's easy to get and easy to read and profoundly stimulating to free men who want to stay that way.

Upkeep Essential

Even in those untroubled days before the World war, Dr. Bury was keenly alive to the problem of upkeep, so far as our liberties were concerned.

"Freedom has been acquired only in recent times," he said, "and the way to its attainment has lain through lakes of blood."

There was a note of prophecy in his misgivings about the future.

"Hopeful people may feel confident," he wrote, "that the victory is permanent; that intellectual freedom is now assured to mankind as a possession forever; that the future will see the collapse of these forces which work against it and its gradual diffusion in the more backward parts of the earth. Yet history may suggest that this prospect is not assured. Can we be certain that there will not come a great setback? Is it not conceivable that some new force, emerging from the unknown, may surprise the world and cause a new setback? If science seems pretty safe, it is always possible that in countries where the scientific spirit is held in honor, nevertheless, serious restrictions may be laid on speculations touching social, political and religious questions.

Axiom of Progress

"Russia has men of science inferior to none, and Russia has its notorious censorship. It is by no means inconceivable that in lands where opinion is free coercion may be introduced. Meanwhile nothing should be left undone to impress upon the young that freedom of thought is an axiom of human progress."

It was only a short time after this was written that the shot at Sarajevo marked the beginning of the "setback" which Dr. Bury feared. We still have time to shore up our defenses over here. Dr. Bury's little book helps us to a truer appreciation and understanding of our national past, and our tradition of freedom of thought and freedom of speech. It is a wholesome reminder that a high price was paid for what we have. We value it more and believe in it more if we realize this.

Not Removed from The Campaign

SEVERAL COMMENTATORS have expressed the opinion that because President Roosevelt has at last got around to recognition of widespread public opinion by declaring that American men will not be required to take part in European wars, but that we will repel any aggression, the question has been definitely removed from the campaign.

But, has it? How can the country depend upon Mr. Roosevelt to observe consistency or to keep any promises in view of the many he has broken during his tenure? There are his party platform pledges for example. Then, too, what reassurance does the country have that the Roosevelt impulsiveness, his known liking for the dramatic, his proclivity for the unusual and the bizarre, his itch for personal notoriety will not become manifest at any unexpected time?

The president's foreign policies have long been of uncertain nature. There is nothing as yet consistent or definite about them. Also, he is an opportunist of the first water and if he sees any good in switching from one thing to the other for the sake of advantage, he has the facility of finding plenty of weasel words and crooning charm to gloss over the transition.

No, the president's acknowledgment of a public sentiment already definitely demonstrated cannot remove from the campaign this momentous question of foreign war participation simply for the reason that the people cannot depend upon his mental quirks and for the additional reason that he himself cannot be sure of his own future course.

A Good Man for GOP Leadership

To Representative Martin, more than to any other man, belongs the credit for bringing the Republican party to this presidential campaign with its present roseate chances for victory. Events have made effective political action difficult during this last year, regardless of the opportunities presented for Republicans to score, but as Republican leader of the House Representative Martin has steered a magnificent course and held to a constructive route that has won the admiration of the country.

Following the election in which Republicans are expected to gain control of the House by most observers, "Joe" Martin will undoubtedly be elected speaker of the House. In the meantime he has a big task ahead of him—a task in which he will need the active support of every voter who is opposed to a third term for Roosevelt whether in person or by proxy. Granted unstinted aid by an aroused nation, Chairman Martin will accomplish the job of guiding the Willkie campaign to a successful conclusion.

The Hatch Bill Wins Out After All

DESPITE the frantic efforts of the Palace Politicians, the Hatch bill to curb political activities of state employes paid wholly or in part with government funds has been passed by a large majority in the House of Representatives. It now goes to the Senate, which passed it in March, for action on changes made by the House. If these cannot be composed there, the measure will go to conference.

But, the bill has progressed sufficiently to insure its enactment. One of the desirable amendments attached by the House was that the act should become effective immediately upon being signed by the president instead of going over until October, as was provided in the original bill.

Thus again is seen the desirability of continuing the session of the Congress. Other important measures should be given attention at this session, including the Walter-Logan bill and the amendments to the National Labor Relations act. These are imperative in the interest of getting industry back into full operation so that the increased manufacture required in the national defense preparations may be brought about. The sooner that is done the better.

The Mystery of the French Gold Hoard

BEFORE LONG the busy newspaper men may be able to spread before the public the facts about the French gold which the Germans may not have found when they captured France. Today the reporters are confined to guessing about it. Their guess is that as the German army advanced Belgium's gold was hurried over to Paris and as the hostile hosts kept coming that the French and Belgian gold was gotten out of France and sent away, a little to South America and more to the United States and Canada.

Since the Laval-Petain Fascist-Nazis did not take over the French government until after the abandonment of Paris, this seems probable.

Several years ago elaborate articles were printed depicting underground chambers in Paris which were to be flooded in event of enemy attack. Perhaps the floodgates were duly opened and the gold is still under Paris. But the chances are that it is not. The Germans, since the occupation of France, have made no boasts of gold capture. Incidentally, at the time of the German invasion the United States government purchased a big cargo of French gold and brought it to America on an American warship, thus saving freight.

Holland's gold held in that country before the German advance is thought to have been taken to England. With England under threat the Netherlands hoard has now probably been moved to this side of the Atlantic along with much British gold.

Fiscal Curbs Needed Now More than Ever

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has asked for another $4,848,71,957, bringing the total sum sought for national defense to approximately fourteen billions. Worthy as is the cause, this is an enormous amount of money. Its prospective expenditure raises a number of points with which American taxpayers will be vitally and justifiably concerned.

What assurance is there that the funds will be budgeted so as to do the most good? Billions have been spent on the army and navy during the past decade, and yet experts declare that America is woefully unprepared to resist aggression. Have different arrangements been made in the present case? Or is the country again to be taken on a vast spending spree without rhyme or reason?

Military secrets, of course, cannot be released without defeating the primary aim of preparedness. But the people are entitled to knowledge as to general objectives and to at least a glimpse of the fiscal safeguards, if any, that are being raised with a view to prevention of wastefulness, inefficiency, lop-sided emphasis and plain extravagance.

Sacrifices already are being made by the American people in connection with the defense program. They are being made willingly, for everyone recognizes the urgency of national self-protection. This popular support can best be maintained, however, by the development of a budgeting process of unquestioned effectiveness.

Fourteen billion dollars of other people's money is a sum large enough to demand immediate fixing of the most rigorous financial restraints that can be devised and applied under a sound budgeting system.

Pedestrians Have Obligations Also

"THE WORM TURNED" down in Tennessee recently, the Keystone Automobile Club, Maryland, reports, and a pedestrian who was the real cause of an automobile accident was held responsible by the supreme court and ordered to pay damages to an injured motorist.

"Everyone knows," says Keystone Motorist, official publication of the club, "that the law will enforce the pedestrian's right to courtesy and care from the motorist. What some persons do not seem to realize is that the pedestrian owes the same duty of courtesy and care to the motorist, and that the courts will impose the same penalties upon careless and inconsiderate pedestrians as upon the same kind of automobile drivers."

The circumstances of the case are of interest. A motorist was proceeding along a highway with his car under control. He observed a man standing alongside a parked car talking to the occupants. There was plenty of room to pass in safety, and it was obvious the pedestrian was aware of the car's approach. When the automobile was only a short distance away, the pedestrian strode out into the highway, directly in its path. In an effort to avoid striking him the driver ran off the road. His car was wrecked and he was injured.

Investigation disclosed that the pedestrian in this instance was a strong-minded individual who believed in sticking up for his rights. He had heard somewhere that pedestrians have superior rights on the highway, and he made a practice of walking in front of cars and shouting abuse at drivers. The case was carried all the way to the supreme court, which ruled that the pedestrian's conduct was unjustifiable. A judgment of $1,150 against him was affirmed.

The population of Washington, D. C., has increased thirty-six per cent since 1930. Business seems to have been booming in Washington.

Problem of War Children Not An Easy One

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON.—If there are any effective legal restrictions preventing child refugees from England coming to homes offered them in America, they ought to be removed. I don't know whether there are or not. The president says there are none which have kept us from receiving the small numbers yet in prospect. Mrs. Roosevelt says there are. It seems to be a matter of interpretation of the quota law. If these children are temporary visitors, we apparently can receive as many as are offered. If they are immigrants, there is a quota limit but it is very generous for people of English birth.

The real problem is down another alley. At present these children come where there is a willing host financially ready, able and willing to give them a home—either with or without aid from relatives in England. This kind of role is apt to work in favor of children of the most properous classes. That does not necessarily condemn it, but some plan of more general application would taste better.

Fluctuation Seen

There is a more cogent question. Some institutions for the care of homeless children have experienced a marked seasonal rise in applications for adoption around the precious Christmas season when the warmth of peace and good-will is at its all-year high and people are apt to act on highly creditable impulse.

At varying later periods there is a rise in the returned goods department. The little darlings don't seem so desirable as they did in the shop when the emotion and novelty wear off and the expense and downright hard work and care of bringing them up begins to be felt. The shallow and fond, but foster parents either want to exchange them for a pekinese or some other kind of pet or just turn them in and charge it off to experience.

Drama Is Created

This creates a sad and sometimes tragic drama. A legal obligation may have been assumed, but that does not cure the tortured situation of an unwanted child in the home of people who are not its parents or of any blood relation.

On this ground, usually, the institution that gave the child, will take it back, but what is going to happen in a similar situation with these piteous fugitives? Apparently there is to be no institutional responsibility or recourse here and no governmental obligation—state or national.

Is More Persuasive

Heaven knows we have such a terrific burden in taking care of the millions of our own destitute that we are not making a very good job of it, and few if any of their children are being guaranteed a home. But the plight of little children under bombing operations is more than persuasive—it is compelling.

Many good and responsible people are offering to assume the financial and personal burden of receiving these kids into their homes. The possible future disappointment discussed in this column will perhaps happen only in a small percentage of cases, but doesn't confidence in the whole scheme require provision now for that possibility? It could be either a residual obligation against some privately endowed financial reserve, a bonding of the now-willing-hosts to provide an allowance in case of later incompatibility—or an outright governmental guarantee.

Heavy Responsibility

It hardly seems likely now that the amount of money required would be great, but suppose this war results, as did the last one, in the financial ruin of millions of now prosperous people. A plan for dealing with the future lives of little children is about the heaviest human responsibility It should have no apparent or predictable loophole. It is too early to foresee the possible extent of this projected child migration but the blue-print for it seems not too well worked out.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

SEVEN YEARS WITHOUT A TICK

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, July 11. — This press conference was six days before the opening of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, and nine days before that convention will name its presidential candidate. As the newspaper men came in, the third term question was much in their minds — put there by the nearness of the decisive hour, and by that much written about cryptic Sunday talk between President Roosevelt and Mr. Farley.

Mark Sullivan

The querying was begun by Mr. Earl Godwin, of the Washington Times-Herald. He put his question in one of the most venerable forms for extracting information by indirect leverage. He said a bet had been made—the president's military aide, General Edwin M. Watson, had bet $300 that Mr. Roosevelt will be renominated and reelected, against $200 bet by the administration's ambassador to Belgium, Mr. John Cudahy. (Query: Was Mr. Cudahy wise to bet against Mr. Roosevelt's continued elevation, even when the odds were so attractive? The ambassadorship to Belgium may not last, since Germany's occupation of that country, and Mr. Cudahy may have need of continued administration favor.)

Dodged Again

Smilingly, with accentuated inscrutability—Sphinx with a grin—Mr. Roosevelt listened. Cryptically he answered — whoever won, the money would be in good hands.

There were several other questions similarly indirect, similarly semi-humorous—if you think this treatment of a serious public question can be funny at all. One query said that three newspaper men were going to speak on the radio about the third term — and would Mr. Roosevelt give them any suggestions? He inquired the hour of the radio talk. It was to be 11:15 p. m. and he said that most unfortunately he would be in bed and could not listen; if they would advance the hour he would be glad to listen and judge the merit of their prognostications.

But there was not, really, as much humor in it as Mr. Roosevelt seemed to wish to preserve. To the newspaper men, it had long lost its capacity to evoke hilarity. When the third term question first arose, some eight or nine months ago, Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward it was one of irritation. Toward newspaper men who raised it, at that time, he showed exasperation. One of them he consigned to the dunce cap corner. A little later he almost angrily tabooed questions about a third term.

For a while, the questioning lapsed. But the newspaper men could hardly ignore, permanently, a subject so momentous. As passage of time made the matter more pressingly imminent, the questions began again. At this stage, for several weeks past, Mr. Roosevelt's attitude has been one of jocularity. But the jocularity could hardly avoid becoming stale with repetition; and becoming artificial and forced, almost macabre, because of the essential gravity of the issue involved. At this week's press conference, here described, there was no ringing laughs from the newspaper men. Indeed their mood was almost at the point where tacit tolerance merges into active unappreciation.

This attitude of many newspaper men is not professional. It is not that they resent Mr. Roosevelt's attitude of prolonged evasiveness about one of the most important pieces of news in the contemporary world. It is rather that—themselves endowed with more humor than the average—they have just ceased to find entertainment in Mr. Roosevelt's ingenuity of sustained crypticness. They enjoy guessing once, or even twice or thrice. But to be kept guessing for eight or nine months is a little boring.

Hitlerian Treatment

If it is that way with the newspaper men, who are mere onlookers, it is more so with the Democratic leaders, whose sense of obligation to party trust is involved, and also their personal dignity. Their feeling about Mr. Roosevelt's course is suggested by the remark that "he is treating the Democratic national convention like Hitler treats the German Reichstag — using them merely as an audience and sounding-board for what he has to say, reducing their function to hearing, and approving, what he has decided."

This spirit of silent sullenness runs throughout the whole group of Democratic leaders—Democratic leaders as distinct from New Dealers. It is perfectly true that most of them, at this stage, want Mr. Roosevelt renominated—they think his nomination is the best they can make. But inwardly, sometimes subconsciously, they resent the condition which now compels them to take this view, the process by which this condition was imposed upon them. As the convention comes nearer, they resent the queer awkwardness imposed upon them by Mr. Roosevelt's continued silence.

Groping in the Dark

In detail after detail, Mr. Roosevelt's course makes this convention out of the ordinary. In a normal convention, every name proposed for the presidential nomination is put forward in a nominating speech, usually delivered by a high party leader, who puts time and thought and pride into preparing the speech. In this convention, no one knows whether the leading candidate is a candidate at all.

If anyone has been chosen by Mr. Roosevelt to place his name before the convention (which is improbable) the bearer of that distinction is the only one who shares with Mr. Roosevelt the most important secret in the contemporary world. All the other speakers who are to make the nominating speeches for other candidates, are handicapped by not knowing whether there will be a speech in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt. Practically every person who addresses the early sessions of the convention must speak in the dark. The writers of the platform cannot know whether to point with pride to Mr. Roosevelt's peerless past, or paint with rococo confidence his glorious future.

Everything about this convention must be contingent—must have an atmosphere of "when, as and if."

From the New York Herald Tribune

It is not too much to say that the Republican party is already united behind Mr. Willkie—united with an enthusiasm and an absence of grudges rare in the history of any party. Partly this swift reaction from the hard-hitting struggle at Philadelphia is due to the bright prospects of victory in November. Like everybody else, politicians love a winner. Even more, the swift arrival of good feeling is due to Mr. Willkie himself—to the complete absence of personal attacks by his supporters, upon which he insisted at Philadelphia, and to the generosity of his nature which is incapable of bitterness or petty resentment.

The advisory campaign committee chosen by Mr. Willkie records this get-together spirit in effective fashion. It should be of real service in the active days that lie ahead. With this usual boldness of approach to a problem, Mr. Willkie is seriously considering a new method of directing the campaign. There is much to appeal in the novel conception of a three-man board created solely for the period of the campaign and leaving the national committee to function as the permanent directing body, which it primarily is. But, obviously, any plan, whether old-fashioned or newly devised, depends for its success upon the individuals chosen to execute it. It is doubtless to this task of selection that Mr. Willkie is devoting his best endeavor at the moment.

Randolph County Is Pleased

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

Citizens of Randolph county, W. Va., are rejoicing over the fact that that mountain area has shown an increase of more than 5,000 in population the past decade. The increase amounts to more than twenty percent. The Elkins Inter-Mountain expresses the opinion that much of this increase in population is due to the Sewell coal devolpments which have taken place in the county. During the past decade a number of new mines have been opened and they are employing a lot of people.

The opinion is expressed that the importance of the vast deposits of Sewell coal in Randolph county must not be overlooked or minimized. Randolph county possesses valuable natural resources as do numerous other counties in West Virginia. We should not be satisfied, however, with merely using up and exhausting these natural resources but we should plan for manufacturing industries which will convert natural products into valuable goods, giving employment to vastly greater numbers of citizens.

Older Books Are More Enlightening, Edwin Hill Says

Edwin C. Hill

This department recently referred to the public service rendered by the late Arthur Brisbane in bringing to the attention of Americans the historical studies of Henry Thomas Buckle. Brisbane was unique among his contemporaries in his discovery of the eternal timeliness of the past. He was a step-down transformer for the high-voltage thought-processes of a few great men to the range of our common understanding. In this, over a long period of years, he served a public good to a degree unmatched in our journalistic history.

We read every day in the newspapers competent and well-written reviews of current books. That is a public service, too, and our book-reviewing is attaining a high standard of skill, and clarity and an informed viewpoint. But, unfortunately, it would seem, any great work of the past is like a tale that is told, no matter how pertinent it may be to our pressing urgencies and issues of the moment.

Storehouse of Truth

Our libraries are cluttered with dust-gathering books which offer more cogent truths about our present problem than any of the current literary journalese. Here's President Stringfellow Barr, of St. John's College, who rediscovers the great books of history and bases his curriculum thereon. If I were a book reviewer, I would co-operate with him, and ever so often break pace with a reexamination of one of the classics.

In our recent reference to Buckle, we also cited J. B. Bury, the Cambridge don who, about thirty years ago, wrote an unassuming little book called "History of Freedom of Thought." It is sound and salutary reading for any citizen who would take inventory of our American heritage, discover how we came by it and answer for himself the question of what part of it is worth saving and why. Henry Holt and Company printed it in a compact edition, small enough to go into a commuter's pocket, in 1913. I saw this edition on a second-hand book stall for fifteen cents the other day. It's easy to get and easy to read and profoundly stimulating to free men who want to stay that way.

Upkeep Essential

Even in those untroubled days before the World war, Dr. Bury was keenly alive to the problem of upkeep, so far as our liberties were concerned.

"Freedom has been acquired only in recent times," he said, "and the way to its attainment has lain through lakes of blood."

There was a note of prophecy in his misgivings about the future.

"Hopeful people may feel confident," he wrote, "that the victory is permanent; that intellectual freedom is now assured to mankind as a possession forever; that the future will see the collapse of these forces which work against it and its gradual diffusion in the more backward parts of the earth. Yet history may suggest that this prospect is not assured. Can we be certain that there will not come a great setback? Is it not conceivable that some new force, emerging from the unknown, may surprise the world and cause a new setback? If science seems pretty safe, it is always possible that in countries where the scientific spirit is held in honor, nevertheless, serious restrictions may be laid on speculations touching social, political and religious questions.

AP Feature Service

BALTIMORE — Photograophy is aiding the mass production of airplanes at the Glenn L. Martin plant.

By use of a huge camera, engineering drawings are reproduced on any kind of a surface. The method saves time and money in re-drafting, speed actual engineering and production.

Here is how it works:

Pictures of large drawings are snapped by an immense camera. Negatives are developed and the images projected back on to sensitized sheets of aluminum alloy metal.

When the sheets, 10 by 5 feet, are placed in developing tanks, the drawing appears on the surface in exact scale, or fractional or multiple scale if desired.

Thus, in a few minutes there can be reproduced a number of drawings that might have required days in re-drafting. The company estimated it had saved more than $80,000 last year in drafting alone. Moreover, the method enables tool-designing and tool-making to get underway rapidly.

When an experimental airplane is to be built, master drawings can be reproduced on the structural metal and the parts cut directly from it. The camera can scale down the pattern in a jiffy for making wind-tunnel models.

Constitution Signer's Grave Lost; Three Year Hunt Yields No Clues

AP Feature Service

BALTIMORE—Grave-hunting is hot, tiresome and thankless work, and, besides, it's hard on the shoes. Tom Jenifer's just about ready to quit.

He's not in the business; primarily, Tom Jenifer is a Baltimore county attorney. But, for three years, he has been searching for the burial ground of an illustrious ancestor—Daniel Jenifer of St. Thomas, a signer of the Constitution.

Only One Unlocated

Youthful Tom never had worried about Daniel's grave until Congress brought it up back in 1937. The idea was to find the graves and mark them appropriately. Since then, all but this one have been located.

Tom still is hunting.

"It's not that I don't want to find it," he explained. "It's just a case of running out of ideas. I've spent so much time in cemeteries around here I could haunt people."

Daniel of St. Thomas was the first president of the Maryland Senate and owned large tracts and big homes in Annapolis, the state capital, and in parts of Southern Maryland immediately adjacent to Annapolis.

Culling through musty state archives, his descendant found an obituary in the Maryland Gazette on Nov. 18, 1790, noting that Daniel had died early on the morning of Nov. 16 at the age of sixty-seven and that he was 'a man so well known and distinguished by his country that an eulogy on his character is altogether unnecessary."

A Last Possibility

But the Gazette failed to mention in that issue of later when and where Daniel was buried.

There's a last possibility, Tom Jenifer says. Daniel may have been buried at famed old Port Tobacco, along with his parents. The obstacle to a complete exploration of the possibility lies in the fact that the Port Tobacco cemetery is entirely under water or surmounted by marsh land.

hoto Process Saves Time in Plane Factory

Feature Service

y use of a huge camera, engin- ring drawings are reproduced on kind of a surface. The method s time and money in re-draft- ing, speed actual engineering and production.

Here is how it works:

Pictures of large drawings are snapped by an immense camera. Negatives are developed and the images projected back on to sensitized sheets of aluminum alloy metal.

When the sheets, 10 by 5 feet, are placed in developing tanks, the drawing appears on the surface in exact scale, or fractional or multiple scale if desired.

Thus, in a few minutes there can be reproduced a number of drawings that might have required days in re-drafting. The company estimated it had saved more than $80,000 last year in drafting alone. Moreover, the method enables tool-designing and tool-making to get underway rapidly.

When an experimental airplane is to be built, master drawings can be reproduced on the structural metal and the parts cut directly from it. The camera can scale down the pattern in a jiffy for making wind-tunnel models.

Mayor Has a Flair For Detective Work

HAMPTON, Va., (AP) — Mayor J. V. Bickford answered his telephone and a voice told him the party calling was Mayor Earl B. Horner, of Burlington, N. C., who would like Mayor Bickford to identify him at a local bank to have a check cashed.

Acting on a hunch, Bickford called Mayor Horner on the telephone —and found him presiding at a council session in Burlington. Two detectives instead of the mayor called to "identify" the telephone caller.

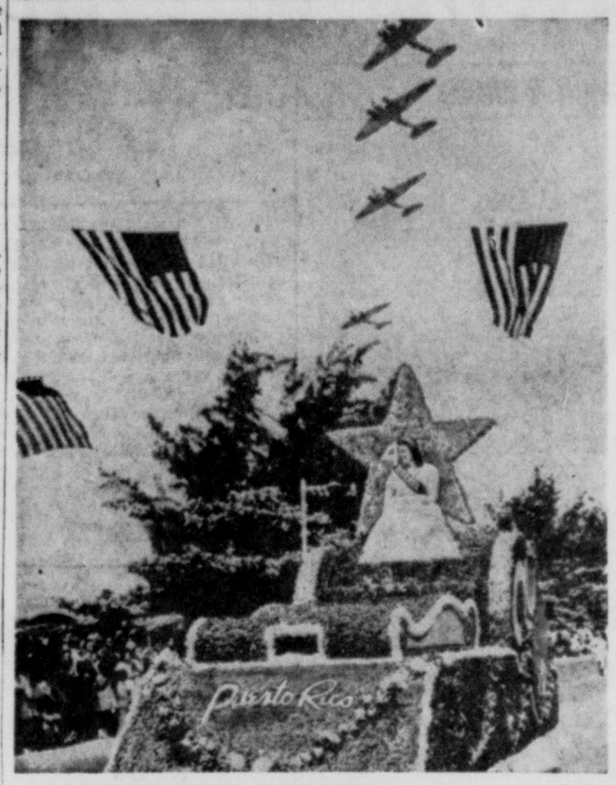
Lifetime of Travel

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP)—Day in and day out for 40 years John McGill, 62, of Cheyenne has boarded Union Pacific's No. 5 passenger train here for the run to Ogden, Utah. Recently, when he retired as chief mail clerk on the train, he estimated he had traveled 2,264,000 miles—all between Cheyenne and Ogden.

As Old As You Feel

WACO, Tex., (AP) — Mrs. G. W. Graves, 94-year-old mother of 10 children, made her 25th successive summer automobile trip to the Rocky Mountains this year.

ISLAND'S BID FOR STATEHOOD



Puerto Rico's aspirations to become America's 49th state are dramatized in this picture made during the July 4th parade in San Juan, oldest capital city under the Stars and Stripes. Army bombers roar overhead as a pretty senorita rides a float representing the "49th state."

Appearances Count, Even Among Pickets

SIOUX FALLS, S. D. (AP) — E. C. (Gene) Eppley of Omaha, who operates a hotel chain, dropped in here on an inspection trip. He nodded approvingly at work done on the Carpenter hotel. But something seemed wrong. He scratched his head.

Then he had it. A picket in front carried a dilapidated sign. Eppley promptly ordered a bright new sign painted — just like the old one. He presented it to the picket, who accepted it with thanks.

Constitution Signer's Grave Lost; Three Year Hunt Yields No Clues

AP Feature Service

BALTIMORE—Grave-hunting is hot, tiresome and thankless work, and, besides, it's hard on the shoes. Tom Jenifer's just about ready to quit.

He's not in the business; primarily, Tom Jenifer is a Baltimore county attorney. But, for three years, he has been searching for the burial ground of an illustrious ancestor—Daniel Jenifer of St. Thomas, a signer of the Constitution.

Only One Unlocated

Youthful Tom never had worried about Daniel's grave until Congress brought it up back in 1937. The idea was to find the graves and mark them appropriately. Since then, all but this one have been located.

Tom still is hunting.

"It's not that I don't want to find it," he explained. "It's just a case of running out of ideas. I've spent so much time in cemeteries around here I could haunt people."

Daniel of St. Thomas was the first president of the Maryland Senate and owned large tracts and big homes in Annapolis, the state capital, and in parts of Southern Maryland immediately adjacent to Annapolis.

Culling through musty state archives, his descendant found an obituary in the Maryland Gazette on Nov. 18, 1790, noting that Daniel had died early on the morning of Nov. 16 at the age of sixty-seven and that he was 'a man so well known and distinguished by his country that an eulogy on his character is altogether unnecessary."

A Last Possibility

But the Gazette failed to mention in that issue of later when and where Daniel was buried.

There's a last possibility, Tom Jenifer says. Daniel may have been buried at famed old Port Tobacco, along with his parents. The obstacle to a complete exploration of the possibility lies in the fact that the Port Tobacco cemetery is entirely under water or surmounted by marsh land.

Dry Skin Yields To Good Care

By HELEN FOLLETT

DRY SKINS sometimes stop having cutaneous fits when a change of soap is made. Complexions of that character are temperamental. The condition is caused by sleepy sebaceous glands that aren't fulfilling the purpose for which they were intended. When functioning normally they spread upon the skin surface a thin film of oil. If the natural lubricant is missing, a state of desquamasets up, dead scales fluffing away faster than they should, leaving a harsh surface.

There's a way of deceiving a dry skin, not letting it realize that soap is being used. Begin with a cleansing by cosmetic oil. Make several applications, removing them with tissues. Have a three minute massage with a heavy cream. Dip a soft wash cloth in warm soapy water, place over the face, holding close with the hands. Repeat several times. Rinse with warm water, dry gently, use a foundation cosmetic to make the powder stick like a friend and a brother.

"The mirror makes a 'growth of light down on the cheeks appear heavier than it is."

More exercise out of doors, more butter on the bread, more cream in the coffee and plenty of drinking water will have a stimulating effect upon sebaceous glands.

If the skin is dry all over the body, add a little corn starch to the bathing water. After a gentle drying apply a bath oil which will do the disappearing act in a jiffy.

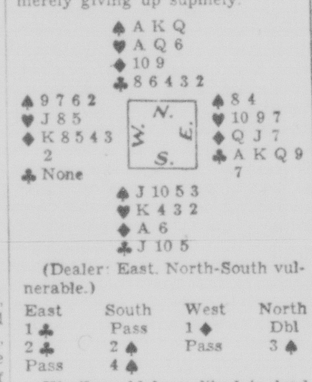
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TEMPT THE IMPOSSIBLE

IMAGINATION is one of the most vital assets of the superfine cardsman. It enables him to make some contracts that seem completely impossible to the less superlatively endowed. Upon occasion he will figure out that, if the missing cards are distributed in some one particular way, he has a long shot chance. Even that may depend upon his luring one or both of the defenders into most absurd mistakes. But at least it may be a chance, however remote its likelihood, and is better than merely giving up supinely.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Dbl
2 ♣	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

West would have liked to lead his partner's club suit, but could not, so selected the heart J. South counted up and saw three probable losers in clubs, plus one in diamonds. After thorough study, he saw a faint ray of light, a remote chance to avoid the diamond loser, if West happened to have four trumps and would get just a little bit careless on one trick, and if East, too, would make a particular slip. He then proceeded with his plan.

Winning the heart lead with dummy's A, he took two high spades and then led a club. East rattled off three tricks there, then made the mistake of not leading a fourth club—just what declarer hoped. He switched to his heart 10 for some unsound reason, perhaps hoping the J lead had been a singleton. That was taken with the Q, then the K was won. The declarer had false-carded the 3 and 4 on two of the heart tricks and now led the heart 2.

West had paid little attention, being irate at his partner for not returning a diamond after the clubs. He saw the dummy could over-ruff if he ruffed, so he discarded a diamond. North then did likewise, finessing the heart 2 against the chance that East was out of trumps. The diamond A, ruffed diamond 6 and two trumps made the contract.

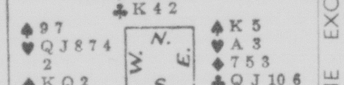
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West bids and rebids hearts, and leads the heart Q against South's 4-Spades, why should declarer refuse to cover the honor with dummy's K?

Dry Skin Yields To Good Care

By HELEN FOLLETT

DRY SKINS sometimes stop having cutaneous fits when a change of soap is made. Complexions of that character are temperamental. The condition is caused by sleepy sebaceous glands that aren't fulfilling the purpose for which they were intended. When functioning normally they spread upon the skin surface a thin film of oil. If the natural lubricant is missing, a state of desquamasets up, dead scales fluffing away faster than they should, leaving a harsh surface.

There's a way of deceiving a dry skin, not letting it realize that soap is being used. Begin with a cleansing by cosmetic oil. Make several applications, removing them with tissues. Have a three minute massage with a heavy cream. Dip a soft wash cloth in warm soapy water, place over the face, holding close with the hands. Repeat several times. Rinse with warm water, dry gently, use a foundation cosmetic to make the powder stick like a friend and a brother.

"The mirror makes a 'growth of light down on the cheeks appear heavier than it is."

More exercise out of doors, more butter on the bread, more cream in the coffee and plenty of drinking water will have a stimulating effect upon sebaceous glands.

If the skin is dry all over the body, add a little corn starch to the bathing water. After a gentle drying apply a bath oil which will do the disappearing act in a jiffy.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

TEMPT THE IMPOSSIBLE

IMAGINATION is one of the most vital assets of the superfine cardsman. It enables him to make some contracts that seem completely impossible to the less superlatively endowed. Upon occasion he will figure out that, if the missing cards are distributed in some one particular way, he has a long shot chance. Even that may depend upon his luring one or both of the defenders into most absurd mistakes. But at least it may be a chance, however remote its likelihood, and is better than merely giving up supinely.

	♠ A K Q ♥ A Q 6 ♦ 10 9 ♣ 8 6 4 3 2
♠ 9 7 6 2 ♥ J 8 5 ♦ K 8 5 4 3 2 ♣ None	W. N. E. S.	♠ 8 4 ♥ 10 9 7 ♦ Q J 7 ♣ A K Q 9 7

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Dbl
2 ♣	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

West would have liked to lead his partner's club suit, but could not, so selected the heart J. South counted up and saw three probable losers in clubs, plus one in diamonds. After thorough study, he saw a faint ray of light, a remote chance to avoid the diamond loser, if West happened to have four trumps and would get just a little bit careless on one trick, and if East, too, would make a particular slip. He then proceeded with his plan.

Winning the heart lead with dummy's A, he took two high spades and then led a club. East rattled off three tricks there, then made the mistake of not leading a fourth club—just what declarer hoped. He switched to his heart 10 for some unsound reason, perhaps hoping the J lead had been a singleton. That was taken with the Q, then the K was won. The declarer had false-carded the 3 and 4 on two of the heart tricks and now led the heart 2.

West had paid little attention, being irate at his partner for not returning a diamond after the clubs. He saw the dummy could over-ruff if he ruffed, so he discarded a diamond. North then did likewise, finessing the heart 2 against the chance that East was out of trumps. The diamond A, ruffed diamond 6 and two trumps made the contract.

If West bids and rebids hearts, and leads the heart Q against South's 4-Spades, why should declarer refuse to cover the honor with dummy's K?

THE DAILY STORY

WONDER BOY

Josephine Was a Sensitive Cow and a Simple Soul Like Hod Couldn't Be Expected to Psyhoanalyze Her Properly

By FRANK BENNETT

Dirge, who is the sheriff of Bass County and a good friend until a few days ago, says, "Hod," says he, "you are the eighth wonder of the world—a living man without a brain."

To this I can make no reply, for, besides him being my boss, it looks like he might be right. Listen to this:

The other day I went into the jail office, and there sat Dirge kinda bent over his desk with his fat face looking sadder than an empty house with all the windows busted out.

"I have a good mind to bust you in the eye."

"Hod," says he, "progress is a awful thing."

"Why," says I, "I am surprised to hear anyone say that, especially you who likes to ride in a auto better than to walk."

Hod, you don't understand. True, I like to ride in an auto, mainly on account of I am pretty heavy, and me feet just can't take it. But that ain't got nothing to do with the progress I am referring to. I am lamenting the progress in railroad transportation. They have took off the 7:05 passenger and put on that new Diesel-powered streamliner."

"Why," says I, " that is quite a improvement. It ain't every town the size of Roosebloom that has a train like that going through it. I cannot see nothing so awful about that."

Dirge sighed, folded his fat fingers acrost his stomach, and shut his eyes. "It is like this, Hod. Ollie Johnson, because he runs the town' dairy, is always willing to pay a extra good price for a good cow. 'Dirge,' says he, one day, 'I will give you eighty-four fifty for that Jersey cow of yours.'

" 'Nothing doing,' says I. 'Josephine gives a bucket of milk every night and morning. You can't touch her for less'n a hundred.'

"Well, we argued some, and finally he says, 'Dirge,' says he, 'I will give you a hundred if you are telling the truth. A week from Tuesday I will come over in the evening and watch you milk that cow. If she gives a bucketfull, I will pay you the hundred. If she don't —eighty-four, fifty.'

" 'That's a deal," I says. Well Hod, Josephine has quit giving a bucket of milk at night."

"That is a pity," I says, "but I don't see how progress has got anything to do with it."

"It is like this," he says sadly. "Josephine is sensitive, Hod, very sensitive. Of an evening, I always begin milking her about 7. Well, sir, she stands there looking out the window and watching for the 7:05. She liked that old train, Hod. You could see her eyes light up when it came in sight, and nothing made her happier than the sound of that steam whistle."

"Go on," I says.

"Well, the other day along comes that new streamliner. Now, I reckon one train looks about the same as another to a cow, but they sure can tell the difference between a steam whistle and a honk like that new Diesel has got. Everything was going along fine until that horn hooted. Then, Hod, as sure as I am setting here, when that horn honked, Josephine about had a fit. Not only did she about have a fit but she quit giving milk."

"Do tell," I says.

"Yes. That means, Hod, that I am going to have to sell her to Ollie for eighty-four fifty or break my word."

"But," I says, "why don't you try milking her earlier or later?"

Dirge shook his head and opened his eyes. "Hod, you don't know Josephine. She is as sensitive as a hair-spring of a wrist watch. When I milk her earlier, she don't do so well, and if I wait until the train has gone, she is so upset over the honk she don't give any milk a-tall."

The next day my wife and me went to Uncle Mayberry's over in Ace County for a few days on account it was butchering time and we always help him. While we was hanging up a pig, I heard a train whistle.

"Why", says I, "I never knowed there was a train hereabouts."

"There ain't," Uncle Mayberry says. "That is my boy Booley blowing a toy train whistle which he got for Christmas."

All of which gave me an idea, so I borrowed Booley's whistle.

We got home the same day Ollie Johnson was to watch Dirge milk Josephine.

Well, I hid behind the corner of the barn and waited for that new streamliner.

Pretty soon I saw it coming. I put the whistle to my mouth and waited. Just as the train got to the crossing, I blowed that whistle hard. It sounded exactly like the old train's whistle and it was loud enough so you couldn't hear the Diesel's horn toot. Then I beat it on account of I didn't want Ollie to see me there, it might make his suspicious.

The next morning, I says to Dirge, "Dirge," says I, "I am the fellow you are to thank for that steam-engine whistle effect last night while you were milking." I grinned and winked at him. "Maybe you could give me a little commission on that extra money you got for your cow?"

Then I pulled out Booley's whistle and blowed it right under his nose. Dirge just blinked at me for a minute; then he says, "Hod," says he, "I have a good mind to bust you in the eye. Just as Josephine gets used to that Deisel honk and begins giving her usual amount of milk, you come along and upset her with a train whistle and she's so excited at having the old train back she don't give no milk a-tall. Hod, you are the eighth wonder of the world."—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Dirge sighed, folded his fat fingers acrost his stomach, and shut his eyes. "It is like this, Hod. Ollie Johnson, because he runs the towr dairy, is always willing to pay a extra good price for a good cow. 'Dirge,' says he, one day, 'I will give you eighty-four fifty for that Jersey cow of yours.'

" 'Nothing doing,' says I. 'Josephine gives a bucket of milk every night and morning. You can't touch her for less'n a hundred.'

"Well, we argued some, and finally he says, 'Dirge,' says he, 'I will give you a hundred if you are telling the truth. A week from Tuesday I will come over in the evening and watch you milk that cow. If she gives a bucketfull, I will pay you the hundred. If she don't —eighty-four, fifty.'

" 'That's a deal," I says. Well Hod, Josephine has quit giving a bucket of milk at night."

"That is a pity," I says, "but I don't see how progress has got anything to do with it."

"It is like this," he says sadly. "Josephine is sensitive, Hod, very sensitive. Of an evening, I always begin milking her about 7. Well, sir, she stands there looking out the window and watching for the 7:05. She liked that old train, Hod. You could see her eyes light up when it came in sight, and nothing made her happier than the sound of that steam whistle."

"Go on," I says.

"Well, the other day along comes that new streamliner. Now, I reckon one train looks about the same as another to a cow, but they sure can tell the difference between a steam whistle and a honk like that new Diesel has got . Everything was going along fine until that horn hooted. Then, Hod, as sure as I am setting here, when that horn honked, Josephine about had a fit. Not only did she about have a fit but she quit giving milk."

"Do tell," I says.

"Yes. That means, Hod, that I am going to have to sell her to Olie for eighty-four fifty or break my word."

"But," I says, "why don't you try milking her earlier or later?"

Dirge shook his head and opened his eyes. "Hod, you don't know Josephine. She is as sensitive as a hair-spring of a wrist watch. When I milk her earlier, she don't do so well, and if I wait until the train has gone, she is so upset over the honk she don't give any milk a-tall."

The next day my wife and me went to Uncle Mayberry's over in Ace County for a few days on account it was butchering time and we always help him. While we was hanging up a pig, I heard a train whistle.

"Why", says I, "I never knowed there was a train hereabouts."

"There ain't," Uncle Mayberry says. "That is my boy Booley blowing a toy train whistle which he got for Christmas."

All of which gave me an idea, so I borrowed Booley's whistle.

We got home the same day Olie Johnson was to watch Dirge milk Josephine.

Well, I hid behind the corner of the barn and waited for that new streamliner.

Pretty soon I saw it coming. I put the whistle to my mouth and waited. Just as the train got to the crossing, I blowed that whistle hard. It sounded exactly like the old train's whistle and it was loud enough so you couldn't hear the Diesel's horn toot. Then I beat it on account of I didn't want Olie to see me there, it might make his suspicious.

The next morning, I says to Dirge, "Dirge," says I, "I am the fellow you are to thank for that steam-engine whistle effect last night while you were milking." I grinned and winked at him. "Maybe you could give me a little commission on that extra money you got for your cow?"

Then I pulled out Booley's whistle and blowed it right under his nose.

Dirge just blinked at me for a minute; then he says, "Hod," says he, "I have a good mind to bust you in the eye. Just as Josephine gets used to that Deisel honk and begins giving her usual amount of milk, you come along and upset her with a train whistle and she's so excited at having the old train back she don't give no milk a-tall. Hod, you are the eighth wonder of the world."—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Summer School Student Deserves Fair Chance, Educator Declares

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Some children who failed in one or more subjects at school this spring are attending summer school. Some others are studying under a tutor.

In some instances the child studying during the summer will be able to do the work of his regular grade in the fall. But in all too many cases too much will have been expected of the child. Either he was too far in arrears or his teacher failed to help him as she should to overcome his handicap.

As a rule, the teacher chosen for the child, however skillful she may be otherwise, overlooks the principle which is most essential to the success of the child she is employed to teach. She fails to set this child to learn what he can learn successfully. If, for example, the child has failed in fourth grade arithmetic or reading she will set him at doing more arithmetic and reading of this grade difficulty.

Make a Test

Perhaps he can succeed only at third or second grade level in arithmetic or even first grade level in reading. See then how almost hopeless are his undertakings and hers? Having failed day after day, week after week, and month after month at school, the poor discouraged child is set to do the same hard, hopeless tasks on which he had labored so long and painfully.

Let me suggest to the parent who is about to select a tutor for her child that she first find out how this teacher plans to proceed, whether she aims to have him work at the grade level on which he failed or at a level low enough for him to enjoy success and build upward from there. The tutor will not need to be an expert at testing to find how far down she must begin with him—rock bottom. All she needs is good common sense at checking on his skill in the fundamentals. However low she finds him, she will not make him feel ashamed. She will build hope and courage in him.

In some instances, a parent having chosen a tutor has had this tutor write me or some other psychologist (better to see one), sending some samples of the child's work or records of his achievements on a standard test. Always I am glad to offer any advice I feel able to give in such instances and to recommend types of materials, especially in reading and arithmetic.

Self-Teaching, Too

An occasional child, with a calm and patient parent, given the proper self-teaching material, provided he can be induced to work systematically for short periods daily, can make considerable progress without a tutor.

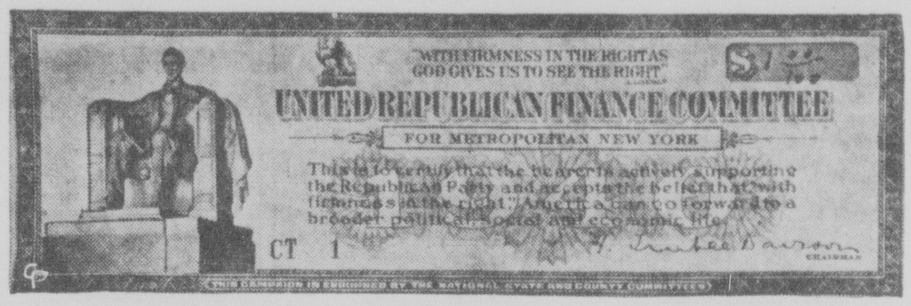
The poor reader above the third grade might gain most in learning to read if he were induced (even hired) to read aloud fifteen or twenty minutes a day to a child under six in order to entertain this younger child. Any parent or tutor wishing to have my personal reply to problems of this sort should write me at 235 East Forty-Fifth Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My daughter, eight years old, seems to be very jealous of her brother, four. Please advise.

A. Train the brother to let sister's things alone and not to be a tag-along. Don't compare them. Help the girl to enjoy achievements and feel more worthwhile. Be liberal to her with affection and approval. Always treat her as much older than the boy, since she is.

HERE'S DOLLAR PER DONOR WILLKIE CERTIFICATE



As a means of raising funds for the presidential campaign of Wendell Willkie, Republican nominee, this certificate is being sold to Willkie boosters for one dollar a copy. The candidate has said he desired many small contributions to his campaign in preference to large contributions from just a few.

Poison Ivy 'Shots' Being Developed

BALTIMORE, (AP)—Science is taking the holler out of holiday by hypodermic treatment of poison ivy, nightmare of vacationists.

Dr. Edmund L. Keeney, allergy department director of Johns Hopkins university, is testing all Baltimore city employes whose work exposes them to poison ivy. Positive reactors will get a course of treatments to prevent infection.

The method developed will be checked on the basis of Baltimore city tests, with the hope that vacationists can take anti-ivy shots and hie forth to the country with no fear of acquiring a complexion with the contours of a waffle.

In Search of Plants

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—George L. Fisher of Houston has traveled over Europe, Canada, Latin-America and the United States in search of new and interesting plants.

Fisher, 72-year-old secretary of the American Botanical Exchange, has supplied the Houston Museum of Natural History with almost its entire collection of botanical specimens. His private collection is one of the country's largest, with 30,000 species, ranging from tiny seaweeds to giant trees.

Farmers May Gain From Racing's Loss

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas agriculture department wants to give away 212 blooded stallions and jacks worth $115,000, purchased in 1934 out of the state's take from the then legal parimutual betting.

While racing thrived the department could purchase replacements for its breeding program. Breeding fees were retained by the state. But when the legislature knocked out legalized wagering the revenue ended and the stud animals were leased for $30 annually.

Rather than lease the animals, the department thinks they might as well be donated to state institutions or rural countries. These aristocrats of horsedom—some of them grand champions of former years—have put new and fine blood in Texas livestock. They have sired 35,00 colts worth $2,000,000.

It's Sporty Enough Without Dodging Shells

HAMPTON, Va., (AP) — Going salt water fishing? Then you had better check your charts. Seven ranges for aerial gunnery and bombing have been set aside for an indefinite period on the Virginia coast.

Summer School Student Deserves Fair Chance, Educator Declares

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Some children who failed in one or more subjects at school this spring are attending summer school. Some others are studying under a tutor.

In some instances the child studying during the summer will be able to do the work of his regular grade in the fall. But in all too many cases too much will have been expected of the child. Either he was too far in arrears or his teacher failed to help him as she should to overcome his handicap.

As a rule, the teacher chosen for the child, however skillful she may be otherwise, overlooks the principle which is most essential to the success of the child she is employed to teach. She fails to set this child to learn what he can learn successfully. If, for example, the child has failed in fourth grade arithmetic or reading she will set him at doing more arithmetic and reading of this grade difficulty.

Make a Test

Perhaps he can succeed only at third or second grade level in arithmetic or even first grade level in reading. See then how almost hopeless are his undertakings and hers? Having failed day after day, week after week, and month after month at school, the poor discouraged child is set to do the same hard, hopeless tasks on which he had labored so long and painfully.

Let me suggest to the parent who is about to select a tutor for her child that she first find out how this teacher plans to proceed, whether she aims to have him work at the grade level on which he failed or at a level low enough for him to enjoy success and build upward from there. The tutor will not need to be an expert at testing to find how far down she must begin with him—rock bottom. All she needs is good common sense at checking on his skill in the fundamentals. However low she finds him, she will not make him feel ashamed. She will build hope and courage in him.

In some instances, a parent having chosen a tutor has had this tutor write me or some other psychologist (better to see one), sending some samples of the child's work or records of his achievements on a standard test. Always I am glad to offer any advice I feel able to give in such instances and to recommend types of materials, especially in reading and arithmetic.

Self-Teaching, Too

An occasional child, with a calm and patient parent, given the proper self-teaching material, provided he can be induced to work systematically for short periods daily, can make considerable progress without a tutor.

The poor reader above the third grade might gain most in learning to read if he were induced (even hired) to read aloud fifteen or twenty minutes a day to a child under six in order to entertain this younger child. Any parent or tutor wishing to have my personal reply to problems of this sort should write me at 235 East Forty-Fifth Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My daughter, eight years old, seems to be very jealous of her brother, four. Please advise.

A. Train the brother to let sister's things alone and not to be a tag-along. Don't compare them. Help the girl to enjoy achievements and feel more worthwhile. Be liberal to her with affection and approval. Always treat her as much older than the boy, since she is.

In Search of Plants

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—George L. Fisher of Houston has traveled over Europe, Canada, Latin-America and the United States in search of new and interesting plants.

Fisher, 72-year-old secretary of the American Botanical Exchange, has supplied the Houston Museum of Natural History with almost its entire collection of botanical specimens. His private collection is one of the country's largest, with 30,000 species, ranging from tiny seaweeds to giant trees.

Farmers May Gain From Racing's Loss

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas agriculture department wants to give away 212 blooded stallions and jacks worth $115,000, purchased in 1934 out of the state's take from the then legal parimutual betting.

While racing thrived the department could purchase replacements for its breeding program. Breeding fees were retained by the state. But when the legislature knocked out legalized wagering the revenue ended and the stud animals were leased for $30 annually.

Rather than lease the animals, the department thinks they might as well be donated to state institutions or rural countries. These aristocrats of horsedom—some of them grand champions of former years—have put new and fine blood in Texas livestock. They have sired 35,00 colts worth $2,000,000.

Poison Ivy 'Shots' Being Developed

BALTIMORE, (AP)—Science is taking the holler out of holiday by hypodermic treatment of poison ivy, nightmare of vacationists.

Dr. Edmund L. Keeney, allergy department director of Johns Hopkins university, is testing all Baltimore city employes whose work exposes them to poison ivy. Positive reactors will get a course of treatments to prevent infection.

The method developed will be checked on the basis of Baltimore city tests, with the hope that vacationists can take anti-ivy shots and hie forth to the country with no fear of acquiring a complexion with the contours of a waffle.

Affections Do Not Take Well When Overdone

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

There is an unquestionable magic in being in love with a person near at hand. Love has a way of creeping through all the defenses and barricades.

Don't fool yourself by imagining you are indifferent to the person in love with you. You may kid yourself along, but you're bound to think the boy or girl is a person of exceptionally good taste. That's where the magic begins to creep through the barricades, when people are young, emotional and thrown together—we call it propinquity.

This accounts for so much falling in love when youngsters are thrown together in offices, shops, factories. The miracle has come about a million times, and it will happen a million times more.

Overdoing It

But the magic of propinquity fails when a man makes a girl too conspicious by unwelcome attentions; or, contrariwise, when a girl is too affectionate to the boy for whom she has fallen, and makes him the subject of amusement. Nothing brings about a cure for love so quickly as having anyone too gooey or sweet—it's like trying to eat your way through a five-pound box of candy.

When men and women are no longer young, a display of unwanted affection is a horror from which we turn. At the movies, in a bus, train or restaurant, you may have seen a woman trying to hold a vanishing love. Her hand seeks his. The man sits straight as a ramrod, grim endurance in every feature, or he shakes off the unwanted hand without ceremony.

Then there is the couple opposite you in a restaurant. He's decided to break it off, and she has begged to meet him at lunch. He orders cocktails and puts on a "best for you and best for me" expression as she tries desperately to bring back the past by endearments, tasteless to him as cold mutton gravy. Her overheard, "Won't you miss me a little", you'd rather not have heard. The man has a job to get through with and he wastes scant ceremony over it.

Women More Artistic

When women break off an outgrown love affair, they're more artistic about it than men. They're not above letting the axe fall at the beginning of a vacation, sparing themselves unpleasant scenes. They may write letters, saying something to the effect that they have discovered how unsuited they are and how much happier he will be with another type of girl, more domestic, more worldly, more intellectual, or whatever kind of "more" will flatter him, and make the break easier.

Out grown affection is an abhorrence that cannot be borne. But the unspoken love that comes in the morning of life, when a boy begins to wonder why she blushes, and her eyes brighten when she sees him in the elevator, or a girl wonders why he says so tenderly, "Miss Smith, will you take this letter, please", that's the unspoken word that creates magic before which barricades weaken and defenses blow down.

She's Taller

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend is five years younger than I am, and two inches taller, which is causing amused comment among my friends. I don't care in the least, but I would like to get some sensible person's views on the subject. We are planning to marry in a year, and truly love each other. I don't believe anything else matters do you?

FRED

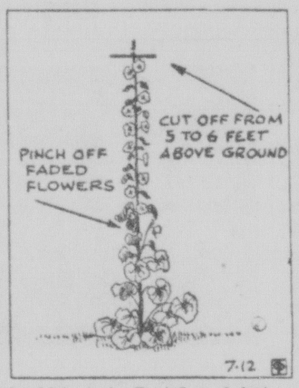
If you'll forgive me for saying so, my dear young man, I think you're looking for trouble if you permit comment of uninterested persons to disturb an ideal love affair.

Your girl friend is five years younger, which strikes me as a very happy medium. And she's two inches taller. What's the difference? In many happy marriages the wife is a head taller — and it's nobody's business. No problem here at all.

TODAY'S GARDENGRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Distributed by Central Press Association)



Although hollyhocks are old garden favorites they also nave undergone modernization. Today there are many new varieties. Some are semi-double, while others are double and have fringed flowers. There are also many new shades not heretofore seen in hollyhocks.

There are also ways and means of having better hollyhocks. For example, while some hollyhocks will grow to a height of 9 feet, they should be cut off at 5 or 6 feet, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Cutting back hollyhocks in this manner will produce flowers of extra size, instead of the usual long, spindly stalk or small blooms.

As soon as the flowers of the hollyhock fade, they should be pinched off at the stalk. Do not wait until the seed pods form. A profusion of additional blossoms will reward your alertness in disposing of the faded blooms.

After hollyhocks have flowered the stalks should be cut down to withing six inches of the ground.

Sprue Disease Not So Rare in Last Few Years

Deficiency Ailment Usually Considered as Belonging to the Tropics

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Having seen two cases of sprue and heard of another within the last six months in the temperate part of the United States, I have come to think perhaps it is not so rare as is generally stated. It has been considered a tropical disease, is common in Southern Asia, the Malay Archipelago, Ceylon and the Philippines. Occasionally cases have been reported from the Southern states—from the Gulf region, the Carolinas, Georgia and Tennessee.

The symptoms of sprue are diarrhea, sore mouth, anemia and great emaciation.

A number of theories as to the causation have been proposed, though none have stuck in the face of critical examination. It is generally considered as a deficiency disease, because of the fact that it improves on liver extract, a high vitamin diet and a peculiar arrangement of diet with low carbohydrate intake, except for emphasis on certain specific items of diet such as bananas or strawberries. Unquestionably the condition predisposes to intestinal parasites.

Diet at Fault

It has something to do with a diet too rich in starchy foods. And in the tropics, this kind of diet is, of course, the regular thing.

Visitors to the tropics should be warned that if they adopt the almost exclusive carbohydrate diet which is customary there they are extremely likely to develop sprue. Light skinned natives and blonde, middle-aged, female Nordics among the visitors are especially likely to be affected.

Liver extract, following the work of Castle and Rhodes in Puerto Rico, is of outstanding value in treatment. It should be continued for some time after the symptoms have abated; no patient in the series of cases studied by Miller and Barker discontinued this liver treatment without suffering a relapse.

In diet, various somewhat fantastic recommendation are made. An exclusive strawberry diet was once recommended as so effective as to be a diagnostic test. A later idea is that all carbohydrates should be withdrawn from the diet except for bananas, which should be eaten a dozen or two a day. Other physicians do not emphasize these points but restrict carbohydrates almost as in diabetes and prescribe a diet high in meat, eggs, and milk. All fatty and starchy foods should deleted.

Should Eat Plenty

That you can gain weight by eating plenty is abundantly demonstrated in the experience of those who used to treat tuberculosis in the old days when fattening cures were in vogue It was no trick at all to put a lean, emaciated patient to bed and by giving him three good, hearty, regular meals a day, and an egg-nog or a little extra meal in the middle of the morning, the middle of the afternoon, and before going to sleep at night, to have him put on thirty or forty pounds within six months

So I know it can be done What the underweight patient must do is to steel himself to eating without an appetite. Remember that an appetite is a luxury; it is not a necessity. You can eat without an appetite.

Breakfast: Casaba melon; bacon and eggs; buttered toast; crullers; coffee with cream and sugar.

Mid-morning: Glass of milk, half cream.

Mid-afternoon: Eggnog.

Evening: Ice cream.

Approximate value—4,000 calories.

Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Daley, head of the general staff of the Department of Puerto Rico, is shown studying a map as the United States strengthens the Caribbean Gibraltar rapidly becoming one of America's most important outposts. Watching is Lieutenant Colonel Thomas J. Hanley, assistant chief of staff.

IN THE ARMY NOW—Businessmen who signed up for a thirty-day training course in the Army are shown (bottom) at Plattsburg, N. Y., military camp paying up the $46.50 assessed for subsistence. They are but a few of the several hundred taking the preparedness courses in military work at their own expense. Top, clad in their serviceable dungarees the men march off to their tents.

Dies Discovers Plot To Sabotage Warship

AUSTIN, Tex., July 11 (AP)—Rep. Dies (D-Tex) paused here in an investigation of the Kyffhaeuserbund—an organization of old imperial German army men—to report discovery of a sabotage plot against an American man-o'-war under construction in the Philadelphia navy yard.

Dies said agents of his Congressional committee investigating un-Americanism uncovered the plot. He did not elaborate.

The committee chairman, who has warned industrialists to guard against sabotage, said other members of the committee were conducting investigations in other states.

SUSPECT—Caesar Kroeger (above), a building superintendent, is booked at New York police headquarters on charge of possessing guns without a permit. The day's second longest flight was made by 17-year-old Richard H. Johnson of Los Angeles, Calif., youngest contestant. Johnson sailed ninety-two miles.

Mental Hygiene Clinics Advocated for Children

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 11 (AP)—Speaking before the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, Miss Lavinia nEgle freely advocated establishment of mental hygiene clinics for children in Maryland.

Miss Engle, assistant director of field operations, social security board, asserted it was not "spoilt children" who filled juvenile courts "but children who had been repressed."

Roy Breg, executive secretary of Allied Youth, an organization specializing in "alcoholic education," told women that forty-nine per cent of high school seniors had begun to drink.

He said alcoholism was one of the major problems in this country. His organization, he added, was fighting the use of alcoholics by school children by "straight-forward education," showing how drink leads to crime and other offenses.

Another speaker was Mrs. H. Ross Coppage, chairman of the state membership committee. She praised Maryland as the only state in which schools were not closed or teachers' salaries cut during the depression.

Pays Death Penalty

COLUMBUS, O., July 11 (AP)—With no display of emotion, Monroe Bohannon, 34-year old Cincinnati negro, died in the Ohio penitentiary electric chair here for the holdup slaying of Joseph Peters, a shopkeeper.

Dr. George W. Kell, prison physician, pronounced Bohannon dead after the second shock at 9:08 p. m. Prison officials said it was the first time in thirteen years a second application of current was necessary.

Little Drops of Water

SILVERTON, Ore., (AP) — T. M. Lukens, variety store operator, tossed the packings from a shipment of South American dishes out at the rear of his store. A few days later a wheat stalk grew from the trash. Lukens saved the grains and planted them the following year, gathering nearly a bushel of wheat. He has sowed three-fourths of an acre this year and predicts a large yield.

Say It Isn't So

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP) — Marriage license clerks here put in a busy day explaining that there was nothing to a rumor that no more permits to wed would be issued in Kentucky until after the war.

"We haven't even added a defense tax yet," they said.

Although it was called the War of 1812, most of the fighting took place in 1813 and 1814.

Girlish "Crush" On Teacher Is Wisely Checked

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"The person who has had the greatest influence on my life is my English teacher, Miss Nettie W. While she has never paid any more attention to me than she has to other girls in her class, I adore her.

"When school closed I took my graduation money and sent her a gift, a lovely silver bowl. But she returned it to me, saying she was glad that I had enjoyed her classes but she could not take so valuable a present from a pupil.

"Every time I call her up I get the same word from her family, that she is either out or busy. Why won't she see me? I think of her constantly and as not interested in any of the picnics or parties that my graduating class has organized since graduation. Some of the girls laugh at me in my affection for 'Dear Teacher.' Mother has asked me to write you about it. STELLA.

Susceptible Stage

The trouble with you, my dear Stella, is that you seem to be suffering from a "crush" on your teacher. Lots of girls have that until "Mr. Right" comes along. Such girls are probably of the type that passes up parties and boys to make good grades in school. In this very susceptible stage of emotional development, they hang their affection on "Dear Teacher."

Evidently Miss Nettie knows all about "crushes" and doesn't wish to encourage you in wasting your affections on her. Believe me, that sort of devotion is not the most sensible thing in which a young girl may indulge. Go out with the rest of the group that were graduated in your class. Go to their parties, their picnics, cook hot dogs in the open.

Lots of girls have had "crushes" on their Miss Netties, Miss Marys, or Miss Janes, and they've got over these just as soon as the right sort of boy tells them how lovely are their eyes, or that they're good sports, or that their bathing suits are becoming. Listen to these compliments, my dear, and stop worrying over your teacher.

Parties Suggested

You don't tell me how you live, whether in an apartment or a home with a backyard. If you happen to have a backyard bigger than a pocket handkerchief, get a few fireproof bricks and stones and build an open-air fireplace. You will have to have fireproof brick for the chimney lining, otherwise any old brick will do. Give a few parties to your classmates. Any girl can be popular if she invites her friends in for one of these cooked-in-the open suppers. At the moment I'm engaged in building one myself, which may account for my enthusiasm.

If your plans for hospitality go no farther than a flat, pack a basket with a few picnic accessories, get up a party of your classmates and go to a public park where these open-air fireplaces abound. And, stop worrying over "Dear Teacher."

Little Drops of Water

SILVERTON, Ore., (AP) — T. M. Lukens, variety store operator, tossed the packings from a shipment of South American dishes out at the rear of his store. A few days later a wheat stalk grew from the trash. Lukens saved the grains and planted them the following year, gathering nearly a bushel of wheat. He has sowed three-fourths of an acre this year and predicts a large yield.

Say It Isn't So

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP) — Marriage license clerks here put in a busy day explaining that there was nothing to a rumor that no more permits to wed would be issued in Kentucky until after the war.

"We haven't even added a defense tax yet," they said.

Although it was called the War of 1812, most of the fighting took place in 1813 and 1814.

Girlish "Crush" On Teacher Is Wisely Checked

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"The person who has had the greatest influence on my life is my English teacher, Miss Nettie W. While she has never paid any more attention to me than she has to other girls in her class, I adore her.

"When school closed I took my graduation money and sent her a gift, a lovely silver bowl. But she returned it to me, saying she was glad that I had enjoyed her classes but she could not take so valuable a present from a pupil.

"Every time I call her up I get the same word from her family, that she is either out or busy. Why won't she see me? I think of her constantly and as not interested in any of the picnics or parties that my graduating class has organized since graduation. Some of the girls laugh at me in my affection for 'Dear Teacher.' Mother has asked me to write you about it. STELLA.

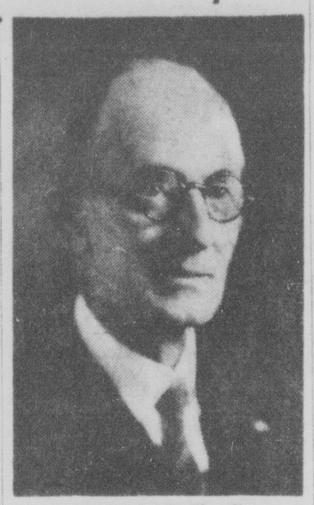
Benjamin Sincell, 71, Marks 50 Years As Publisher of Oakland Weekly



Benjamin H. Sincell

OAKLAND, July 11 — Today represents the completion of fifty years of service for Benjamin H. Sincell, editor of the Oakland Republican. Publishing his first newspaper upon his twenty-first birthday he completes a half-century of newspaper work today on his seventy-first birthday.

Mr. Sincell was born July 11, 1869, in Frederick, a son of the late Charles H. and Leah Richardson Sincell. He moved to Oakland while a lad, and during his young manhood was employed in newspaper offices in Preston county, W. Va., both at Terra Alta and Kingwood. Later he was employed by Capt. James A. Hayden, founder and owner of The Republican at that time.

First Paper at 21

Deciding that newspaper work was to be his career, he purchased The Republican and issued his first newspaper on his twenty-first birthday, which was fifty years ago today.

Since that time, he has been actively identified with the entire county in promoting and supporting many activities for the community welfare. Since becoming editor, Mr. Sincell has improved his newspaper office until today it is considered one of the best equipped in this section. It has two linotypes, a Kelly automatic job press, a new Cox-o-type newspaper press just installed this past April, many kinds of types and all other machinery and equipment necessary for a modern printing plant.

He married Lillian M. Morris, of Kingwood, on October 16, 1895, and they have continuously resided in Oakland since. They now live on Second street in a house which they built in 1912.

Mrs. Sincell is a member of the Lutheran church, Masonic lodge, Knights of Pythias lodge and the Oakland Rotary club. He has four children, C. Morris Sincell, Fairmont, W. Va.; Donald R. Sincell, Oakland, associate editor; Mrs. Elmer Haulenbeek, McKeesport, Pa., and Mrs. Robert Ruckert, Washington. A daughter Mary (Mrs. Eldred Roberts) died several years ago.

Citizens Extend Congratulations

About fifty merchants, business and professional men of the community extended congratulations in a page advertisement in The Republican which was a complete surprise to the editor.

A comment of the associates in the paper today stated: "He has efficiently edited and blue penciled many a story of his associates for several years, and has deleted items which they have often considered of hot news value, but this time they have completely kept this part of the paper hidden from him until actually off the press today.

"As proof of this assertion, if any proof is needed, is the fact that his photos have eventually found space in this paper, something that has never been accomplished heretofore".

The photos were those of Mr. Sincell at twenty-one years of age and at his present age.

McNulty Is Named President over T. Donald Wilson

Kight Re-Elected Treasurer; Cumberland Gets 1941 Convention

LONACONING, July 11 — The Maryland State Firemen's Association tonight elected John McNulty its new persident and selected Cumberland as the scene of next years convention.

McNulty, who succeeds Percy S. T. Reinwall, defeated Ronald B. Duke, of Leonardtown, and T. Donald Wilson, of Barton. Duke received 135 votes, while Wilson garnered only eighty-five.

Both defeated candidates moved that McNulty's selection be made unanimous, which was done.

Kight ReElected

Western Maryland, although losing out in its attempts to elect Wilson to the presidency, managed to re-elect Elmer F. Kight, of Frostburg, as treasurer by a comfortable margin.

Kight defeated William J. Kerbin Jr., of Snow Hill, by a vote of 310 to 285. His election was likewise made unanimous.

Other Officers

Unopposed officers named were Robert A. Bennett, Frederick, first vice-president; Marc Bryant, Denton, second vice-president; B. R. Benson III, Cockeysville, re-elected secretary; the Rev. James W. Minter, Hereford, re-elected chaplain; and Leo M. Moore, Havre de Grace, trustee for five years.

McNulty, the new association's head, is president of the Continental Feed Company of Baltimore and a member of the board of directors at the Lintchicum Heights Volunteer Fire Department. He is active in the American Legion.

McNulty gained prominence back in 1916 when President Woodrow Wilson selected him to make a good-will tour of the country.

Cumberland Chosen

Cumberland's bid for next year's convention of the association was extended by Col. J. Nelson Russler, merchant and former member of the Allegany county board of commissioners, on behalf of the two major hotels and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Queen City was selected when it obtained 245 out of 508 votes. Other contenders were Betterton, which got 170 votes, and North Beach, which was favored by 165. The choice was later made unanimous.

In a stirring plea for the association to meet in Cumberland in 1941, Russler lauded the city's hospitality and called attention to its facilities for handling such a large group. Telegrams urging Cumberland's selection were read from Mayor Harry Irvine and several business firms.

Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg and Cumberland attorney, seconded Colonel Russler's suggestion.

Resolutions Adopted

Tonight's session also adopted resolutions urging creation of a state fire marshal's office, independent of the state insurance commissioner; adoption of a state-wide fire prevention inspection code; and enactment of state-wide legislation regulating manufacture, storage and sale of fireworks.

Terific opposition to the fireworks resolution was offered by the Eastern Shore delegation, but the motion carried.

Heroism Award

The George L. Colburn cup, awarded annually for the most heroic deed performed by a fireman, went to Bernard P. Odum, of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department, who rescued a mental patient from a well into which he had fallen Dec. 17, 1939.

Talks were made by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, and John White, persident of the Prince Georges county delegation in the House of Delegates.

Tonight's meeting was a tumultuous one, with bands blaring and other demonstrations for the various candidates for office. Oldtimers said it was the most colorful meeting in the history of the association.

Nominations for state offices held the spot at this morning's session, but little or no major change took place, although it had been rumored that a dark horse was to enter the race for president.

Discuss Recommendations

With nominations out of the way, the delegates went into a lengthy discussion on recommendations made last night by the fire prevention-inspection committee, but only one reached the point of clearing. That was that members of the association offer their services to Governor Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland and to the federal government in combatting sabotage and un-American activities.

The association also voted to go on record in favor of a bill now in Congress requiring the registration of all aliens. Such action was ordered dispatched to the Maryland representatives in Congress, together with the news that the association likewise was back of the national defense act 100 per cent.

The greatest discussion was on the disaster relief plan proposed by Chief Just, director of the fire service extension course at the Uni-

Benjamin H. Sincell

OAKLAND, July 11 — Today represents the completion of fifty years of service for Benjamin H. Sincell, editor of the Oakland Republican. Publishing his first newspaper upon his twenty-first birthday he completes a half-century of newspaper work today on his seventy-first birthday.

Mr. Sincell was born July 11, 1869, in Frederick, a son of the late Charles H. and Leah Richardson Sincell. He moved to Oakland while a lad, and during his young manhood was employed in newspaper offices in Preston county, W. Va., both at Terra Alta and Kingwood. Later he was employed by Capt. James A. Hayden, founder and owner of The Republican at that time.

First Paper at 21

Deciding that newspaper work was to be his career, he purchased The Republican and issued his first newspaper on his twenty-first birthday, which was fifty years ago today.

Since that time, he has been actively identified with the entire county in promoting and supporting many activities for the community welfare. Since becoming editor, Mr. Sincell has improved his newspaper office until today it is considered one of the best equipped in this section. It has two linotypes, a Kelly automatic job press, a new Cox-o-type newspaper press just installed this past April, many kinds of types and all other machinery and equipment necessary for a modern printing plant.

He married Lillian M. Morris, of Kingwood, on October 16, 1895, and they have continuously resided in Oakland since. They now live on Second street in a house which they built in 1912.

Mrs. Sincell is a member of the Lutheran church, Masonic lodge, Knights of Pythias lodge and the Oakland Rotary club. He has four children, C. Morris Sincell, Fairmont, W. Va.; Donald R. Sincell, Oakland, associate editor; Mrs. Elmer Haulenbeek, McKeesport, Pa.; and Mrs. Robert Ruckert, Washington. A daughter Mary (Mrs. Eldred Roberts) died several years ago.

Citizens Extend Congratulations

About fifty merchants, business and professional men of the community extended congratulations in a page advertisement in The Republican which was a complete surprise to the editor.

A comment of the associates in the paper today stated: "He has efficiently edited and blue penciled many a story of his associates for several years, and has deleted items which they have often considered of hot news value, but this time they have completely kept this part of the paper hidden from him until actually off the press today.

"As proof of this assertion, if any proof is needed, is the fact that his photos have eventually found space in this paper, something that has never been accomplished heretofore".

The photos were those of Mr. Sincell at twenty-one years of age and at his present age.

McNulty Is Named President over T. Donald Wilson

Kight Re-Elected Treasurer; Cumberland Gets 1941 Convention

LONACONING, July 11 — The Maryland State Firemen's Association tonight elected John McNulty its new persident and selected Cumberland as the scene of next years convention.

McNulty, who succeeds Percy S. T. Reinwall, defeated Ronald B. Duke, of Leonardtown, and T. Donald Wilson, of Barton. Duke received 135 votes, while Wilson garnered only eighty-five.

Both defeated candidates moved that McNulty's selection be made unanimous, which was done.

Kight ReElected

Western Maryland, although losing out in its attempts to elect Wilson to the presidency, managed to re-elect Elmer F. Kight, of Frostburg, as treasurer by a comfortable margin.

Kight defeated William J. Kerbin Jr., of Snow Hill, by a vote of 310 to 285. His election was likewise made unanimous.

Other Officers

Unopposed officers named were Robert A. Bennett, Frederick, first vice-president; Marc Bryant, Denton, second vice-president; B. R. Benson III, Cockeysville, re-elected secretary; the Rev. James W. Minter, Hereford, re-elected chaplain; and Leo M. Moore, Havre de Grace, trustee for five years.

McNulty, the new association's head, is president of the Continental Feed Company of Baltimore and a member of the board of directors at the Lintchicum Heights Volunteer Fire Department. He is active in the American Legion.

McNulty gained prominence back in 1916 when President Woodrow Wilson selected him to make a good-will tour of the country.

Cumberland Chosen

Cumberland's bid for next year's convention of the association was extended by Col. J. Nelson Russler, merchant and former member of the Allegany county board of commissioners, on behalf of the two major hotels and the Chamber of Commerce.

The Queen City was selected when it obtained 245 out of 508 votes. Other contenders were Betterton, which got 170 votes, and North Beach, which was favored by 165. The choice was later made unanimous.

In a stirring plea for the association to meet in Cumberland in 1941, Russler lauded the city's hospitality and called attention to its facilities for handling such a large group. Telegrams urging Cumberland's selection were read from Mayor Harry Irvine and several business firms.

Edward J. Ryan, Frostburg and Cumberland attorney, seconded Colonel Russler's suggestion.

Resolutions Adopted

Tonight's session also adopted resolutions urging creation of a state fire marshal's office, independent of the state insurance commissioner; adoption of a state-wide fire prevention inspection code; and enactment of state-wide legislation regulating manufacture, storage and sale of fireworks.

Terific opposition to the fireworks resolution was offered by the Eastern Shore delegation, but the motion carried.

Heroism Award

The George L. Colburn cup, awarded annually for the most heroic deed performed by a fireman, went to Bernard P. Odum, of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department, who rescued a mental patient from a well into which he had fallen Dec. 17, 1939.

Talks were made by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, and John White, persident of the Prince Georges county delegation in the House of Delegates.

Tonight's meeting was a tumultuous one, with bands blaring and other demonstrations for the various candidates for office. Old-timers said it was the most colorful meeting in the history of the association.

Nominations for state offices held the spot at this morning's session, but little or no major change took place, although it had been rumored that a dark horse was to enter the race for president.

Discuss Recommendations

With nominations out of the way, the delegates went into a lengthy discussion on recommendations made last night by the fire prevention-inspection committee, but only one reached the point of clearing. That was that members of the association offer their services to Governor Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland and to the federal government in combatting sabotage and un-American activities.

The association also voted to go on record in favor of a bill now in Congress requiring the registration of all aliens. Such action was ordered dispatched to the Maryland representatives in Congress, together with the news that the association likewise was back of the national defense act 100 per cent.

The greatest discussion was on the disaster relief plan proposed by Chief Just, director of the fire service extension course at the Uni-

Petersburg Citizens To Vote Today on Tax Levy Increase

Corporate Limits Change also Up In Special Vote

22-Acre Tract, Subject to Flooding, Would Be Put Outside City

PETERSBURG, W. Va. July 11 — A special election will be held here tomorrow on proposals to lay an additional levy to raise the sum of $1,420 for general current purposes and to change the corporation limits and abandon a plot of twenty-two acres.

Under the municipal levy proposal, Classes 1, 2 and 4 would be taxed to raise the $1,420 estimated needed for general current purposes. State law provides that levies above the maximum set by the statute must be approved by the voters.

Class 1 valuation for the town is set at $352,395, and a tax of 4¾ cents per $100 is suggested; Class 2 valuation is set at $361,555, and the proposed rate of tax would be 9½ cents; and Class 4 valuation is set at $456,617, and the proposed rate would rise to 19 cents.

The proposal to change the town limits comes as the result of several law suits in the past years against the city.

The 22-acre tract lies south of Johnson Run, and in seasons of high flood water, the swollen run often backs up and causes damage to property owners living on the edge of the city. The property owners then sometimes bring damage suits against the mayor and council. Voters are, therefore, called on to vote the 22-acre out of the city to avoid litigation in the future.

Owen S. Schaffer and D. L. Judy have been appointed commissioners to hold the election. The polls, which will be located in the council chambers, will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

"What would your personal reaction be to remaining in the White House for another term?"

that there were "several" fatalities, along with an undetermined number of wounded — "several" fatalities in each of the areas of southwest, southeast and northeast England.

(For several days, the British have avoided giving specific information as to the slain. But it was clear, from the fact that "several" dead were acknowledged in three separate areas, that this time the total of fatalities was considerable).

Tonight, Alfred Duff Cooper, the minister of information said in a radio speech that "some people are disappointed that fuller accounts are not given in the press as to where bombs have fallen and how many people were hurt."

"But," he added, "unfortunately the enemy read our press; the enemy listened to our broadcasts and nothing that is printed or said escapes the eyes and ears of the enemy."

The damage done in the widespread Nazi attacks was not estimated in the aggregate. In the northeast area alone, however, it was reported that three bombs which killed several persons made some thirty to forty houses uninhabitable.

Inn Cut in Half

In another town, an inn was cut in half and a number of workmen's homes were smashed by bombs which apparently had been intended for an objective nearby.

The night raid in the southeast employed about twenty German planes, but it was said they were kept at a great height by anti-aircraft fire.

There, it was stated that a "number" of persons were killed or wounded. Fifteen high explosive bombs were dropped; one fell on an air post and killed all occupants.

The attackers came over in three waves of eight planes. British fighters were reported to have destroyed four of them.

The British reported a successful raid of their own on the German held airdrome at Boulogne, France, saying five German aircraft had been smashed there.

The almost continuous Nazi attacks on England appeared to be intended to master the British skies before the last test for England itself.

Efficiency Kept Low

Fast-rising British fighting planes and coordinated anti-aircraft fire kept the invaders high in the air and low in bombing efficiency.

Raids this week have been marked for the first time by sizeable fighting plane escorts for the German bombers, as though Germany were preparing for a full-dress aerial offensive.

Attacks "infinitely stronger" than those thus far are expected, this slip

Accidental Death Is Jury Verdict In Fatal Fall

Body of Gilbert Smoot, Missing Since Friday, Found near Romney

ROMNEY, W. Va., July 11 — A Hampshire county coroner's jury today deliberated only a few minutes before returning a verdict of accidental death in the case of Gilbert W. Smoot, 38-year-old Romney WPA worker, whose body was found along the South Branch near here last night.

Smoot had been missing from his home since Friday morning, May 5.

The jury found that Smoot "came to his death between the morning of Friday, July 5, and Sunday, July 7, by accident, by walking or falling over the precipice at Yellow Bank, just west of Romney." Magistrate George H. Johnson presided at the inquest.

The body was discovered by Romney Police Chief Virgil Hanlin and two volunteer searchers, Raymond Michael and Kenneth Bailey, after Smoot's coat and hat were found atop the embankment.

A strange feature of the case was that the coat and hat were seen on the precipice near the high school, Sunday and again on Tuesday, although the parties seeing them thought nothing of it at the time. But when the searchers arrived last night, the garments had disappeared.

Smoot fell over fifty feet and suffered a fractured skull, a broken neck, a severed spinal chord and a broken right arm, according to Dr. W. L. Riheldaffer, district health officer. The body was badly decomposed when it was found.

State Police assisted Chief Hanlin in the investigation.

The body was identified by his family and was taken immediately to Salem cemetery, near Slanesville, for burial.

He was a son of the late Judson Smoot and a native of Slanesville.

Petersburg Citizens To Vote Today on Tax Levy Increase

Corporate Limits Change also Up In Special Vote

22-Acre Tract, Subject to Flooding, Would Be Put Outside City

PETERSBURG, W. Va., July 11 — A special election will be held here tomorrow on proposals to lay an additional levy to raise the sum of $1,420 for general current purposes and to change the corporation limits and abandon a plot of twenty-two acres.

Under the municipal levy proposal, Classes 1, 2 and 4 would be taxed to raise the $1,420 estimated needed for general current purposes. State law provides that levies above the maximum set by the statute must be approved by the voters.

Class 1 valuation for the town is set at $352,395, and a tax of 4½ cents per $100 is suggested; Class 2 valuation is set at $361,555, and the proposed rate of tax would be 9½ cents; and Class 4 valuation is set at $456,617, and the proposed rate would rise to 19 cents.

The proposal to change the town limits comes as the result of several law suits in the past years against the city.

The 22-acre tract lies south of Johnson Run, and in seasons of high flood water, the swollen run often backs up and causes damage to property owners living on the edge of the city. The property owners then sometimes bring damage suits against the mayor and council. Voters are, therefore, called on to vote the 22-acre out of the city to avoid litigation in the future.

Owen S. Schaffer and D. L. Judy have been appointed commissioners to hold the election. The polls, which will be located in the council chambers, will be open from 6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.

"You know as much about that as I do," she replied smilingly.

"What about the third term?" queried a forthright interviewer.

"I don't interfere in my husband's affairs," she answered.

"What would your personal reaction be to remaining in the White House for another term?"

"When you have been in public life as long as I have," she said, "it is not what you want to do but what you have to do."

English Ruler

that there were "several" fatalities, along with an undetermined number of wounded — "several" fatalities in each of the areas of southwest, southeast and northeast England.

(For several days, the British have avoided giving specific information as to the slain. But it was clear, from the fact that "several" dead were acknowledged in three separate areas, that this time the total of fatalities was considerable).

Tonight, Alfred Duff Cooper, the minister of information said in a radio speech that "some people are disappointed that fuller accounts are not given in the press as to where bombs have fallen and how many people were hurt."

"But," he added, "unfortunately the enemy read our press; the enemy listened to our broadcasts and nothing that is printed or said escapes the eyes and ears of the enemy."

The damage done in the widespread Nazi attacks was not estimated in the aggregate. In the northeast area alone, however, it was reported that three bombs which killed several persons made some thirty to forty houses uninhabitable.

Inn Cut in Half

In another town, an inn was cut in half and a number of workmen's homes were smashed by bombs which apparently had been intended for an objective nearby.

The night raid in the southeast employed about twenty German planes, but it was said they were kept at a great height by anti-aircraft fire.

There, it was stated that a "number" of persons were killed or wounded. Fifteen high explosive bombs were dropped; one fell on an air post and killed all occupants.

The attackers came over in three waves of eight planes. British fighters were reported to have destroyed four of them.

The British reported a successful raid of their own on the German held airdrome at Boulogne, France, saying five German aircraft had been smashed there.

The almost continuous Nazi attacks on England appeared to be intended to master the British skies before the last test for England itself.

Efficiency Kept Low

Fast-rising British fighting planes and coordinated anti-aircraft fire kept the invaders high in the air and low in bombing efficiency.

Raids this week have been marked for the first time by sizeable fighting plane escorts for the German bombers, as though Germany were preparing for a full-dress aerial offensive.

Attacks "infinitely stronger" than those thus far are expected by official circles in "the very near future."

While the British-German struggle crescendoed on the aerial front, there were other major developments linked with Britain's fight for life:

1.—Foreign affairs undersecretary R. A. Butler told the House of Commons that success in Britain's attempts to make friends with Soviet Russia has "appeared more likely since March when the U. S. S. R. made a friendly approach to the government and proposed resumption of trade negotiations." He voiced the hope that discussions undertaken at Moscow by Sir Stafford Cripps, the British ambassador, "may remove the danger of the Soviet government working either economically or militarily against Great Britain in the interests of Germany."

Britain Faces Food Crisis

2.—Minister of Agriculture R. S. Hudson acknowledged that Britain faces a food crisis immeasurably more serious than in 1914 and declared that food production must be increased in the next year to save millions from hunger. To reports from Berlin of growing German success in the German-styled "starvation blockade" of Britain, Hudson replied, however, that the British would continue to eat this winter.

3.—Minister without portfolio Arthur Greenwood disclosed in the House that an organization is being formed to replace the British - French purchasing board under the minister of shipping to handle increasing purchases from the United States.

4.—Lord Craigavon, prime minister of Northern Ireland, informed the House of Commons at Belfast that Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire had definitely rejected proposals for joint defense of the two parts of Ireland. Britain, of which northern Ireland is a part, thus appears ready to move to the defense of Ireland only when and if the de Valera government calls for help. Ireland has been mentioned as a likely point of German landings.

5.—Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax told the House of Lords that Britain never had pressed Egypt to declare war on Italy—that such reports were "enemy propaganda."

6.—The admiralty announced an Italian destroyer and "a hulk of the type generally used as a depot or store ship" were sunk in a British air raid yesterday on an Italian harbor in Sicily.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by

MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

LINDA SAT up quickly, throwing off the blankets, as she detected the sickening scent of perfume mingled with chloroform which came to her in engulfing waves.

She knew that perfume, sweet and sharp even above the chloroform. It was the same scent that Mina Nevins, the actress, had worn earlier in Robert's apartment.

But how could Mina gain entrance to this room? And why? To create a scene because she was jealous over an imaginary romance on Robert's part was one thing. To plan murder was something else.

While she thought, she was reaching for the cord in the lamp by the studio couch. When the room, familiar and comfortable, came back from the strange darkness she ran across the floor to the windows. There must be air, tons of it. Then she noticed that the window which she had left wide was closed. She whirled, suddenly afraid that someone was in the room. Someone strange and frightening.

Caroline wakened and sat up drowsily, but Linda had no time to explain. The door which led from the apartment into the outer hall was wide open, as though someone had left in a hurry.

Linda leaned over the railing, gazing down, down, down the stairs. Then she caught her breath. The outer door was opening, far below, and someone was leaving. It was too far down to try to reach the person. She went back to her own apartment, explained to Caroline, and began to pull on her slim silk stockings. "So it all comes down to this—someone tried to murder us or, anyway, frighten us, and that's Mina's enchanting odor. She should have been more tactful. How she got in here I don't know, but she must have left in a hurry when I started to wake up. I'm going to a hotel for the night, Caroline, and so are you. I'm afraid of this place—"

Even as she spoke the wind blew the curtains against the windows and a dead branch of a dark tree swung against the window pane. The chloroform odor, as though wafted inside from beyond, seemed stronger.

"Whoever was here won't come back tonight," Caroline said, examining the locks on the door. "Nothing was tampered with. But she couldn't come through the balcony, could she?"

Suddenly Caroline sat straighter. "I have an idea! Mina was with Terry tonight. It's just half-past two now. We'll check and see how long ago he left her." She reached for the telephone, dialed a familiar number, waited.

The dismal sounds of a telephone ringing in an empty apartment came echoing over the wires. She waited. Maybe Terry was sound asleep. Maybe he wasn't home yet. She was ready to replace the receiver when his voice, wide awake and vibrant, answered.

"Terry?"

"Hello! What are you doing at this hour?"

"Getting frightened. Listen, Terry, how long ago did you leave Mina Nevins. Think hard—even down to the minute."

"Say! Is this nice, calling a man just as he opens his own door to come home to ask him when he said goodby? But I'll humor you. I left her ten minutes ago in a taxicab with the rest of the people who were in our group. She was being taken straight home. I've got the number, if you want it." His voice was amused, curious.

"Oh, please, Terry, what is it?"

He repeated it, then his voice sobered. "What is this? A quiz section? Why are you so curious about the theatrical dame?"

"I'll tell you tomorrow. Telephones are nice because so many people can listen. Goodby, Terry."

Caroline laughed as she hung up the receiver. "That call served two purposes. Terry will have lunch or tea with me tomorrow. Wait! And now I'm calling the Mina person. Or maybe you had better. You know her voice."

Linda, dressed now, dialed. It was a private number that Terry had given Caroline, so she expected a maid in Mina's menage to answer. She did not think the actress would, even if she were home. And she wouldn't be home, Linda reminded herself. There hadn't been time since she left Terry for her to come here, let alone get to her address far up town.

But a rich, cool, half-laughing voice answered. "This is Mina Nevins speaking."

Linda replaced the telephone. "Then she didn't do it. But who? And why?"

Caroline closed the windows, now that the odor was gone. Then she put on her clothes. Quietly the two girls let themselves out of the apartment and went down the stairs. They were leaving when a taxicab stopped and Robert climbed out.

"Hello! Rather advanced in the night for two young ladies to go seeking excitement, isn't it?" he asked. "You're both white. What's wrong?"

"Somebody tried to chloroform Linda and I was in on it, too," Caroline said. "Somebody whom you know, we thought at first. Now we aren't sure. So hotels are safer."

"Linda!" Robert reached for her hands, swung her around, studied her face. Then he shook his head and his eyes were narrow gray slits. "So this is what I've brought on you! Maybe I ought to marry the woman! I could dash off to Borneo or some place that she couldn't stand and you'd be safe. Or maybe I could dash off without the marrying part."

No, don't marry her!" Linda said quickly, and noted the swift relief in Robert's eyes. "Just tell the police—"

But that was what they couldn't do, the three of them decided over big white mugs of coffee and sugar doughnuts in the corner automat a few minutes later. Mina had proof—proof, not just alibis—that she had not been there. Some one else had done this thing.

"Any other enemies, Linda?" Robert queried. "Any models who wanted certain assignments whom you sent other places?"

"None—Mr. Bagley takes care of that. I can't think of anyone."

But all of the time she was wishing that Ronald was there. When two people loved each other they should be able to call across the miles when danger came. But she couldn't. Couldn't, first of all, because she didn't know just where Ronnie was, and secondly—and this was even more important—Sarah had been with him when the long limousine rolled away.

Sarah!

Man Admits Slaying

LOS ANGELES, July 11 (AP) — Harry W. Gordon, unemployed merchant seaman, admitted the slaying of a third woman here, two San Francisco policemen said after hours of questioning.

Inspectors George Engler and Al Corrasa quoted Gordon as saying he choked Lena Coffin, 35, to death in a San Francisco hotel April 6, 1935, then mutilated her.

Gordon yesterday confessed, Det.-Lieut. G. F. Gannon said, to killing his wife, Florence Johnston, in New York in 1934 and Mrs. Robert Earl McCarthy, mother of two children, in San Francisco June 25. A warrant charging him with the latter slaying has been issued.

versity of Maryland. Most of the delegates were in accord with the plan, but were in favor of a mutual aid system for counties, with mutual agreement between border line companies.

To Be Revised

Final action on Chief Just's measure was referred back to him and the fire service extension committee for further study in an attempt to work out a satisfactory plan. This committee was asked to report on the plan at the next convention, as it will take some time to redraft the measure. At this point those interested in getting this plan operating in the state asked for a rising vote, which was accorded, with all asking for continued study on the measure.

While the delegates sweltered, four large Cumberland and Westernport Transit Company buses and nearly fifty privately owned automobiles conveyed others to the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Mill plant at Luke and also to the Savage River dam project near Bloomington. State police acted as an escort.

The afternoon session was devoted mostly to fun making, getting acquainted better" and revelry, which came to an abrupt halt with a hook-up contest on Main street. This event attracted such a crowd that four state troopers and a score of special deputies and firemen had a hard task in controlling the masses who lined the street four and five thick to watch the contest at the fire hydrant.

Mt. Savage Wins

This event was won by the Mt. Savage Fire Company, which completed the task of starting from a dead stop, racing over 300 yards, then connecting to a fire hydrant and pumping water after 150 feet of hose had been unconnected and then re-connected. The Allegany county men completed the entire task in fifty seconds, thereby winning the first prize of $25 awarded by Goodwill Company No. 1.

Three other companies competed—Midland, Potomac Company No. 1 of Westernport, and Barton. The Westernport fire-fighters received the second prize of $10. Their time was fifty-eight seconds despite the fact they made a bad connection at the plug. The Midland company ranked third, the time being sixty-eight seconds.

The Barton company failed when it did not complete connection at the plug. This company was regarded as the best bet of the day. A faulty clamp, which held the connecting tubes on the pumping engine, couldn't be opened by the attendant, and the judge ruled the company out.

In connection with this contest was a minature fire truck, drawn by a pony. The fire company was known as the Deer Horn Fire Company, of Lonaconing, owned, managed and operated by John Meerbaugh. Mr. Meerbaugh's stunt afforded amusement for young and old and for his efforts he was given honorable mention.

Prizes Awarded

Wednesday night's mumers prize winners were announced today as follows: best decorated float, C. C. Miller, $10; best mimic fire company, Deer Horn Fire Company No. 1, Lonaconing, $10; most fancy dressed couple, Mrs. Harry Dixon and Mrs. Wesley Duckworth, $5; most comically-dressed persons, Harry Isaac, of Brunswick, $5; smallest couple in costume, Shirley Reidler and Kenneth Burt, $5; best decorated bicycle with costumed rider, Betty Ranklin, $5; and most original costume, Girl Scouts of Lonaconing, $5. Prize money amounting to $45 was to be distributed tomorrow, the prize committee chairman said, as the winners could not be located.

Tomorrow, the convention business will come to a close, and Saturday will be "get away day." The principal event on tomorrow's program will be the, mammoth parade, which will form at the Lonaconing baseball park in the Detmold section. This parade, which is expected to be more than two miles long, will be made up of over fifty pieces of apparatus, in addition to drum corps, fire departments and drill teams.

The marchers have been asked to assemble at the ball field at 12 o'clock noon and be ready to start marching promptly at 1:30 p.m. The committee said today that it would take until after 4 p. m., to rout the marchers over the streets. The line of march will be: West Main street to East Main street, thence to Watercliffe street, Railroad street, and then to Union and West Main street. At the baseball park, where the marchers will disband, there will be a drill contest, while in the center of town on Love's lawn, Douglas avenue, visiting bands will compete for a cash award.

Tour Cancelled

A tour to Dan's Rock, near Midland, has been cancelled by the committee and an ox roast at the White Way Inn, in the East End of town, substituted. Prizes for the parade will be awarded Friday night.

At 6:30 p. m. tomorrow a water battle will be held on Main street in front of the reviewing stand in the Presbyterian church yard. In this contest the Glassport, Pa., fire department, champions of western Pennsylvania, will compete against a picked team from the LaVale and Mt. Savage fire departments. The combatants will wear one-piece overalls.

Many distinguished visitors were seen milling through the crowd today, principal politician spotted being Walter "Big Train" Johnson, Republican candidate for election to Congress from the Sixth district. Mr. Johnson appeared on the reviewing stand but said nothing, extending his greetings with a wave of his hand, which for years made him famous as a big league hurler with the Washington Senators.

In 1915 a bottle was picked up off the coast of Boston which had gone around the world three times.

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work. Life is complicated by

MINA NEVINS, a famous actress, who is determined to marry Robert. She believes Linda is romancing with the young engineer.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

LINDA SAT up quickly, throwing off the blankets, as she detected the sickening scent of perfume mingled with chloroform which came to her in engulfing waves.

She knew that perfume, sweet and sharp even above the chloroform. It was the same scent that Mina Nevins, the actress, had worn earlier in Robert's apartment.

The Picturesque Life of Wendell Willke

Wendell Lewis Willkie was born at Elwood, Ind., Feb. 18, 1892, one of six children and the son of two practicing lawyers. His mother was one of the first women admitted to the Indiana bar. His grandparents came from Germany.

A mischievous, precocious, fun-loving boy, "Win" sold papers, collected bills, worked in a steel mill and on farms as a youngster. Later he ran a cement block in Wyoming, drove a baker's wagon, became a short order cook.

At Indiana university he worked his way through school. A non-conformist who chewed tobacco and wore a turtle-neck sweater, he roared against the faculty and fraternities. Later, however, he joined Beta Theta Pi.

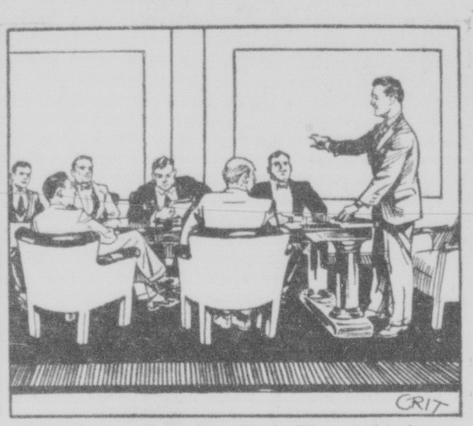
He studied law after earning his A. B. degree (1913) and was admitted to the bar three years later. After settling down in Elwood to practice law with his father, he met Edith Wilk, a new librarian. Romance followed.

Boy of 11

Day after the United States declared war on Germany, Willkie enlisted in the army. He and Edith Wilk were married on Jan. 14, 1918. Then he went to France as a field artillery captain, stayed until the armistice.

Out of work when he returned in 1919, he went to Akron, O., got a job in the legal department of a rubber company. He joined a private law firm soon afterwards and was with Mather, Nesbitt & Willkie in Akron for 10 years.

Active in American Legion circles in Akron where he commanded Summit Post, he mixed in Democratic politics, was elected delegate to the Democratic convention in 1924. He went with Commonwealth & Southern in 1929.



General counsel, in New York City, of this huge corporation selling electric power in 10 states, Willkie became its president four years later. He has just resigned that post, which reputedly paid him $75,000 a year.

Young man of 21

All utilities were under a cloud, as a result of the Insull scandals, and Willkie began to clean house at Commonwealth. Today that company's 1,200,000 customers get power for half what they paid seven years ago.

Backing the New Deal at first, Willkie battled it tooth and nail when TVA tried to sell power cheaper in Commonwealth territory. Failing in this, TVA bought Willkie's competing subsidy for $78,600,000, a price set by SEC.

Overnight Willkie became a symbol of common sense, of the poor boy who rose to wealth and power on his own. A few months ago someone suggested he run for president. Six weeks ago he launched his campaign on the G. O. P. ticket.

The Willkies live simply in a New York apartment with their son Philip, who failed to graduate at Princeton this year. Willkie, who has never owned a car and doesn't carry a watch, is accessible any time to anyone whose name he knows.

Mayor Irvine

the Dingle could be used in the other annexes.

"The city just had to do the best it could," the speaker said. When heavy rains came—as they frequently did—and washed out these areas, the city had to spend money to repair the damage to avoid lawsuits—whether it had money in the proper fund or not.

The annexes have been a problem and still are a "serious problem," the mayor stated, although one with which the average citizen is not conversant.

Although the city has made remarkable progress, he said one trouble with its people today, "from the low to the high, with no exceptions, is that they think the city is Santa Claus."

Real Traffic Problem

Another city problem mentioned by the mayor was that of traffic. He pointed out that two of the largest industries, the Celanese and the Kelly, are situated on the west side of the city and that the only principal way to reach them is over Baltimore street.

This creates a real traffic problem, he declared, but expressed hope that the recent improvement of Cumberland street would help relieve congestion. In this connection, he said the city had been accused of wasting money on this project, but he defended it on the ground that it will materially help the traffic problem.

In addition to diverting some of the traffic to and from the Celanese and the Kelly, he asserted that, wit hthe opening of Pennsylvania's new super-highway, much truck traffic will also be able to avoid Baltimore street by going out Cumberland street to Centre or Bedford streets to connect with the new road at Mann's Choice, Bedford, or Hyndman.

Mayor Irvine also took occasion to explain his reversal on the airport project. Admitting that he was "emphatically" against the project previously, he said he was now "just as heartily in favor of it."

Events of recent weeks have made him, along with most other people, describing the airport as a "future "defense-conscious," he declared, essential protection for the city of Cumberland."

The remainder of his talk was devoted to the "old days" in Cumberland, during which, he said, "the city built up and progressed—perhaps not so fast as today, but better and on a more solid foundation."

home very long. They spend most of their time together—outdoors when weather permits. Only thing that upset the old couple when they first came was the fact that they couldn't sleep in the same room.

"We've been together such a long time," they told Mr. Matheney wistfully. The superintendent felt bad about it too but at the moment, there's nothing he can do about it. However, it was obvious he was turning the matter over in his mind and it won't be surprising if Mr. and Mrs. Ross have a room of their own before long.

Mr. Matheney yesterday insisted on taking reporters on a tour of the home. The tour included visits to the kitchen, store room, dining room and the mens' and womens quarters.

Now, reporters aren't housing experts nor do they have any eye for dirt in corners and under things like dust-pursuing housewives. But anybody brought up in a decent home, including newspaper reporters, can tell wheter things are neat or not. And that home is neat.

The quarters of both the men and women are airy and not at all crowded. The fresh odor of recently applied varnish was sniffed in one corridor. Linen and bedcovers were clean and had a healthy, white, well-bleached appearance. Everything is washed once a week.

The storeroom included tons of bedclothing, everyday work clothes and "dress-up" Sunday clothes for the men, dresses, underthings and a quantity of heavy, long underwear for the women—which most of them insist on having. The storeroom also included the smoking tobacco which is supplied to the men free.

Folks are Happy

However, important as cleanliness, the meat the old folks receive every other day, and comfortable surroundings may be, everybody knows they don't count for a great deal if the people who get these things aren't happy and contented.

And since Mr. Matheney had obligingly given the visiting reporters the run of the place, they wandred off to have a chat or two with some of the men and women who live there.

Quiet and Peaceful

While the inactivity at the home would probably get on the nerves of a young person, all the old ladies and gentlemen yesterday seemed content and happy including the old fellow snoozing peacefully on the front porch, his hands folded on his stomach. There's not much noise but its quiet and peaceful.

"It costs us about $320 a year for each person here," Mr. Matheney said. "They get the best care possible, are well-fed and what is more important, we try to make them feel at home. Do you think it is preferable to ship these people off to strange homes to live on $18 or $20 a month pension? Do you think they would be happy in such homes where the chances are they would be given very little consideration and wouldn't fit in with the general scheme of things?"

Battle Forest Fire

Fire wardens and CCC members battled a raging forest fire yesterday afternoon, on Will's mountain near Lover's Leap, scenic spot above the Narrows, to prevent the flames from spreading back along the mountain top.

The blaze, visible from all sections of Cumberland, started near the site of Will's Mountain Inn, a summer resort which was destroyed in a spectacular fire ten years ago.

Sports Radio Quiz, Now in New Time, Schedules Tunney

Ted Husing Will Act As Umpire for CBS Feature

By C. E. Butterfield
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, July 11—The Choose Up Sides sports quiz, now holding forth on WABC-CBS at 7:30 Friday nights after its transfer from Sundays, is to include Gene Tunney of the former heavyweight championship fists on its guest roster tomorrow. Ted Husing is now acting as umpire of the program. Two weeks ago Champion Joe Louis appeared in the program and made a perfect score, something for Tunney to shoot at.

With Al Pearce

The Merry Macs, the swing quartet including three brothers and a girl, is to continue its radio career for some more time to come inasmuch as they have been signed to join the Al Pearce gang on WABC-CBS at 6:30, with a repeat for the west at 9:30. The Macs were more or less skyrocketed to loudspeaker attention through their long series of appearances in the Fred Allen hour. Incidentally it might be noted that the brothers' name is McMichaels, the reason for the Macs.

The Lucille Manners concert hour at 7 on WEAF-NBC, with Dr. Frank Black conducting, will include Solvejg's song from Grieg's "Peer Gynt." In August this program is making plans to reduce itself to half-hour an hour after something like 14 years of broadcasting an hour-long production.

The War News

Europe schedule for the day, with the usual subject to change designation: NBC 7 a. m., 12:45, 11 p. m.; CBS 7 a. m., 5:45, 7:55, 9:30 east p. m.; WEAF-NBC 6:15; WJZ-NBC 9; MBS-network 9, 9:20.

Added to the schedule are these:

WABC-CBS 9, Democratic convention preview, Rep. Samuel Rayburn and others.

WEAF - NBC 10:15, Talk, Col. Philip B. Fleming, Wage and Hour administrator, on "Did the 40-Hour Week Defeat France?"

WJZ-NBC 6:45, James A. Farley discussing problems before Democratic convention.

Chinese ground crew repairs light bomber (made in Russia)

HONGKONG — Three years ago on July 7, Japan marched against China. Today China still fights; boasts that she is preparing a titanic counter-offensive. Reports reaching here say that Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist armies "somewhere in western China" have built numerous arsenals; that ten academies for officers are turning out 50,000 future generals a year; that two thousand young Chinese are being trained as war pilots. When Europe went to war, Nationalist China realized it would have to carry on its war with little outside help. Now the Chinese claim their warforce is self-sufficient in production of small arms and ammunition. Possibly 15,000 machine guns are turned out monthly. These pictures show some of the work being done behind China's 2,500-mile front.

Sports Radio Quiz, Now in New Time, Schedules Tunney

Ted Husing Will Act As Umpire for CBS Feature

By C. E. Butterfield
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, July 11—The Choose Up Sides sports quiz, now holding forth on WABC-CBS at 7:30 Friday nights after its transfer from Sundays, is to include Gene Tunney of the former heavyweight championship fists on its guest roster tomorrow. Ted Husing is now acting as umpire of the program. Two weeks ago Champion Joe Louis appeared in the program and made a perfect score, something for Tunney to shoot at.

With Al Pearce

The Merry Macs, the swing quartet including three brothers and a girl, is to continue its radio career for some more time to come inasmuch as they have been signed to join the Al Pearce gang on WABC-CBS at 6:30, with a repeat for the west at 9:30. The Macs were more or less skyrocketed to loudspeaker attention through their long series of appearances in the Fred Allen hour. Incidentally it might be noted that the brothers' name is McMichaels, the reason for the Macs.

The Lucille Manners concert hour at 7 on WEAF-NBC, with Dr. Frank Black conducting, will include Solvejg's song from Grieg's "Peer Gynt." In August this program is making plans to reduce itself to half-hour an hour after something like 14 years of broadcasting an hour-long production.

The War News

Europe schedule for the day, with the usual subject to change designation: NBC 7 a. m., 12:45, 11 p. m.; CBS 7 a. m., 5:45, 7:55, 9:30 east p. m.; WEAF-NBC 6:15; WJZ-NBC 9; MBS-network 9, 9:20.

Added to the schedule are these:

WABC-CBS 9, Democratic convention preview, Rep. Samuel Rayburn and others.

WEAF - NBC 10:15, Talk, Col. Philip B. Fleming, Wage and Hour administrator, on "Did the 40-Hour Week Defeat France?"

WJZ-NBC 6:45, James A. Farley discussing problems before Democratic convention.

Cagney Has Fine Role at Liberty

James Cagney, the hard socking movie star, is feeling like a kid on a holiday these days.

He isn't under sentence of death, or behind prison bars. He isn't even being ill treated or persecuted. In view of the fact that he is making a new picture, this is at least passing strange.

Lest there be some misgivings on the part of Cagney fans, let it be added that the red headed dynamo is being tough. He is dishing out punches, staccato repartee and occasional bullets with the old zest and verve.

It is, however, all in the spirit of good movie fun, and Cagney is making the most of it. After dying in the electric chair, on a church step and in the trenches in three out of his last four pictures, he has decided he has given enough lives for his public—at least for a few months.

Despite the fact the Cagney deaths have all been highly profitable, his bosses at Warner Bros. studio concur in that decision. Consequently, they sent him to the tropics for a rollicking vacation in a picture called "Torrid Zone," which opens tomorrow at the New Liberty Theatre.

"New Moon" is Year's Finest Musical Hit

Reunited for the first time in more than a year, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy scored anew last night when their latest musical romance, "New Moon", opened at the Maryland theater for an engagement of six days.

"New Moon" takes its place along with the best of the films to co-star these two singing favorites. Packed with action, it moves vividly from the romantic New Orleans of 1780 to a tropical island where a strange group of personages, cast on land, from a ship-wrecked boat, set up a republic.

In the supporting cast, Mary Boland offers another of her amusing portrayals, with other standout performances given by George Zucco, H. B. Warner, Grant Mitchell, Stanley Fields, Richard Purcell, John Miljan and Ivan Simpson.

The picture is particularly rich in the Sigmund Romberg musical score, the stars singing such favorites as "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You," "Softly As in a Morning Sunrise," "Rondolet," Marianne," "Paree," "Stout Hearted Men" and "Shoe Shine Song."

Devine and Arlen Are Co-Starred at Garden

Andy Devine, rotund comedian, is seen as a Canadian Northwest Mountie in Universal's drama, "Man from Montreal," which comes today to the Garden theater with Richard Arlen costarred. Others in the cast include Kay Sutton, Anne Gwynne, Reed Hadley, Addison Richards, Joseph Sawyer and Jerry Marlowe.

Born on a ranch near Flagstaff, Arizona, Devine got his first screen break as a football player in a collegian film at Universal. He has been under contract at that studio for thirteen year — a Hollywood record.

Three Pictures on Embassy Program

"Joe and Ethel Turp Call on the President," coming to the Embassy theater today, brings two old fictional friends to the screen — Joe and Ethel Turp, Damon Runyon's famous characters from Flatbush, Brooklyn, appear in the persons of Ann Sothern and William Gargan in their most celebrated enterprise wherein they visit the president of the United States in behalf of Jim, the postman, who lost his job because he destroyed a registered letter which would have revealed to a widow on her deathbed that her son had been killed in a prison break.

The second feature is Roy Rogers in the singing western hit "Carson City Kid" with Bob Steele and an all star cast. In addition to the two features there will be another chapter of the serial "The Shadow".

EDNA SEEKS YOUTH

Edna Wallace Hopper

Still slim and youthful in appearance, Edna Wallace Hopper, at 70, is to undergo her third facial operation in New York. Miss Hopper, a musical comedy star, back in the "gay ninety' 'era, says she plans to stage a comeback on the stage this winter.

Texans Scratch Out Names on Ballots

AUSTIN, Tex., (AP) — Down in the Rio Grande valley of Texas, Willacy county voters mark their ballots with a vengeance.

So much so that the county Democratic executive committee ordered party primary ballots printed on heavier paper this year. Two years ago many electors swung their pencils with so much fervor they mutiliated the ballot.

The method of voting in Texas is to scratch out the names of candidates one opposes, leaving the name of the favored candidate unmarked.

Douglas Aircraft was up 2¼ at the finish. Lesser advances were retained by U. S. Steel, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Lockheed, N. Y. Shipbuilding, J. C. Penney, American Telephone and Celanese.

American airlines lost 2½ and Allied Chemical and American Can one each. Smaller declines were posted for General Motors, Chrysler, Wennecott, U. S. Rubber, Standard Oil of N. J., and Consolidated Edison.

Tilting upward fractions to a point or so in the Curb were Brewster Aero, Cities Service, Fairchild Engineering & Aircraft, Humble Oil, Bath Iron Works and Bell Aircraft. Transfers here were around 141,000 shares against 79,000 the day before.

Cagney Has Fine Role at Liberty

James Cagney, the hard socking movie star, is feeling like a kid on a holiday these days.

He isn't under sentence of death, or behind prison bars. He isn't even being ill treated or persecuted. In view of the fact that he is making a new picture, this is at least passing strange.

Lest there be some misgivings on the part of Cagney fans, let it be added that the red headed dynamo is being tough. He is dishing out punches, staccato repartee and occasional bullets with the old zest and verve.

It is, however, all in the spirit of good movie fun, and Cagney is making the most of it. After dying in the electric chair, on a church step and in the trenches in three out of his last four pictures, he has decided he has given enough lives for his public—at least for a few months.

Despite the fact the Cagney deaths have all been highly profitable, his bosses at Warner Bros. studio concur in that decision. Consequently, they sent him to the tropics for a rollicking vacation in a picture called "Torrid Zone," which opens tomorrow at the New Liberty Theatre.

"New Moon" is Year's Finest Musical Hit

Reunited for the first time in more than a year, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy scored anew last night when their latest musical romance, "New Moon", opened at the Maryland theater for an engagement of six days.

"New Moon" takes its place along with the best of the films to co-star these two singing favorites. Packed with action, it moves vividly from the romantic New Orleans of 1780 to a tropical island where a strange group of personages, cast on land, from a ship-wrecked boat, set up a republic.

In the supporting cast, Mary Boland offers another of her amusing portrayals, with other standout performances given by George Zucco, H. B. Warner, Grant Mitchell, Stanley Fields, Richard Purcell, John Miljan and Ivan Simpson.

The picture is particularly rich in the Sigmund Romberg musical score, the stars singing such favorites as "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You," "Softly As in a Morning Sunrise," "Rondolet," Marianne," "Paree," "Stout Hearted Men" and "Shoe Shine Song."

Devine and Arlen Are Co-Starred at Garden

Andy Devine, rotund comedian, is seen as a Canadian Northwest Mountie in Universal's drama, "Man from Montreal," which comes today to the Garden theater with Richard Arlen costarred. Others in the cast include Kay Sutton, Anne Gwynne, Reed Hadley, Addison Richards, Joseph Sawyer and Jerry Marlowe.

Born on a ranch near Flagstaff, Arizona, Devine got his first screen break as a football player in a collegian film at Universal. He has been under contract at that studio for thirteen year — a Hollywood record.

Three Pictures on Embassy Program

"Joe and Ethel Turp Call on the President," coming to the Embassy theater today, brings two old fictional friends to the screen — Joe and Ethel Turp, Damon Runyon's famous characters from Flatbush, Brooklyn, appear in the persons of Ann Sothern and William Gargan in their most celebrated enterprise wherein they visit the president of the United States in behalf of Jim, the postman, who lost his job because he destroyed a registered letter which would have revealed to a widow on her deathbed that her son had been killed in a prison break.

The second feature is Roy Rogers in the singing western hit "Carson City Kid" with Bob Steele and an all star cast. In addition to the two features there will be another chapter of the serial "The Shadow".

EDNA SEEKS YOUTH

Edna Wallace Hopper

Still slim and youthful in appearance, Edna Wallace Hopper, at 70, is to undergo her third facial operation in New York. Miss Hopper, a musical comedy star, back in the "gay ninety 'era, says she plans to stage a comeback on the stage this winter.

Texans Scratch Out Names on Ballots

AUSTIN, Tex., (AP) — Down in the Rio Grande valley of Texas, Willacy county voters mark their ballots with a vengeance.

So much so that the county Democratic executive committee ordered party primary ballots printed on heavier paper this year. Two years ago many electors swung their pencils with so much fervor they mutiliated the ballot.

The method of voting in Texas is to scratch out the names of candidates one opposes, leaving the name of the favored candidate unmarked.

Detroit Team Knocked from League Lead

Lowly Senators Defeat Tigers By 7-3 Score

Smash Southpaw Newhouser for Four Runs in Second Inning

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Detroit dropped out of the American League today, losing a 7-3 decision to the lowly Washington Senators.

Washington smashed Newhouser for four runs in the second inning after two were out, the youthful southpaw bumping into trouble by walking Cecil Travis and Jimmy Pofahl.

Detroit whittled the score to 4-1 in the third on singles by Bruce Campbell, batting for Newhouser, Dick Bartell and Charley Gehringer, but Washington retaliated with another run in its half of the inning.

The Senators increased their lead to 7-1 in the sixth inning. Ferrell doubled to left with one out and after Hudson had fouled out, Hank Greenberg and Bartell allowed Case's pop fly to fall between them for another double, scoring Ferrell. Case scored on Buddy Lewis' sharp single to right.

Detroit tallied single runs in the seventh and eighth innings. Singles by Buddy York and Fox and a brace of infield outs gave the Tigers a run in the seventh, while Barney McCosky's double and Gehringer's single produced their final run in the eighth.

Casey Will Be Lost To Dodgers 5 Days

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 11 (AP)—Hugh Casey, Brooklyn pitcher who was struck by a pitched ball in the Brooklyn-Johnstown exhibition game last night, will be out of the Dodger lineup for four or five days, a physician said tonight.

Dr. W. J. Murray reported X-rays showed Casey suffered a "mild concussion" of the brain when he was felled by a ball hurled by Vince Shupe, 21-year old Johnstown southpaw. The physician said Casey's condition was good but that he would need a few days' rest in a hospital here.

And Do They Throw Big Ones Back In!

Cut Bank, Mont., July 11. (AP)—In the Cut Bank Rod and Gun club it's against the rules for members to tell about "the big one that got away."

The reason, according to a resolution that the club has approved, is that such yarn spinning causes discontent among the members who never experience the thrill of losing a "big guy" after he's been hooked—or who never hook a big one.

"It is obviously the duty of the president of the club to promote harmony and to keep down discontent," says the resolution.

The SPORT TRAIL

By ROBERT MYERS
(Sitting In For Whitney Martin)

LOS ANGELES, July 11 (AP) — Rumors in baseball, like history, seem to repeat themselves, so pull up a chair and listen to one that concerns an old friend of the Sports Trail.

His name is Carl Reynolds, of Texas, down Houston way. You remember him from the White Sox of 10 or more years ago, or possibly when he was with Washington, St. Louis' Browns, Boston; for a short hitch with a Minneapolis, or a player whose powerful bat was a big factor in the Cubs' pennant drive in 1938.

He's the guy who once, while playing for the White Sox against the Yankees, clouted successive home runs on his first three trips to the plate, and followed with three singles for a perfect day at bat. It was a feat that tied the American League record at the time and still stands as a brilliant performance in baseball.

Well, Carl is with the Los Angeles club now as coach and pinch-player par excellence, and the other day those elegantly inaccurate grandstand managers had a field day. They started the rumor that Reynolds, as hard working and as loyal a player as ever put on a suit, was trying to get manager Jigger Statz' job. If it hadn't been so outlandish it might have been serious.

Statz, who is undoubtedly the most popular Angel of all times, heard about it and laughed. So did Carl. He laughed even more when he heard he had been quoted as "denying" managerial ambitions. The denial part was all right, except Carl said no one had even talked to him about the rumor, one way or another.

The big Texan, be it understood, was sent to Los Angeles by owner P. K. Wrigley. That's where the rumor started with the rumorhounds. Two and two made four, and Wrigley wanted Reynolds to be manager. With this in mind, he signed Statz to a two-year contract at $10,000 or so a year, and made Carl coach. It made perfect sense—but only to those addlepated whisperers.

Statz should have laughed when he heard about the rumors. They started the same thing against him when big Truck Hannah was piloting the Angels. Truck is now with Memphis and doing a good job. And Hannah, by the way, was accused of "undermining" Jack Lelivelt when the present Seattle skipper was leading Los Angeles.

And so it goes, history and odd ideas repeating themselves.

In the same vein, someone started the talk that the recent Los Angeles slump was due to the fact that Mr. Davis P. Fleming, the president, was running the club and giving all signals from his box. Yes, sir, kindly Dave Fleming, who in his 60-odd years has enough business matters on his mind running the Wrigley enterprises without taking on a manager's burden, was calling every sign.

Last year over at the Hollywood club it was Mr. Robert H. Cobb, the vice president, who was doing the same thing. Cobb still laughs over that, because he says the only Hollywood signal he knew was the hit and run—and Jack Lelivelt or Lefty O'Doul or someone else let him in on that secret.

All in all, there's nothing like a good, unsound rumor to keep the baseball pot boiling.

Foe for Dempsey!

PORTLAND, Maine, July 11 (AP)—At 62, Jack Johnson thinks it would be "a lot of fun" to box with Jack Dempsey—but not for more than six rounds.

The Negro, like Dempsey, a one-time world's heavyweight king, was reminded, in the course of an interview that Dempsey was seventeen years his junior.

"That makes it even easier," Johnson said, grinning. "I've got seventeen years' more experience."

Johnson said he would take on the old Manassa Mauler for charity, preferably the Red Cross, "at any time and any place." Dempsey recently kayoed a wrestler in three rounds.

Yankees Barely Last To Beat Out St. Louis by 6 to 4

Bump Hadley in Rescue Role Saves Game in Ninth

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—The Yankees barely lasted to beat the St. Louis Browns, 6-4 today as the world champions opened a long home stand today.

Ahead 6-2 going into the ninth, largely through the fine three hit hurling by Marius Russo and some heavy hitting by Red Rolfe, the Browns scored twice before Bump Hadley dashed in to rescue the faltering Russo.

With two out, Russo walked Heffner and Swift, hit pinch hitter Lynn Lary to fill the bases and then served up a single to Roy Cullenbine which scored two runs.

Doerr's Homer Gives Red Sox 3 to 2 Victory

Manager Joe Cronin Fails in Eleventh as Pinch Hitter

BOSTON, July 11 (AP) — After being dropped from lead-off man to seventh place in the batting order, Bobby Doerr gave the Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox today by blasting his sixth homer of the season as first man up in the 13th inning.

The Red Sox used three pitchers against Johnny Rigney, who limited them to seven hits. The Red Sockers went ahead in the third inning, scoring twice on a pass, two bunts, Doc Cramer's fly and a wide throw by Joe Kuhel.

Kuhel lashed out his 13th homer in the fourth inning and the Chisox tied up the game against starter Herb Hash in the eighth when Taft Wright bounced a double off the center-field wall and scored on Luke Appling's single.

Cronin entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the 11th but struck out with the winning run on second.

Think of All the Thrills She Missed

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP) — Mrs. Nell Finegan, back in 1897, ducked a wild throw by old Hans Wagner and the ball hit a little girl sitting in the stands behind her.

So Mrs. Finegan never went to another baseball game for 43 years.

But her son, Jimmy, is baseball writer for the Louisville Times, and she decided to try it again. She went out, the other night to see the Louisville Colonels of the American Association play Toledo.

"I'm simply thrilled," she said when the game was over.

Add Important Police Business

NEWPORT, Ky., (AP) — The doings of the Cincinnati Reds, just across the Ohio river from Newport are serious matters to local residents.

So when radio listeners in one section of town complained to police that boys were making so much noise in the street they were unable to hear, Police Chief Leo Livingston personally took care of the investigation.

When the complaints came in, the chief and other officers also were listening to the broadcast of a Reds' game.

BROOKLYN BASELINE BLITZKRIEG

Durocher Camilli Umpire Jorda

Another of the baseball season's many heated arguments takes place as Manager Leo Durocher, back to camera, and First Baseman Dolph Camilli of the Brooklyn Dodgers argue vehemently with Umpire Jorda over a play at first. Durocher claims Van Robays of the Pittsburgh Pirates pushed Dodge Pitcher Whitlow Wyatt, covering first base. Guess who won the argument? That's right—they always do.

Detroit Team Knocked from League Lead

Smash Southpaw Newhouser for Four Runs in Second Inning

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Detroit dropped out of the American League today, losing a 7-3 decision to the lowly Washington Senators.

Washington smashed Newhouser for four runs in the second inning after two were out, the youthful southpaw bumping into trouble by walking Cecil Travis and Jimmy Pofahl.

Detroit whittled the score to 4-1 in the third on singles by Bruce Campbell, batting for Newhouser, Dick Bartell and Charley Gehringer, but Washington retaliated with another run in its half of the inning.

The Senators increased their lead to 7-1 in the sixth inning. Ferrell doubled to left with one out and after Hudson had fouled out, Hank Greenberg and Bartell allowed Case's pop fly to fall between them for another double, scoring Ferrell. Case scored on Buddy Lewis' sharp single to right.

Detroit tallied single runs in the seventh and eighth innings. Singles by Buddy York and Fox and a brace of infield outs gave the Tigers a run in the seventh, while Barney McCosky's double and Gehringer's single produced their final run in the eighth.

Casey Will Be Lost To Dodgers 5 Days

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 11 (AP)—Hugh Casey, Brooklyn pitcher who was struck by a pitched ball in the Brooklyn-Johnstown exhibition game last night, will be out of the Dodger lineup for four or five days, a physician said tonight.

Dr. W. J. Murray reported X-rays showed Casey suffered a "mild concussion" of the brain when he was felled by a ball hurled by Vince Shupe, 21-year old Johnstown southpaw. The physician said Casey's condition was good but that he would need a few days' rest in a hospital here.

And Do They Throw Big Ones Back In!

Cut Bank, Mont., July 11. (AP)—In the Cut Bank Rod and Gun club it's against the rules for members to tell about "the big one that got away."

The reason, according to a resolution that the club has approved, is that such yarn spinning causes discontent among the members who never experience the thrill of losing a "big guy" after he's been hooked—or who never hook a big one.

"It is obviously the duty of the president of the club to promote harmony and to keep down discontent," says the resolution.

The SPORT TRAIL

By ROBERT MYERS
(Sitting In For Whitney Martin)

LOS ANGELES, July 11 (AP) — Rumors in baseball, like history, seem to repeat themselves, so pull up a chair and listen to one that concerns an old friend of the Sports Trail.

His name is Carl Reynolds, of Texas, down Houston way. You remember him from the White Sox of 10 or more years ago, or possibly when he was with Washington, St. Louis' Browns, Boston; for a short hitch with a Minneapolis, or a player whose powerful bat was a big factor in the Cubs' pennant drive in 1938.

He's the guy who once, while playing for the White Sox against the Yankees, clouted successive home runs on his first three trips to the plate, and followed with three singles for a perfect day at bat. It was a feat that tied the American League record at the time and still stands as a brilliant performance in baseball.

Well, Carl is with the Los Angeles club now as coach and pinch-player par excellence, and the other day those elegantly inaccurate grandstand managers had a field day. They started the rumor that Reynolds, as hard working and as loyal a player as ever put on a suit, was trying to get manager Jigger Statz' job. If it hadn't been so outlandish it might have been serious.

Statz, who is undoubtedly the most popular Angel of all times, heard about it and laughed. So did Carl. He laughed even more when he heard he had been quoted as "denying" managerial ambitions. The denial part was all right, except Carl said no one had even talked to him about the rumor, one way or another.

The big Texan, be it understood, was sent to Los Angeles by owner P. K. Wrigley. That's where the rumor started with the rumor-hounds. Two and two made four, and Wrigley wanted Reynolds to be manager. With this in mind, he signed Statz to a two-year contract at $10,000 or so a year, and made Carl coach. It made perfect sense—but only to those addlepated whisperers.

Statz should have laughed when he heard about the rumors. They started the same thing against him when big Truck Hannah was piloting the Angels. Truck is now with Memphis and doing a good job. And Hannah, by the way, was accused of "undermining" Jack Lelivelt when the present Seattle skipper was leading Los Angeles.

And so it goes, history and odd ideas repeating themselves.

In the same vein, someone started the talk that the recent Los Angeles slump was due to the fact that Mr. Davis P. Fleming, the president, was running the club and giving all signals from his box. Yes, sir, kindly Dave Fleming, who in his 60-odd years has enough business matters on his mind running the Wrigley enterprises without taking on a manager's burden, was calling every sign.

Last year over at the Hollywood club it was Mr. Robert H. Cobb, the vice president, who was doing the same thing. Cobb still laughs over that, because he says the only Hollywood signal he knew was the hit and run—and Jack Lelivelt or Lefty O'Doul or someone else let him in on that secret.

All in all, there's nothing like a good, unsound rumor to keep the baseball pot boiling.

Foe for Dempsey!

PORTLAND, Maine, July 11 (AP)—At 62, Jack Johnson thinks it would be "a lot of fun" to box with Jack Dempsey—but not for more than six rounds.

The Negro, like Dempsey, a one-time world's heavyweight king, was reminded, in the course of an interview that Dempsey was seventeen years his junior.

"That makes it even easier," Johnson said, grinning. "I've got seventeen years' more experience."

Johnson said he would take on the old Manassa Mauler for charity, preferably the Red Cross, "at any time and any place." Dempsey recently kayoed a wrestler in three rounds.

Yankees Barely Last To Beat Out St. Louis by 6 to 4

Bump Hadley in Rescue Role Saves Game in Ninth

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—The Yankees barely lasted to beat the St. Louis Browns, 6-4 today as the world champions opened a long home stand today.

Ahead 6-2 going into the ninth, largely through the fine three hit hurling by Marius Russo and some heavy hitting by Red Rolfe, the Browns scored twice before Bump Hadley dashed in to rescue the faltering Russo.

With two out, Russo walked Heffner and Swift, hit pinch hitter Lynn Lary to fill the bases and then served up a single to Roy Cullenbine which scored two runs.

Doerr's Homer Gives Red Sox 3 to 2 Victory

Manager Joe Cronin Fails in Eleventh as Pinch Hitter

BOSTON, July 11 (AP) — After being dropped from lead-off man to seventh place in the batting order, Bobby Doerr gave the Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox today by blasting his sixth homer of the season as first man up in the 13th inning.

The Red Sox used three pitchers against Johnny Rigney, who limited them to seven hits. The Red Sockers went ahead in the third inning, scoring twice on a pass, two bunts, Doc Cramer's fly and a wide throw by Joe Kuhel.

Kuhel lashed out his 13th homer in the fourth inning and the Chisox tied up the game against starter Herb Hash in the eighth when Taft Wright bounced a double off the center-field wall and scored on Luke Appling's single.

Cronin entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the 11th but struck out with the winning run on second.

Think of All the Thrills She Missed

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP) — Mrs. Nell Finegan, back in 1897, ducked a wild throw by old Hans Wagner and the ball hit a little girl sitting in the stands behind her.

So Mrs. Finegan never went to another baseball game for 43 years.

But her son, Jimmy, is baseball writer for the Louisville Times, and she decided to try it again. She went out the other night to see the Louisville Colonels of the American Association play Toledo.

"I'm simply thrilled," she said when the game was over.

Add Important Police Business

NEWPORT, Ky., (AP) — The doings of the Cincinnati Reds, just across the Ohio river from Newport are serious matters to local residents.

So when radio listeners in one section of town complained to police that boys were making so much noise in the street they were unable to hear, Police Chief Leo Livingston personally took care of the investigation.

When the complaints came in, the chief and other officers also were listening to the broadcast of a Reds' game.

BROOKLYN BASELINE BLITZKRIEG

Durocher Camilli Umpire Jorda

Another of the baseball season's many heated arguments takes place as Manager Leo Durocher, back to camera, and First Baseman Dolph Camilli of the Brooklyn Dodgers argue vehemently with Umpire Jorda over a play at first. Durocher claims Van Robays of the Pittsburgh Pirates pushed Dodge Pitcher Whitlow Wyatt, covering first base. Guess who won the argument? That's right—they always do.

Increase Lead on Dodgers by Game and a Half

CINCINNATI, July 11 (AP)—In a game started in the rain the Reds trimmed Brooklyn 6 to 5 tonight, running their victories to six straight and increasing their lead to a length and a half over the second place Dodgers.

Amateur Ring Show at Stadium Tonight

Police Boys Club Card To Have Ten Or More Contests

Will Be First Card of Kind Offered at Stadium

Five Virginians To Take Part in Program Tonight

The Cumberland Police Boys Club will offer its first amateur boxing show at Fort Hill Stadium at 8:30 o'clock with ten or more bouts on tap.

Five members of the St. Mary's Catholic Church Boys Club of Alexandria, Va., will meet a quintet of Cumberland district leather pushers in the feature bouts of tonight's amateur card, according to Harry Nelson, chairman of the Boy's Club's boxing committee. The program of ten or more fights will start at 8:30.

The St. Mary's Boys Club won the novice team championship of this year's Washington Golden Glove boxing tournament sponsored by the Washington Times-Herald, and the five mittmen chosen to scrap here will be the pick of the squad.

Lisanti May Fight

Despite a hand injury sustained in a recent fight at Johnstown, Pa., Tony Lisanti, topnotch 126-pound thumper from South Cumberland, probably will oppose "Kid" Smith, No. 1 performer of the Alexandria club, in the main event of Friday's program.

The Virginia party will also include John Curling, 135; Al Horton, 124; Al Pavone, 125; and Lou Pavone, 147.

Chairman Nelson had hoped to have "Chink" Davis, local lightweight, meet Curling, but Davis has joined the U. S. Army and won't be available. As a result Curling probably will face Junior Day, Green Spring, (W. Va.) lightweight who is no stranger to district fans.

Other tentative pairings call for Jim Catonese, above ready to graduate from the novice class, to meet Horton; John Nitro, a newcomer to local boxing, to face Al Pavone and Garland Hiser to take on Lou Pavone.

Among the Police Boys' Club scrappers being groomed to make their debuts against local and district scrappers are Walter Basilio, 115; Don Basilio, 135; Shober, 135; Lloyd, 115, and Morrissey, 130.

Deer-Trailing Donkey Works Just for Fun

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Add Texas wildlife notes: A donkey that trails deer.

No one can explain it but Old Whitey, a Boy Scout camp burro lifted his nose one day, took a couple of deep sniffs and took off into the brush, feeling his way carefully lest he snap a twig or click a stone.

Soon he took Scoutmaster Lee R. Tesson, on the donkey's back, to a sleeping doe and fawn. Tesson was amazed, decided to put Whitey to a real test.

Next day he set out early in the morning, let Whitey take his own course. Again and again the flop-eared animal repeated the performance, locating 13 deer by nightfall.

Nimrods wish Whitey could be rented or purchased but he's a camp fixture and hunts only for fun.

Hub City Feature Race to 'Time Her' In Close Finish

Small Daily Double for Largest Crowd of Meet

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 11 (AP)—J. T. Harris' Time Her, ridden by Jockey Martinez, nosed out A. Gazzale's Kens Pop in a blanket finish today to win the Mayor Richard H. Sweeney purse.

Time Her traveled the five-furlong distance in 1.04 2-5 and paid $4.10 for $2.

D. Shea's Lucky Jean was third in the close race.

Clay Hill, under the colors of the Johnston-Randolph entry, took the opening five-furlong event in exactly the same as did Time Her in the feature. Copuled with D. Bond's Small Change, winner of the second, Clay Hill paid the smallest daily double of the meeting—$12.90 for each $2 ticket.

The crowd, in contrast, was the largest of the meeting by far and the betting handle was well ahead of last year.

Mayor Sweeney presented owner Harris with a floral tribute for Time Her's victory in the feature.

Reds Cause Suburban Police Extra Work

Newport, Ky., July 11. (AP)—The doings of the Cincinnati Reds, just across the Ohio river from Newport, are serious matters to local residents.

So when radio listeners in one section of town complained to police that boys were making so much noise in the street they were unable to hear Police Chief Leo Livingston personally took care of the investigation.

When the complaints came in the chief and other officers also were listening to the broadcast of a Reds' game.

Mr. Fitz Has 7 Set for Empire

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—It begins to look as though Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons means to win the Empire City Stakes Saturday.

Always a loyal nominator to the stakes in behalf of his several patrons, Sunny Jim this year seems to hold a handful of aces. He will enter three of the Bel Air Stud's horses and a quartet from the Wheatley Stable.

Of the group, Bel Air's Fenelon will be watched with the most interest, although three of the Wheatley horses—Snow Ridge, Merry Knight and Asp—are all on racing edge.

Upon his showing in the mile-and-a-furlong special will depend whether Fenelon will retain the form that characterized his racing efforts before a siege of coughing forced him out of the Preakness, Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes.

Apparently Sunny Jim thinks the horse is ready—and confident the colt is as good as he ever has been.

Comeback

Mrs. B. F. Whitaker's Sickle T didn't look so terrific in the Butler Handicap, but he made his owner forget that disappointment with a smashing showing yesterday in winning the Gramatan Handicap of a mile and a furlong at Empire City.

Favorite at even money and top-weighted at 122 pounds, Sickle T defeated four other Class C horses with a 1.52 1-5 performance that gave him a length over Sandy Boot, with Pretty Pet three lengths farther behind.

There never was much doubt about the outcome, with Sickle T setting his own pace all the way, although challenged by Sandy Boot, just after the turn for home.

Jack Howard, who recently severed his connections with B. F. Whitaker stable, will campaign his own string next season. The former rider has ten yearlings on his farm at Lexington, Ky., and is very much excited about a daughter of Blue Larkspur.

Aubrey Fletcher, who was first assistant to the late W. B. Streett, has taken over the horses owned by S. A. Warner Baltazzi and The Mill River Stable.

Amateur Ring Show at Stadium Tonight

Police Boys Club Card To Have Ten Or More Contests

Will Be First Card of Kind Offered at Stadium

Five Virginians To Take Part in Program Tonight

The Cumberland Police Boys Club will offer its first amateur boxing show at Fort Hill Stadium at 8:30 o'clock with ten or more bouts on tap.

Five members of the St. Mary's Catholic Church Boys' Club of Alexandria, Va., will meet a quintet of Cumberland district leather pushers in the feature bouts of tonight's amateur card, according to Harry Nelson, chairman of the Boy's Club's boxing committee. The program of ten or more fights will start at 8:30.

The St. Mary's Boys Club won the novice team championship of this year's Washington Golden Glove boxing tournament sponsored by the Washington Times-Herald, and the five mittmen chosen to scrap here will be the pick of the squad.

Lisanti May Fight

Despite a hand injury sustained in a recent fight at Johnstown, Pa., Tony Lisanti, topnotch 126-pound thumper from South Cumberland, probably will oppose "Kid" Smith, No. 1 performer of the Alexandria club, in the main event of Friday's program.

The Virginia party will also include John Curling, 135; Al Horton, 124; Al Pavone, 125; and Lou Pavone, 147.

Chairman Nelson had hoped to have "Chink" Davis, local lightweight, meet Curling, but Davis has joined the U. S. Army and won't be available. As a result Curling probably will face Junior Day, Green Spring, (W. Va.) lightweight who is no stranger to district fans.

Other tentative pairings call for Jim Catonese, above ready to graduate from the novice class, to meet Horton, John Nitro, a newcomer to local boxing, to face Al Pavone and Garland Hiser to take on Lou Pavone.

Among the Police Boys' Club scrappers being groomed to make their debuts against local and district scrappers are Walter Basilio, 115; Don Basilio, 135; Shober, 135; Lloyd, 115, and Morrissey, 130.

Deer-Trailing Donkey Works Just for Fun

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Add Texas wildlife notes: A donkey that trails deer.

No one can explain it but Old Whitey, a Boy Scout camp burro lifted his nose one day, took a couple of deep sniffs and took off into the brush, feeling his way carefully lest he snap a twig or click a stone.

Soon he took Scoutmaster Lee R. Tesson, on the donkey's back, to a sleeping doe and fawn. Tesson was amazed, decided to put Whitey to a real test.

Next day he set out early in the morning, let Whitey take his own course. Again and again the flop-eared animal repeated the performance, locating 13 deer by nightfall.

Nimrods wish Whitey could be rented or purchased but he's a camp fixture and hunts only for fun.

Hub City Feature Race to 'Time Her' In Close Finish

Small Daily Double for Largest Crowd of Meet

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 11 (AP) —J. T. Harris' Time Her, ridden by Jockey Martinez, nosed out A. Gazzale's Kens Pop in a blanket finish today to win the Mayor Richard H. Sweeney purse.

Time Her traveled the five-furlong distance in 1.04 2-5 and paid $4.10 for $2.

D. Shea's Lucky Jean was third in the close race.

Clay Hill, under the colors of the Johnston-Randolph entry, took the opening five-furlong event in exactly the same as did Time Her in the feature. Copuled with D. Bond's Small Change, winner of the second, Clay Hill paid the smallest daily double of the meeting—$12.90 for each $2 ticket.

The crowd, in contrast, was the largest of the meeting by far and the betting handle was well ahead of last year.

Mayor Sweeney presented owner Harris with a floral tribute for Time Her's victory in the feature.

Reds Cause Suburban Police Extra Work

Newport, Ky., July 11. (AP)—The doings of the Cincinnati Reds, just across the Ohio river from Newport, are serious matters to local residents.

So when radio listeners in one section of town complained to police that boys were making so much noise in the street they were unable to hear, Police Chief Leo Livingston personally took care of the investigation.

When the complaints came in the chief and other officers also were listening to the broadcast of a Reds' game.

Mr. Fitz Has 7 Set for Empire

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP)—It begins to look as though Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons means to win the Empire City Stakes Saturday.

Always a loyal nominator to the stakes in behalf of his several patrons, Sunny Jim this year seems to hold a handful of aces. He will enter three of the Bel Air Stud's horses and a quartet from the Wheatley Stable.

Of the group, Bel Air's Fenelon will be watched with the most interest, although three of the Wheatley horses—Snow Ridge, Merry Knight and Asp—are all on racing edge.

Upon his showing in the mile-and-a-furlong special will depend whether Fenelon will retain the form that characterized his racing efforts before a siege of coughing forced him out of the Preakness, Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes.

Apparently Sunny Jim thinks the horse is ready—and confident the colt is as good as he ever has been.

Comeback

Mrs. B. F. Whitaker's Sickle T didn't look so terrific in the Butler Handicap, but he made his owner forget that disappointment with a smashing showing yesterday in winning the Gramatan Handicap of a mile and a furlong at Empire City.

Favorite at even money and top-weighted at 122 pounds, Sickle T defeated four other Class C horses with a 1.52 1-5 performance that gave him a length over Sandy Boot, with Pretty Pet three lengths farther behind.

There never was much doubt about the outcome, with Sickle T setting his own pace all the way, although challenged by Sandy Boot, just after the turn for home.

Jack Howard, who recently severed his connections with B. F. Whitaker stable, will campaign his own string next season. The former rider has ten yearlings on his farm at Lexington, Ky., and is very much excited about a daughter of Blue Larkspur.

Aubrey Fletcher, who was first assistant to the late W. B. Streett, has taken over the horses owned by S. A. Warner Baltazzi and The Mill River Stable.

Cleveland Tops A's 8-5; Take League Lead

Three Homers Feature Tribe's 15-Hit Attack

PHILADELPHIA, July 11, (AP), Cleveland's hitherto punchless Indians regained their batting eyes today and bombarded the Philadelphia Athletics to an 8 to 5 defeat in the opener of a three-game series.

Home runs by Ben Chapman, Lou Boudreau and Ken Keltner, the last with two men on base, headlined the Tribe's 15-hit rampage against Chubby Dean and Ed Heusser.

Southpaw Al Milnar started for the Indians and was credited with his 12th victory, although he weakened in the heat in the sixth inning, and Joe Dobson finished. Cleveland, starting a new eastern invasion, was ahead throughout.

Manager Oscar Vitt installed a new batting order, featuring Chapman in the leadoff role and Boudreau in the No. 3 spot, and the switch of the two yielded dividends, for each made two hits besides his homer.

Scouts To See W. Va. Semi-Pros

HARRISVILLE, W. Va., July 11 (AP)—There will be some big league scouts watching the West Virginia semi-pro baseball tournament starting July 13, so the spectators can expect just a little bit better brand of play than usual.

K. F. Fidler, tournament director, said today he had been advised by the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates that their "ivory hunters" would look over the teams and players in the tournament, to be held on successive week-ends.

Besides, Fidler said, "we are looking for representatives from some of the other major league clubs."

Eleven teams have entered the tournament and the twelfth is expected before play begins.

Two defeats are necessary to eliminate a team, with the first two rounds of the tournament to be limited to seven-inning games. After that, the tournament director will determine the length of the contests.

Three-game sessions are scheduled for each Saturday and Sunday afternoon until the winner is determined . t.

The drawings for the Saturday games:

St. Mary's Oilers versus Austin Powder Company, Lumberport Red Sox versus Twelfth Team to enter; Christopher No. 3 versus The Wanstreet Servicemen.

Sunday contests:

Corra's versus the Wyatt Cubs, Century Cubs versus the Dr. Adams and Hap Groty All-Stars, Ritchie Merchants versus MacFarlan.

Western Amateur Is Devoid of Upsets

MINNEAPOLIS, July 11 (AP)—First round matches in the fourty-first annual Western amateur golf tournament here today were devoid of upsets as far as the favorites were concerned and the thirty-two survivors moved immediately into second round matches at the Minneapolis Golf Club course.

Pulling up with victories were Harry Todd of Dallas, defending champion; Larry Moller of Quincy, Ill., last year's runnerup; Bud Ward of Spokane, national amateur champion; Johnny Goodman of Omaha, former national open and amateur winner; Art Doering of Chicago and Jim Ferrier of Sydney, Australia, the co-medalists; Wilford Wehrle of Chicago and Chick Evans, Chicago veteran who is seeking to win the event for ninth time.

If You Are In Doubt Ask Our Mr. Lardner

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, July 11—Lardner's refined information bureau! Dear Sir—I have just caught and landed a big marlin in my first attempt at deep-sea fishing. What shall I do with it? Please rush reply.—L.J.B.

Answer: There are many interesting things a fisherman can do with his first marlin. I suggest a bus ride to different points of historical interest in the morning, then lunch, and then perhaps a matinee of some musical comedy (two good orchestra seats would be $8.80).

If you want to take the fish on a longer expedition—maybe for the week-end—check with the railroads for good summer bargains. Round trip fare from Boston to Niagara Falls, for instance, is $26.60, upper berth. The berth itself is $2.20. A lower for yourself and an upper for the marlin would add to $5.35, one-way. Drawing-rooms are $11.55. A marlin less than 12 years of age travels half-fare, and two young marlins and one adult may be accommodated for two fares in a drawing-room.

In the end, you will have to stuff your dumb companion. Most experts prefer a chestnut stuffing, with a soupcon or sage. Be sure your fish is absolutely dead before you stuff him. Marlins are treacherous. Groupers are loyal and honest.

Dear Mr. Lardner—Are you the fellow who picked the St. Louis Cardinals to win the National League pennant last April?—Late Riser.

Answer: No Speak English.

Dear Mr. Lardner—My doctor has ordered me to play poona until further notice. How do I go about it? What is poona? If you don't know, please say so and do not waste my time, which is valuable.—Anxious.

Answer: Poona can be corking fun. In order to play it—h'mm, let's see—well, I would first get myself the best kind of poona equipment, and not the second-best. The second-best is no substitute for the best. That's true of any game, from roque to Muggins. Get the best, or you will not be playing poona the way it should be played. Any poona player will tell you the same thing.

Once you have the equipment, my advice is to go out there and play the best poona you know how. Poona is not a game for quitters. Poona is not a game of half-measures. Poona is a game—well, play it and see for yourself. It will open new vistas. If it does not open new vistas darn quickly, ask for your money back, and take up red dog. I will be glad to teach you red dog any time. You and your doctor both.

Dear Sir—What is the lifetime batting average of Hank Greenberg?—Taxpayer.

Answer: Henry L. Greenberg was born in New York City on January 1, 1911. As a boy he did not know the meaning of the word "fail," but later stopped at the public library and looked it up in a dictionary. That episode is typical of the man. He bats and throws right-handed. He is six feet, four inches tall, and a bachelor. In 1932 he stole eleven bases for Beaumont, in the Texas League. Hank is all right.

Dear Mr. Lardner—Which goes faster, a motorcycle or a canvasback duck?—Stepchild.

Answer: That strikes me as one of the most sensible questions I have ever heard. Thousands of people probably ask themselves that same thing every day, but are too lazy to do anything about finding out.

The best motorcycle performance I know of is 152.86 (undoubtedly miles per hour). The canvasback duck has been timed at 72 miles per hour by experts aboard a train. The train carried no diner. The experts got off at Harrisburg.

Dear Sir—What was Paavo Nurmi's best time?—Gray Eyes.

Answer: Nurmi once told me that the best time he ever had was at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon somewhere in Nebraska. They served each guest eight cups of coffee, a brew to which the lovable Finn was always partial.

Bees Beat Cubs 2 to 1 in Ten Inning Battle

Miller's Long Fly Breaks Up Pitchers' Duel

CHICAGO, July 11, (AP). The Boston Bees went 10 innings to win the second game of a double header today, 2 to 1, after Chicago's Cubs had taken the opener, 8 to 2, before 7,347 spectators.

Larry French and Dick Errickson engaged in a scorless duel for eight innings of the nighcap, which was played in 60 degree weather. Each gave up one run in the ninth. Then Sibby Sisi who singled and scored Boston's ninth inning run, drove out a long fly in the 10th to score Eddie Miller with the winning marker.

The Cubs got their lone counter on Bill Nicholson's triple and Augie Galan's double.

Nicholson's three run homer helped Claude Passeau win his ninth victory against eight defeats in the opener. Passeau allowed nine hits and blanked the Bees until the ninth.

A NEW BASEBALL ERA

For four years the New York Yankees dominated baseball to such an extent they left a cock-eyed slant on the double corral. They left too definite an impression that the American League was the whole show, including the pink lemonade, the big tent, the elephants, the hard blue seats and the side-show after the main act.

It was never quite that way. It wasn't the American League which dominated the diamond. It was merely the New York Yankees. They won something like 38 out of 31 World Series games, dating from 1937. So, naturally, the National League must have been a flock of sand lotters.

But don't forget that during that four-year spell the Yankees were also annihilating, assassinating, murdering, manhandling and mauling the Boston Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers, the Cleveland Indians and the remainder of their league.

I recall a certain Yankee slump in the Midwest a year or two ago. They lost six out of eight games. I asked one of the Yankees about this cave in.

"No," he said, "we were not exactly loafing. But why run for a car you've caught. We knew we were 12 to 15 games better than the rest of the league. We knew we could loaf and still gallop in."

BUT NOT TODAY

But it's all different today. The Yankees of 1940 are far and away from the Yankees of 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939. And with the dizzy descent of the Yankees from their old heights, so the dominance of the American League has ended.

I saw the National League win its all-star game in Tampa last March. I saw National League pitchers tie American League sluggers into an assortment of true lovers' knots.

The same thing happened in St. Louis this week. Once again National League pitchers put silencers on American League bats.

In the last 18 innings of all-star play, from March to July, American League sluggers have hammered, exploded, thundered and mauled one flabby run across the plate.

There was a time when the A. L. had most of the dynamite. It may have the jump in long-range shooting today, but not against the pick of National League pitching. No set of home-run sluggers are going to make any headway against Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Carl Hubbell (that's right), or many others I could name.

The Yankees from 1935 through 1939 were an exception. They had practically everything—the hitting, the fielding, the pitching, the confidence and the poise. They had amazing balance, which is something that time works on in its leisurely way.

THE TWO LEAGUES

American Leaguers will tell you that Detroit, Cleveland, Boston and New York all could win the National League pennant, with something to spare.

National Leaguers, now lifted from the gloomy abyss of the years that knew defeat, are telling you the Reds and Dodgers would run away with an American League pennant.

"What do you suppose," one veteran National Leaguer asked me, "would happen to that American League if their hitters had to move out against Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Junior Thompson, Jim Turner, Whitey Moore and others day after day? There wouldn't be a team in that league hitting .240 against Red pitching."

This is moving a trifle fast the other way.

The two leagues now are better balanced than they have been in some years. Again this is largely due to the Yankee drop.

"Where are my legions?" some Roman emperor once asked, using a free translation.

"Where are my Ruffings and Dickeys and Gehrigs and Gomezes and Gordons and Rolfes and Crosettis?" Joe McCarthy also might be asking today.

The late Mr. Tennyson's stream may go on forever, but men don't. "Time, that aged nurse," may rock us to patience, but it doesn't add to our speeds and power, to our timing and our quick reflexes.

Baseball, in losing the four-year Yankees—losing them so far, at least — has built up additional interest through both leagues, especially the American League where several other teams have their chance for the promised land, flowin with milk, honey and the World Series swag.

It has also lifted a heavy shadow from the National League which year after year saw their champions hammered to a pulp as the Yankees mopped up in four straight or something almost as bad.

The present campaign may be an ill wind for the Yankees, but it has been a soothing summer breeze for the other clubs which have been shivering in the Barren Lands since 1935.

Now we have two great pennant races, two well-matched leagues, and two great stretch runs on ahead.

Who can ask for more? Barring, of course, the Yankees, who still can't understand who swung the lead pipe and just what has happened.

The mixed doubles are also down to three teams. Today at 4 p. m. Mrs. Leo Leasure and Robert Bane clash with Mrs. Peyton Brown and Lawrence Middlecamp, the winner playing the finals Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Dingle with Mrs. Arden Lowndes and Ross Palmer.

Dunn First Half Batting Champ in County League

Andy Dunn, of Frostburg, playing with the LaVale A. A. outfit, copped first half batting laurels in the Allegany County Softball League with an average of .576 for 13 games, it was announced yesterday by Secretary W. Henry Frazier.

First half records show batters have done well in a league that has a number of star hurlers. There are six players with averages of .500 or better, 14 in the .400's and 43 additional sluggers boasting marks of between .300 and .400.

Joe Nestor, of Corriganville, took second place with .560 for a dozen games while Hixenbaugh of Potomac Valley, who appeared in 18 contests, finished third with .500.

Billy Kline, of the Corgs, placed fourth with .491; Linny Hartsock, of Narrows Park, fifth with .484; G. Hixenbaugh, of Wilkinson Grocers, sixth with .433; Lloyd Kline, of the Corgs, seventh with .432; Sammy Shaffer, of LaVale, eighth with .429; P. Stair, of Stringtown, ninth with .425, and Franklin See, of Ellerslie, tenth with .416.

Nestor leads in homers with six while Dave Mosser, injured in an auto accident Decoration Day and who also plays with the Corgs, had four.

Middleton, of LaVale, finished on top in triples with seven, while Shaffer and Bill Thomas, both of LaVale, were tied for most doubles with eight. Bill Kline, of Corriganville, had the greatest number of hits, 26, and were first in runs scored with 23.

City Doubles Final Scheduled Saturday

With the men's and women's singles titles already in the hands of Russ Ponton and Mrs. Peyton Brown, the city tennis tournament will be completed this week with championships being determined in men's and mixed doubles.

In the men's doubles, semi-finalists are Ponton and K. R. Dye, Palmer and Bane, W. E. Hinkel and Ed Harvey and Loraine Eisenberg and Middlecamp.

Cleveland Tops A's 8-5; Take League Lead

Three Homers Feature Tribe's 15-Hit Attack

PHILADELPHIA, July 11, (AP), Cleveland's hitherto punchless Indians regained their batting eyes today and bombarded the Philadelphia Athletics to an 8 to 5 defeat in the opener of a three-game series.

Home runs by Ben Chapman, Lou Boudreau and Ken Keltner, the last with two men on base, headlined the Tribe's 15-hit rampage against Chubby Dean and Ed Heusser.

Southpaw Al Milnar started for the Indians and was credited with his 12th victory, although he weakened in the heat in the sixth inning, and Joe Dobson finished. Cleveland, starting a new eastern invasion, was ahead throughout.

Manager Oscar Vitt installed a new batting order, featuring Chapman in the leadoff role and Boudreau in the No. 3 spot, and the switch of the two yielded dividends, for each made two hits besides his homer.

Scouts To See W. Va. Semi-Pros

HARRISVILLE, W. Va., July 11 (AP)—There will be some big league scouts watching the West Virginia semi-pro baseball tournament starting July 13, so the spectators can expect just a little bit better brand of play than usual.

K. F. Fidler, tournament director, said today he had been advised by the Cincinnati Reds and the Pittsburgh Pirates that their "ivory hunters" would look over the teams and players in the tournament, to be held on successive week-ends.

Besides, Fidler said, "we are looking for representatives from some of the other major league clubs."

Eleven teams have entered the tournament and the twelfth is expected before play begins.

Two defeats are necessary to eliminate a team, with the first two rounds of the tournament to be limited to seven-inning games. After that, the tournament director will determine the length of the contests.

Three-game sessions are scheduled for each Saturday and Sunday afternoon until the winner is dedetermined . t.

St. Mary's Oilers versus Austin Powder Company, Lumberport Red Sox versus Twelfth Team to enter; Christopher No. 3 versus The Wanstreet Servicemen.

Sunday contests:

Corra's versus the Wyatt Cubs, Century Cubs versus the Dr. Adams and Hap Groty All-Stars, Ritchie Merchants versus MacFarlan.

Western Amateur Is Devoid of Upsets

MINNEAPOLIS, July 11 (AP)—First round matches in the fourty-first annual Western amateur golf tournament here today were devoid of upsets as far as the favorites were concerned and the thirty-two survivors moved immediately into second round matches at the Minneapolis Golf Club course.

Pulling up with victories were Harry Todd of Dallas, defending champion; Larry Moller of Quincy, Ill., last year's runnerup; Bud Ward of Spokane, national amateur champion; Johnny Goodman of Omaha, former national open and amateur winner; Art Doering of Chicago and Jim Ferrier of Sydney, Australia, the co-medalists; Wilford Wehrle of Chicago and Chick Evans, Chicago veteran who is seeking to win the event for ninth time.

If You Are In Doubt Ask Our Mr. Lardner

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, July 11—Lardner's refined information bureau! Dear Sir—I have just caught and landed a big marlin in my first attempt at deep-sea fishing. What shall I do with it? Please rush reply.—L.J.B.

Answer: There are many interesting things a fisherman can do with his first marlin. I suggest a bus ride to different points of historical interest in the morning, then lunch, and then perhaps a matinee of some musical comedy (two good orchestra seats would be $8.80).

If you want to take the fish on a longer expedition—maybe for the week-end—check with the railroads for good summer bargains. Round trip fare from Boston to Niagara Falls, for instance, is $26.60, upper berth. The berth itself is $2.20. A lower for yourself and an upper for the marlin would add to $5.35, one-way. Drawing-rooms are $11.55. A marlin less than 12 years of age travels half-fare, and two young marlins and one adult may be accommodated for two fares in a drawing-room.

In the end, you will have to stuff your dumb companion. Most experts prefer a chestnut stuffing, with a soupcon or sage. Be sure your fish is absolutely dead before you stuff him. Marlins are treacherous. Groupers are loyal and honest.

Dear Mr. Lardner—Are you the fellow who picked the St. Louis Cardinals to win the National League pennant last April?—Late Riser.

Answer: No Speak English.

Dear Mr. Lardner—My doctor has ordered me to play poona until further notice. How do I go about it? What is poona? If you don't know, please say so and do not waste my time, which is valuable.—Anxious.

Answer: Poona can be corking fun. In order to play it—h'mm, let's see—well, I would first get myself the best kind of poona equipment, and not the second-best. The second-best is no substitute for the best. That's true of any game, from roque to Muggins. Get the best, or you will not be playing poona the way it should be played. Any poona player will tell you the same thing.

Once you have the equipment, my advice is to go out there and play the best poona you know how. Poona is not a game for quitters. Poona is not a game of half-measures. Poona is a game—well, play it and see for yourself. It will open new vistas. If it does not open new vistas darn quickly, ask for your money back, and take up red dog. I will be glad to teach you red dog any time. You and your doctor both.

Dear Sir—What is the lifetime batting average of Hank Greenberg?—Taxpayer.

Answer: Henry L. Greenberg was born in New York City on January 1, 1911. As a boy he did not know the meaning of the word "fail," but later stopped at the public library and looked it up in a dictionary. That episode is typical of the man. He bats and throws right-handed. He is six feet, four inches tall, and a bachelor. In 1932 he stole eleven bases for Beaumont, in the Texas League. Hank is all right.

Dear Mr. Lardner—Which goes faster, a motorcycle or a canvasback duck?—Stepchild.

Answer: That strikes me as one of the most sensible questions I have ever heard. Thousands of people probably ask themselves that same thing every day, but are too lazy to do anything about finding out.

The best motorcycle performance I know of is 152.86 (undoubtedly miles per hour). The canvasback duck has been timed at 72 miles per hour by experts aboard a train. The train carried no diner. The experts got off at Harrisburg.

Dear Sir—What was Paavo Nurmi's best time?—Gray Eyes.

Answer: Nurmi once told me that the best time he ever had was at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon somewhere in Nebraska. They served each guest eight cups of coffee, a brew to which the lovable Finn was always partial.

Bees Beat Cubs 2 to 1 in Ten Inning Battle

Miller's Long Fly Breaks Up Pitchers' Duel

CHICAGO, July 11, (AP), The Boston Bees went 10 innings to win the second game of a double header today, 2 to 1, after Chicago's Cubs had taken the opener, 8 to 2, before 7,347 spectators.

Larry French and Dick Errickson engaged in a scorless duel for eight innings of the nighcap, which was played in 60 degree weather. Each gave up one run in the ninth. Then Sibby Sisi who singled and scored Boston's ninth inning run, drove out a long fly in the 10th to score Eddie Miller with the winning marker.

Miller had doubled and gone to third on Errickson's scratch single.

The Cubs got their lone counter on Bill Nicholson's triple and Augie Galan's double.

Nicholson's three run homer helped Claude Passeau win his ninth victory against eight defeats in the opener. Passeau allowed nine hits and blanked the Bees until the ninth.

A NEW BASEBALL ERA

For four years the New York Yankees dominated baseball to such an extent they left a cock-eyed slant on the double corral. They left too definite an impression that the American League was the whole show, including the pink lemonade, the big tent, the elephants, the hard blue seats and the side-show after the main act.

It was never quite that way. It wasn't the American League which dominated the diamond. It was merely the New York Yankees. They won something like 38 out of 31 World Series games, dating from 1937. So, naturally, the National League must have been a flock of sand lotters.

But don't forget that during that four-year spell the Yankees were also annihilating, assassinating, murdering, manhandling and mauling the Boston Red Sox, the Detroit Tigers, the Cleveland Indians and the remainder of their league.

I recall a certain Yankee slump in the Midwest a year or two ago. They lost six out of eight games. I asked one of the Yankees about this cave in.

"No," he said, "we were not exactly loafing. But why run for a car you've caught. We knew we were 12 to 15 games better than the rest of the league. We knew we could loaf and still gallop in."

BUT NOT TODAY

But it's all different today. The Yankees of 1940 are far and away from the Yankees of 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939. And with the dizzy descent of the Yankees from their old heights, so the dominance of the American League has ended.

I saw the National League win its all-star game in Tampa last March. I saw National League pitchers tie American League sluggers into an assortment of true lovers' knots.

The same thing happened in St. Louis this week. Once again National League pitchers put silencers on American League bats.

In the last 18 innings of all-star play, from March to July, American League sluggers have hammered, exploded, thundered and mauled one flabby run across the plate.

There was a time when the A. L. had most of the dynamite. It may have the jump in long-range shooting today, but not against the pick of National League pitching. No set of home-run sluggers are going to make any headway against Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Carl Hubbell (that's right), or many others I could name.

The Yankees from 1935 through 1939 were an exception. They had practically everything—the hitting, the fielding, the pitching, the confidence and the poise. They had amazing balance, which is something that time works on in its leisurely way.

THE TWO LEAGUES

American Leaguers will tell you that Detroit, Cleveland, Boston and New York all could win the National League pennant, with something to spare.

National Leaguers, now lifted from the gloomy abyss of the years that knew defeat, are telling you the Reds and Dodgers would run away with an American League pennant.

"What do you suppose," one veteran National Leaguer asked me, "would happen to that American League if their hitters had to move out against Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Junior Thompson, Jim Turner, Whitey Moore and others day after day? There wouldn't be a team in that league hitting .240 against Red pitching."

This is moving a trifle fast the other way.

The two leagues now are better balanced than they have been in some years. Again this is largely due to the Yankee drop.

"Where are my legions?" some Roman emperor once asked, using a free translation.

"Where are my Ruffings and Dickeys and Gehrigs and Gomezes and Gordons and Rolfes and Crosettis?" Joe McCarthy also might be asking today.

The late Mr. Tennyson's stream may go on forever, but men don't. "Time, that aged nurse," may rock us to patience, but it doesn't add to our speeds and power, to our timing and our quick reflexes.

Baseball, in losing the four-year Yankees—losing them so far, at least — has built up additional interest through both leagues, especially the American League where several other teams have their chance for the promised land, flowin with milk, honey and the World Series swag.

It has also lifted a heavy shadow from the National League which year after year saw their champions hammered to a pulp as the Yankees mopped up in four straight or something almost as bad.

The present campaign may be an ill wind for the Yankees, but it has been a soothing summer breeze for the other clubs which have been shivering in the Barren Lands since 1935.

Now we have two great pennant races, two well-matched leagues, and two great stretch runs on ahead.

Who can ask for more? Barring, of course, the Yankees, who still can't understand who swung the lead pipe and just what has happened.

Middleton, of LaVale, finished on top in triples with seven, while Shaffer and Bill Thomas, both of LaVale, were tied for most doubles with eight. Bill Kline, of Corriganville, had the greatest number of hits, 26, and were first in runs scored with 23.

City Doubles Final Scheduled Saturday

With the men's and women's singles titles already in the hands of Russ Ponton and Mrs. Peyton Brown, the city tennis tournament will be completed this week with championships being determined in men's and mixed doubles.

Mrs. Arden Lowndes and Ross Palmer advanced to the finals of the mixed doubles Wednesday by defeating Mrs. Hope Rilling Mills and Gordon Bowie 6-3, 6-1 at the Cumberland Country Club. Mrs. Lowndes and Palmer will oppose the winner of the match between Mrs. Jeannette Eyler Leasure and Robert Bane and Mrs. Brown and Lawrence Middlecamp, to be played today at 4 o'clock at the Dingle.

In the men's doubles, semi-finalists are Ponton and K. R. Dye, Palmer and Bane, W. E. Hinkel and Ed Harvey and Loraine Eisenberg and Middlecamp.

Pauline Elizabeth Price, an infant, by Bessie May Yonker, her mother and next friend, vs. Donald Price.
No. 15724 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant a vinculo matrimonii.

The Bill of Complaint states that on the 8th day of November, 1936, the parties were married at Cumberland, Maryland, and that immediately after the marriage the said defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and declared his intention not to live with her, and that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly from that time down to the present time, and that said abandonment is for at least three (3) years and is deliberate and final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation.

That one child was born of said marriage on February 27, 1937, to wit: Robert Allan Price, and that the plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been domiciled therein for more than two (2) years last past; and that the defendant is a resident of the State of New York and a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 11th day of July, 1940, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County that the plaintiff, by causing this Order to be inserted in some certain newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, before the 12th day of August, 1940, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 26th day of August, 1940, to show cause, if any he may have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Virginia Mary Rowe, an infant, by Catherine Agnes Brant, her mother and next friend, vs. Richard Robert Rowe.
No. 15721 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the Complainant from the Defendant a vinculo matrimonii. The bill of complaint states that the parties were married on the 7th day of June, 1938, in Cumberland, Maryland; that there were no children born of said marriage; that ever since said marriage the complainant has behaved herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife towards the said defendant and that her entire conduct has always been above reproach; that the said defendant has committed adultery since said marriage; that the complainant has not lived or cohabited with the said defendant since she discovered his said adulterous conduct, nor has she pardoned or condoned the same; that the complainant has been a resident of the State of Maryland and Allegany County for more than two years prior to the filing of the Bill of Complaint in this case; and that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is thereupon this 10th day of July, 1940, by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland, sitting in Equity, ordered that the complainant, by causing a copy of this order to be published in some newspaper published in Allegany County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks, before the 12th day of August, 1940, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 26th day of August, 1940, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Willkie Described by William A. Gunter as A Man You Can Trust

Sixth District GOP Club Hears Vivid Account of Big Convention

A Taft man who has gone overboard for Willkie, last night described his experiences at the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia, for the keenly interested members of the Sixth District Republican Club.

"I went up there pretty interested in Taft," former State Senator William A. Gunter told the club members last night at the Knights of Malta Hall. "And Morgan C. Harris went up there a devout Dewey follower, in fact he was splurging around with a big Dewey button.

"Well, both of us and Glenn Beall met all three of them, paid 'em visits. And after meeting and talking to this man Willkie I heard Morgan muttering to Glenn, 'give me one of those Willkie buttons.'"

Although the club members were interested in the vivid account of the convention Mr. Gunter furnished, it was quite obvious they were principally interested in hearing about Willkie. And Mr. Gunter somewhat malevolently kept them in suspense right up to the windup of his talk. When he started on Willkie the boys all perked up.

Can Trust Willkie

"When you shake hands with Willkie," Mr. Gunter began trying to put his finger on what it is that makes the G.O.P. candidate electric, "you say to yourself, 'here's a man I can trust in a pinch'."

"He's not much on dress and he doesn't try to put on the dog," the describer continued in his portrait of the uncombed candidate who sprawls in chairs. "But he has color, oomph, sex appeal, personality, no palaver and is quick on the trigger.

"Prior to the convention most people thought the drive for Willkie being waged was a newspaper campaign," Mr. Gunter continued. "They thought he would pick up fifty or sixty votes at the convention and then fold up.

"Well, he didn't. When that gallery of 14,000 people started yelling for Willkie I never heard such a damned racket in my life. And you've got to remember most of the delegates in this convention weren't the dumb driven cattle they usually are. Pennsylvania's delegates, of course, were hogtied right up to the last.

"But all in all, this convention was the most democratic affair of its sort in history. The delegates were a fine-looking bunch of responsible Americans with young men and women taking a very active hand in the affair. The so-called Old Guard wasn't so much in evidence at this convention after the lean years. Bossism had vanished in thin air."

Too Lazy To Vote

Swinging off on a different tangent, Mr. Gunter referred to an address made July 4 by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan. Judge Sloan said the American people were "getting soft."

Picking up Judge Sloan's remark, Mr. Gunter declared many Americans don't want to think for themselves anymore. They even have to be coaxed and begged to go to the polls and vote, he said.

"It's a shame when a country breeds an electorate that is so lazy it won't even go to the polls unless dragged out and escorted there in a Packard," the speaker emphatically stated.

"However, in view of the fact millions of people are content to have their opinions formed by radio commentators and the press, it seems to me the biggest thing in favor of Wendell Willkie is the fact that ninety-five percent of American newspapers are enthusiastically in favor of him.

"Taft is a fine man. I sat beside him and talked to him in Philadelphia's Union League Club. I liked Taft. But he doesn't have the appeal the American public demands of a presidential candidate. And Willkie has it. He makes great newspaper copy. And we can't afford to underestimate the power of the press in swinging this coming election.

Mr. Gunter, an honorary sergeant-at-arms at the convention with a medal, told the members of the audience, "multiply the Fort Hill auditorium by ten and you have a general idea of the size of that convention hall."

Commenting on the carefully planned convention spectacle, Mr. Gunter said it was symbolic of the fact that the "American people are actors, not thinkers. They want entertainment."

The Swing to Willkie

Referring to the swing from Dewey and Taft to Willkie, Gunter mentioned a fact pointed out by the Republican New York Sun, namely, that it had been the smaller states such as Maryland that were responsible for the shift by letting their votes go at strategic moments.

Mr. Gunter said it was necessary to mention Glenn Beall in any commentary on the affair since "Glenn, I think, was responsible for getting more people into that hall than anybody there. How he did it, I don't know but he did. He was besieged day and night by people trying to get in and in most cases he managed it."

President Fred Driscoll presided at last night's meeting of which Mr. Gunter's talk was the main feature. Refreshments were furnished by the Queen City Brewing Company.

Green Death Is Held Unavoidable

Several Witnesses Are Questioned Here by State's Attorney

The death of William Adam Green, 62, single, of Douglas avenue, Lonaconing, who was killed Wednesday night when struck by the under-pinning of a car as he lay in the center of George's Creek Boulevard on the outskirts of Pekin, near Lonaconing, was unavoidable, authorities said yesterday.

Harvey R Diehl, 120 Frost avenue, Frostburg, driver of the car, and several other witnesses were questioned here yesterday morning by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

Green, an unemployed miner, was seen staggering along the highway a few minutes prior to the accident and several cars narrowly missed striking him, authorities said they were told.

Mr. Green was a son of the late William S. and Amanda Green.

Surviving are a brother, Jack Green, of Davis, W. Va., and three sisters, Miss Gertrude Green, with whom he resided; Mrs. Jacob Cutter, of Cumberland, and Mrs. Fred Wrixson, of Martin's Ferry, Ohio.

Gateway Chatter

Gateway Chatter would appreciate receiving information about hobbies of Cumberland residents and invites those who have hobbies to drop a line to the column. Readers who can tip the column off about the hobbies of their friends are invited to do so. Come on, let's find out what Cumberlanders do with their leisure time.

Radio station WCKY in Covington, Ky., is sending out lapel buttons with the American flag colors along with the following message:

SHOW YOUR COLORS: These are times when every American should wear with pride, the emblem of liberty and justice. WCKY, the L. B. Wilson station, is presenting 100,000 of these buttons to 100,000 loyal Americans. WCKY pledges that its programs and its power will always be dedicated to the service of our flag, our country and our people.

When it comes to a showdown, Americans are never short on their patriotism, and that goes for Cumberland. In fact, Gateway Chatter wagers that local folk can just about outdo any place on that score.

A Cumberland minister yesterday asked Gateway Chatter to write a piece about petty thievery in the city. It seems the minister parked his car on Mechanic street yesterday and when he returned a few minutes later he discovered someone had taken two mirrors off his automobile.

Residents of South Harting, England, who attend church regularly received their free beer as usual this year. They marched to church carrying peeled hazel sticks and wearing large rosettes in their hats, the sticks connecting them with the pilgrims who passed through South Harting on their way to Canterbury carrying staves. After the services an old English meal was served during which the "regulars" consumed seventy gallons of free beer.

This might be a way to increase church attendance in Cumberland but Gateway Chatter would not recommend that it be tried — there probably wouldn't be enough room to accommodate everyone.

"Red", who can't swim anyway, took off his shoes and socks just as a precaution, depositing same under the seat.

"Things were going fine until they hit a ripple or something, maybe it was a rock," the mayor trumpeted," and over they went."

Davis seized the rear end of the overturned scow, forlornly watched his shoes and socks bobble on the water and then sink. Long made for shore, shouted directions as "Red" finally bumped into a rock protruding out of the water and clambered up.

"Stay there until I get help," Long yelled. Davis sadly nodded. There

OLD FOLKS AT HOME—Superintendent William M. Matheney, of the Allegany County Home, is perturbed over Gov. O'Conor's inference that his home is in a "deplorable" condition. He is inviting the governor to come and pay him a visit . . . meet people like Mrs. Mary Pryor, above, who lives at the home. Mrs. Pryor is 72 and right now is busy making a patchwork quilt. She has a pleasant, silvery voice, enjoys her own jokes. She posed yesterday just as she was found, industriously sewing with thimble on her finger. Her room, typical of the home, is light, airy, neat and homey. Mrs. Pryor is pleasant, probably makes swell apple pie.

OPEN TO VISITORS—Superintendent Matheney says he wishes more people would visit the country home, will leave it to any tidy housewife regarding that "deplorable" condition matter. Residents have a big front porch to snooze on. Comfortable chairs are placed conveniently under shady maple trees on the home's spacious grounds.

TAKING IT EASY—Mr. and Mrs. Lacey Ross, ages 83 and 86, enjoy sitting together on the front lawn chatting pleasantly with their neighbors. Mr. and Mrs. Lacey, retired farm people, are very devoted. Mrs. Lacey's eyes have been giving her trouble of late. She got a little fussed when her picture was taken. Mr. Lacey enjoyed it.

Governor Is Challenged To Inspect Conditions at Allegany County Home

Superintendent Matheney Declares Local Institution Is an Exception

A challenge to Governor O'Conor to inspect the Allegany county home from top to bottom and see for himself if conditions found are "deplorable" or not was issued yesterday by Superintendent William M. Matheney.

Serious, accomodating Mr. Matheney, who watches over his brood of forty-two nice old ladies and gentlemen like a mother hen, admitted he was perturbed over the governor's announced plan to bring about the abandonment of so-called almshouses throughout the state. But he was even more perturbed over the governor's inference in his blanket statement that conditions in the Allegany home, like other similar homes throughout the state, are in a "deplorable" condition.

Objects to Almhouse

To begin with, the superintendent considers the word "almshouse" an odious term. His county home is no almshouse, he stoutly contended referring a reporter to the charter in his office. The charter issued by the county commissioners in 1911 was to the "Allegany County Home" and nothing is included therein about any almshouse.

"I'm inclined to think the governor overstepped his bounds in issuing his recent statement," Mr. Matheney said quietly. "I'm issuing an invitation to the governor asking him to come and pay us a visit. And I wish all neat, orderly housewives in the county would do the same. I'll let them be the judge."

Despite the cloud cast by what was considered the governor's objectionable statement, Superintendent Matheney was found yesterday in an enthusiastic mood.

Bids are now coming in on the new six room home to be built soon back of the county home proper for the superintendent and his family. And while Mr. Matheney is pleased over the prospects of a new home, he is fairly bubbling with enthusiasm over a more important goal he and his associates are about to achieve.

Once the new home is built and the superintendent "moves out and in", the quarters vacated by himself and his family plus several other rooms will be made into an up-to-date infirmary and hospital.

People Need Care

Producing the plans drawn up by Holt Hitchins, Mr. Matheney showed that fifteen rooms in all will be utilized for the hospital which will include the most modern equipment.

"Our old people need considerable care," Mr. Matheney said. "We pay out an average of $75 a month for drugs. And for ten years now, Dr. Fred Williams has been working for this hospital, long before Governor O'Conor was ever heard of."

According to the plans, the new hospital will accomodate between thirty-five and forty patients and the front porch will be inclosed with glass for a sun porch. The improvements will include new floors in all rooms except four and it will be necessary to make all doorways four feet wide.

A silvery, pleasant voice answered the knock at one room in the womens' section. The voice belonged to Mrs. Mary Pryor, 72. She was found sitting in a comfortable rocker sorting out gay-colored pieces of colored cloth. The cloth was piled high on her bed which was covered with a white, unrumpled spread. A pretty red work basket was nearby.

Asked what she was up to anyway, Mrs. Pryor said she was starting work on a patchwork quilt. She seemed quite enthusiastic about it, talked happily, laughed at little jokes she made herself. Pictures of a religious and decorative nature adorned the walls. An old-fashioned pin cushion and a black-covered Bible which had a well-used appearance was noted on her table. It wasn't necessary to ask Mrs. Pryor if she was happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Lacey Ross, ages 83 and 86, were found resting underneath a shade tree on the front lawn. Mr. and Mrs. Ross, retired farm people, haven't been at the

Mayor Irvine Is Opposed to City Manager Proposal

Tells Kiwanians "Something Is Going To Be Done" at Tin Mill

Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday hinted that there is still hope for renewed activity at the Taylor tinplate mill and took a back-handed slap at the city manager plan.

In an informal talk at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Fort Cumberland hotel, Mayor Irvine state flatly, in referring to the tin mill, that "something is going to be done down there."

The mayor, although speaking with confidence, did not elaborate on this statement.

Turning to Cumberland's form of government, the speaker praised the present commission set-up as the "best system of government that can be inaugurated if men in it act honest one to the other."

Praises Present Plan

Under the commission form, he said, it is possible to "accomplish and get more per tax dollar and yet not wipe out the fundamentals of self-government."

(One member of his audience, to whom he made numerous laudatory references, was Isaac Hirsch, who was largely instrumental in instituting the commission form of government here, but who is now in favor of setting up the city manager plan.)

Mayor Irvine also hit at the merit system, or civil service, as tending to build up political machines and contrary to the intentions of the framers of the Constitution.

"I firmly believe," he told the Kiwanians, "that the founders of the Constitution never intended this country to have the merit system or so-called civil service.

"It has taken away the real fundamentals and the real rights as laid down by the founders of the Constitution."

The mayor referred particularly to Washington and its thousands of officer-holders and said he was "fearful that the present government can't be overthrown at the November election."

If such a condition exists in the national government, he went on, it also exists in other forms of government—state, county and city.

Discusses Annexes

The city's area was more than doubled in 1930, he stated, when certain outlying areas were annexed in order to keep Cumberland's position as Maryland's second-largest city. Cumberland's area before this action was taken was three and one-half square miles, he said, while today, it is seven and one-half square miles.

Despite this increase in area, there are still the same number of fire departments, the same number of police and the same tax assesment to carry on the city's business, he pointed out.

Two-thirds of the acquired territory is undeveloped land, some of it laid out by real estate companies in sub-divisions as a money-making proposition, Irvine continued, but its residents expect all city conveniences.

Until recently, he went on, only money that could be spent in any annex was the tax money collected there. Money was not supposed to be taken from the general fund for annex services. Now, taxes from the annexes are placed in the general fund, and expenditures made accordingly.

To illustrate the city's dilemma formerly, he noted that the Dingle was the richest section, while Mapleside, Lintnerville and the Bedford road section developed the fastest. But no taxes collected in

Red Cross War Relief Fund Is Nearing $9,000

Fraternal, Civic Organizations and Business Men Contribute

Nearing $9,000 in the campaign to raise $14,000 for war relief, the Allegany County chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday reported a check for $100 received from the Woodmen of the World, Mountain City Camp, No. 5. This is the second contribution of $100 received from a fraternal organization since the drive began more than a month ago.

Other contributions received in the last few days include the Cresaptown branch of the county Red Cross chapter, $35; Pythian Sisters, Manhattan Temple, No. 8, $6; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, $5 as the first of the monthly payments pledged for the duration of the emergency; Pride of Allegany Council, No. 110, Daughters of America, $5, and the Personal Finance Company, $10.

Also included were donations from Schwarzenbach and Son, and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, making the total received to date from members of the Mercantile Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, $804.50.

According to reports from national headquarters in Washington, the American Red Cross has been called upon to aid American citizens fleeing from danger points in Europe and Asia. Funds have been cabled to Bilbao, Lisbon, Nice and Marseilles to assist Americans in these districts and Red Cross representatives are aiding in feeding, housing and registering these persons.

Since the threat of war in British possessions in China, thousands of British and American citizens have fled to the Philippines making it necessary to provide mass shelter and feeding facilities for several thousands. The Red Cross is being assisted in this work by the United States Army and Navy.

Hospital Stands Expense Of All County Cases, Superintendent Explains

In order to avoid any possible misunderstanding on the part of the general public, public officials yesterday called attention to the fact that county cases are not treated at the county's expense at Memorial hospital.

Chronic cases brought to the hospital are cared for at the expense of the hospital, Superintendent Harvey Weiss said last night when q' ied on the subject.

Due to the fact that the county home does not have an infirmary at the present time, cases are frequently taken to Memorial hospital. Plans are now underway to equip the county home with a moern, up-to-date infirmary-hospital.

Tax Case Taken To Court of Appeals

Two of three petitioners for taxation relief on Washington street properties took their case one step farther yesterday.

Following Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan's opinion that the Circuit Court is powerless to act in the matter, Joseph B. Finan, and the McMullen brothers yesterday appealed their case to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Former Judge Albert A. Doub, the third petitioner in the case, has not as yet filed notice of an appeal, it was announced yesterday in the office of the Clerk of Court.

The petitioners first took their case for relief to the county commissioners and were turned down. An appeal to the State Tax Commissioner upheld the county commissioners in the matter.

The case was then appealed to the Circuit Court and was dismissed on the grounds that the court had no jurisdiction to act.

WPA Technician Conducts Class

For the purpose of instructing Allegany county WPA recreation leaders in the methods of conducting games and other activities at picnics, R. H. Beck, WPA State technician, of Baltimore, conducted an in-service training class in the form of a picnic, Wednesday at Constitution Park.

Friends and families of the recreation leaders were present and took part in the activities. Prizes were awarded winners of various events.

Those present were John Mock, Berkeley Judy, Charles True, Oscar Fleagle, Philip Holshey, Charles W. Bowden, Frances Delaney, William Chappell, James Timney, Ray Middelton, Emily Stewart, Ann Young, Elizabeth Brewer, Margaret Shannon, Mary W. Thursday Hottest Day of the Season; 96 Degrees Here

Cumberland experienced its hottest day of the summer season yesterday as the thermometer on top of city hall went up to the ninety-six-degree mark.

Yesterday's high topped Wednesday's maximum by two degrees. High on Wednesday was 94 degrees, the city hall thermometer showed.

The weather continued sultry and uncomfortable in Cumberland until yesterday evening when a brief thunder storm cleared the air for the time being.

However, forecasters yesterday were predicting plenty of hot weather for the next few days along with the prospect of possible thundershowers.

The warm weather of the last two days sent hundreds of children flocking to the Constitution Park swimming pool, Manager William H. Buchholtz reported yesterday. Among the interested spectators who watched the young people cool off in the pool yesterday was Mayor Harry Irvine.

Driver Arrested After Collision

A minor automobile crash occurred last night at 7 o'clock at Liberty and Frederick street, almost in front of police headquarters.

The drivers involved were Karl F. Zimmerla, 446 North Centre street, and Clarence R. Simons, of Bedford, Pa. Both were charged with careless driving and scheduled to appear this morning in Police court for a hearing.

Officers J. J. Codon and J. E. Kelley, on cruiser car duty, had just arrived at the station when the crash occurred. Both investigated and reported that no one was injured.

Simons posted $10 bond and continued on his way. Zimmerla was not required to give bond.

Youth Held on Stealing and Forgery Charge

Officers Say Paul N. Thompson Admits Stealing $26 WPA Check

Federal authorities yesterday arrested a 17-year-old Williams road youth on charges of stealing and forging a $26 WPA wage check.

Secret Service Agent James Dickenson and Postal Inspector Keith E. Moyer said the youth, Paul Nathaniel Thompson, admitted stealing the check from the RFD box of his brother-in-law, Francis X. Hall, also of Williams road.

Thompson said he cashed the check at a South Cumberland bank and spent the money in about two weeks on candy and cigarettes. He also bought a pair of trousers.

After obtaining a statement from the youth, the authorities released him in the custody of relatives pending an investigation and recommendation by the federal probation officer, who is to arrive here today from Baltimore. Thompson told Dickerson and Moyer that he had never been in trouble before.

"It's the first time and the last time," he said fervently.

The youth was arrested early yesterday afternoon by Dickerson and Deputy United States Marshal Howard P. Loughrie.

James A. Cline Is Charged with Careless Driving

Charges of careless driving were placed against James A. Cline, 408 Springdale street, and John C. Shoupe, 18 North Smallwood street, yesterday at 12:25 p. m., following a minor collision on South Centre street.

Court Approves Adoption of Boy

Adoption of a six-year-old boy by Charles D. Price, of Narrows Park, was approved yesterday by Associate Judge William A. Huster.

The boy, Bruce K. Gross, Jr., is the son of Mrs. Price by her first husband, Bruce K. Gross. Mr. and Mrs. Gross were divorced in 1939 and she was awarded the custody of the child. Later, she married Mr. Price and the child has resided in his home since the marriage.

In the petition presented by Attorney Urner G. Carl, Mr. Price pointed out that he has regular and lucrative employment and has provided for the child since his marriage.

4-H Members To Compete for $200 College Scholarships

For the eleventh year 4-H clubsters enrolled in meat animal projects may share in the benefits of the national 4-H meat animal contest conducted by county agents under the direction of the state extension service, which has accepted the activity as a part of its statewide program.

The contest encourages young folks to learn to grow, feed and fatten meat animals in their projects, through which thousands have been led to start a profitable herd or flock. Gross returns of such enterprises often run into thousands of dollars, and start young men soundly in farming. Last year the three boys making up the national blue award group reported total returns of their efforts were $17,000.

Clubsters making the best county record will be awarded a specially embossed gold fob, and State winners will receive a seventeen-jewel gold watch, appropriately engraved. From the latter, one will be named from each of the four extension sections to receive a trip to the nineteenth National 4-H Club Congress and International Livestock Exposition in Chicago, November 29—December 7, with all expenses paid. Three of the four will receive blue award placing in the nation, and college scholarships of $200 each provided by Thomas E. Wilson of Chicago. Further particulars may be secured from county agents.

Townsend Club To Meet Here Tonight

Townsend Club No. 4 will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the Queen City hotel.

The program will consist of three plays; "What Paw Needs," "One Born Every Minute," and "Nos and Tillie in New York". Those taking part are, Mrs. William A. Wilhelm, Mrs. R. D. Nave, June Dailer, Rose Lee Wilhelm, and Mrs. Louis Stump. There will be no admission charge.

Willkie Described by William A. Gunter as A Man You Can Trust

Sixth District GOP Club Hears Vivid Account of Big Convention

A Taft man who has gone overboard for Willkie, last night described his experiences at the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia, for the keenly interested members of the Sixth District Republican Club.

"I went up there pretty interested in Taft," former State Senator William A. Gunter told the club members last night at the Knights of Malta Hall. "And Morgan C. Harris went up there a devout Dewey follower, in fact he was splurging around with a big Dewey button.

"Well, both of us and Glenn Beall met all three of them, paid 'em visits. And after meeting and talking to this man Willkie I heard Morgan muttering to Glenn, 'give me one of those Willkie buttons'."

Although the club members were interested in the vivid account of the convention Mr. Gunter furnished, it was quite obvious they were principally interested in hearing about Willkie. And Mr. Gunter somewhat malevolently kept them in suspense right up to the windup of his talk. When he started on Willkie the boys all perked up.

Can Trust Willkie

"When you shake hands with Willkie," Mr. Gunter began trying to put his finger on what it is that makes the G.O.P. candidate electric, "you say to yourself, 'here's a man I can trust in a pinch'."

"He's not much on dress and he doesn't try to put on the dog," the describer continued in his portrait of the uncombed candidate who sprawls in chairs. "But he has color, oomph, sex appeal, personality, no palaver and is quick on the trigger.

"Prior to the convention most people thought the drive for Willkie being waged was a newspaper campaign," Mr. Gunter continued. "They thought he would pick up fifty or sixty votes at the convention and then fold up.

"Well, he didn't. When that gallery of 14,000 people started yelling for Willkie I never heard such a damned racket in my life. And you've got to remember most of the delegates in this convention weren't the dumb driven cattle they usually are. Pennsylvania's delegates, of course, were hogtied right up to the last.

"But all in all, this convention was the most democratic affair of its sort in history. The delegates were a fine-looking bunch of responsible Americans with young men and women taking a very active hand in the affair. The so-called Old Guard wasn't so much in evidence at this convention after the lean years. Bossism had vanished in thin air."

Too Lazy To Vote

Swinging off on a different tangent, Mr. Gunter referred to an address made July 4 by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan. Judge Sloan said the American people were "getting soft."

Picking up Judge Sloan's remark, Mr. Gunter declared many Americans don't want to think for themselves anymore. They even have to be coaxed and begged to go to the polls and vote, he said.

"It's a shame when a country breeds an electorate that is so lazy it won't even go to the polls unless dragged out and escorted there in a Packard," the speaker emphatically stated.

"However, in view of the fact millions of people are content to have their opinions formed by radio commentators and the press, it seems to me the biggest thing in favor of Wendell Willkie is the fact that ninety-five percent of American newspapers are enthusiastically in favor of him.

"Taft is a fine man. I sat beside him and talked to him in Philadelphia's Union League Club. I liked Taft. But he doesn't have the appeal the American public demands of a presidential candidate. And Willkie has it. He makes great newspaper copy. And we can't afford to underestimate the power of the press in swinging this coming election.

Mr. Gunter, an honorary sergeant-at-arms at the convention with a medal, told the members of the audience, "multiply the Fort Hill auditorium by ten and you have a general idea of the size of that convention hall."

Commenting on the carefully planned convention spectacle, Mr. Gunter said it was symbolic of the fact that the "American people are actors, not thinkers. They want entertainment."

The Swing to Willkie

Referring to the swing from Dewey and Taft to Willkie, Gunter mentioned a fact pointed out by the Republican New York Sun, namely, that it had been the smaller states such as Maryland that were responsible for the shift by letting their votes go at strategic moments.

Mr. Gunter said it was necessary to mention Glenn Beall in any commentary on the affair since "Glenn, I think, was responsible for getting more people into that hall than anybody there. How he did it, I don't know but he did. He was besieged day and night by people trying to get in and in most cases he managed it."

President Fred Driscoll presided at last night's meeting of which Mr. Gunter's talk was the main feature. Refreshments were furnished by the Queen City Brewing Company.

Green Death Is Held Unavoidable

Several Witnesses Are Questioned Here by State's Attorney

The death of William Adam Green, 62, single, of Douglas avenue, Lonaconing, who was killed Wednesday night when struck by the under-pinning of a car as he lay in the center of George's Creek Boulevard on the outskirts of Pekin, near Lonaconing, was unavoidable, authorities said yesterday.

Harvey R Diehl, 120 Frost avenue, Frostburg, driver of the car, and several other witnesses were questioned here yesterday morning by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

Green, an unemployed miner, was seen staggering along the highway a few minutes prior to the accident and several cars narrowly missed striking him, authorities said they were told.

Mr. Green was a son of the late William S. and Amanda Green.

Surviving are a brother, Jack Green, of Davis, W. Va., and three sisters, Miss Gertrude Green, with whom he resided; Mrs. Jacob Cutter, of Cumberland, and Mrs. Fred Wrixson, of Martin's Ferry, Ohio.

Gateway Chatter would appreciate receiving information about hobbies of Cumberland residents and invites those who have hobbies to drop a line to the column. Readers who can tip the column off about the hobbies of their friends are invited to do so. Come on, let's find out what Cumberlanders do with their leisure time.

Radio station WCKY in Covington, Ky., is sending out lapel buttons with the American flag colors along with the following message:

SHOW YOUR COLORS: These are times when every American should wear with pride, the emblem of liberty and justice. WCKY, the L. B. Wilson station, is presenting 100,000 of these buttons to 100,000 loyal Americans. WCKY pledges that its programs and its power will always be dedicated to the service of our flag, our country and our people.

When it comes to a showdown, Americans are never short on their patriotism, and that goes for Cumberland. In fact, Gateway Chatter wagers that local folk can just about outdo any place on that score.

A Cumberland minister yesterday asked Gateway Chatter to write a piece about petty thievery in the city. It seems the minister parked his car on Mechanic street yesterday and when he returned a few minutes later he discovered someone had taken two mirrors off his automobile.

Residents of South Harting, England, who attend church regularly received their free beer as usual this year. They marched to church carrying peeled hazel sticks and wearing large rosettes in their hats, the sticks connecting them with the pilgrims who passed through South Harting on their way to Canterbury carrying staves. After the services an old English meal was served during which the "regulars" consumed seventy gallons of free beer.

This might be a way to increase church attendance in Cumberland but Gateway Chatter would not recommend that it be tried — there probably wouldn't be enough room to accommodate everyone.

Hizzoner, Mayor Harry Irvine galloped into city hall yesterday afternoon chuckling heartily over a story he had just heard about "Red" Davis and Bob Long.

"Red", it appears was left high but not dry on a rock in the South Branch not so long ago in the course of a far from successful boat trip.

"Red", who can't swim anyway, took off his shoes and socks just as a precaution, depositing same under the seat.

"Things were going fine until they hit a ripple or something, maybe it was a rock," the mayor trumpeted," and over they went."

Davis seized the rear end of the overturned scow, forlornly watched his shoes and socks bobble on the water and then sink. Long made for shore, shouted directions as "Red" finally bumped into a rock protruding out of the water and clambered up.

"Stay there until I get help," Long yelled. Davis sadly nodded. There

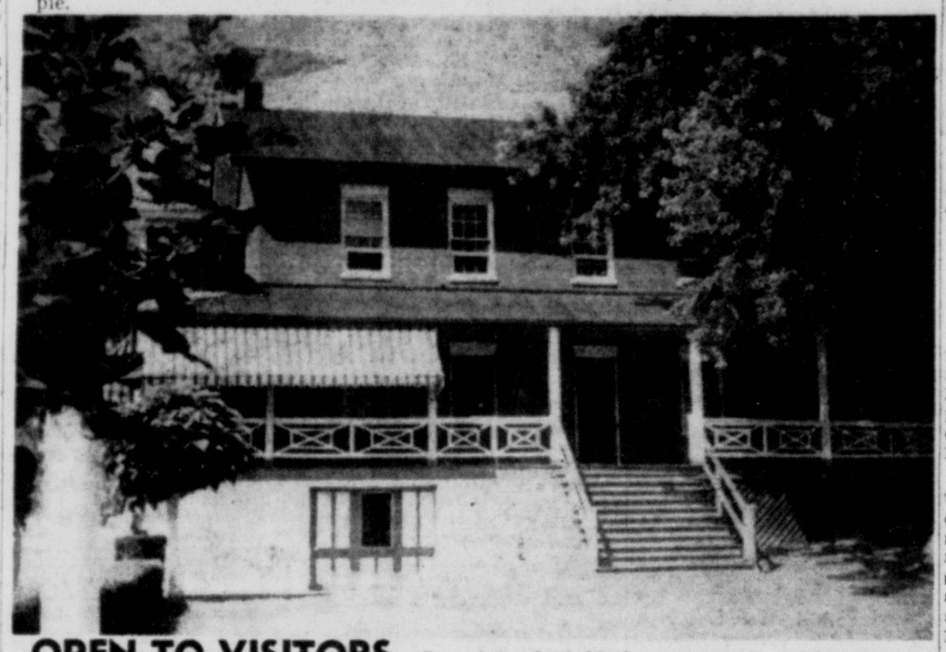
OLD FOLKS AT HOME—Superintendent William M. Matheney, of the Allegany County Home, is perturbed over Gov. O'Conor's inference that his home is in a "deplorable" condition. He is inviting the governor to come and pay him a visit . . . meet people like Mrs. Mary Pryor, above, who lives at the home. Mrs. Pryor is 72 and right now is busy making a patchwork quilt. She has a pleasant, silvery voice, enjoys her own jokes. She posed yesterday just as she was found, industriously sewing with thimble on her finger. Her room, typical of the home, is light, airy, neat and homey. Mrs. Pryor is pleasant, probably makes swell apple pie.



OPEN TO VISITORS—Superintendent Matheney says he wishes more people would visit the country home, will leave it to any tidy housewife regarding that "deplorable" condition matter. Residents have a big front porch to snooze on. Comfortable chairs are placed conveniently under shady maple trees on the home's spacious grounds.

Governor Is Challenged To Inspect Conditions at Allegany County Home

Superintendent Matheney Declares Local Institution Is an Exception

A challenge to Governor O'Conor to inspect the Allegany county home from top to bottom and see for himself if conditions found are "deplorable" or not was issued yesterday by Superintendent William M. Matheney.

Serious, accomodating Mr. Matheney, who watches over his brood of forty-two nice old ladies and gentlemen like a mother hen, admitted he was perturbed over the governor's announced plan to bring about the abandonment of so-called almshouses throughout the state. But he was even more perturbed over the governor's inference in his blanket statement that conditions in the Allegany home, like other similar homes throughout the state, are in a "deplorable" condition.

Objects to Almhouse

To begin with, the superintendent considers the word "almshouse" an odious term. His county home is no almshouse, he stoutly contended referring a reporter to the charter in his office. The charter issued by the county commissioners in 1911 was to the "Allegany County Home" and nothing is included therein about any almshouse.

"I'm inclined to think the governor overstepped his bounds in issuing his recent statement," Mr. Matheney said quietly. "I'm issuing an invitation to the governor asking him to come and pay us a visit. And I wish all neat, orderly housewives in the county would do the same. I'll let them be the judge."

Despite the cloud cast by what was considered the governor's objectionable statement, Superintendent Matheney was found yesterday in an enthusiastic mood.

Bids are now coming in on the new six room home to be built soon back of the county home proper for the superintendent and his family. And while Mr. Matheney is pleased over the prospects of a new home, he is fairly bubbling with enthusiasm over a more important goal he and his associates are about to achieve.

Once the new home is built and the superintendent "moves out and in", the quarters vacated by himself and his family plus several other rooms will be made into an up-to-date infirmary and hospital.

People Need Care

Producing the plans drawn up by Holt Hitchins, Mr. Matheney showed that fifteen rooms in all will be utilized for the hospital which will include the most modern equipment.

"Our old people need considerable care," Mr. Matheney said. "We pay out an average of $75 a month for drugs. And for ten years now, Dr. Fred Williams has been working for this hospital, long before Governor O'Conor was ever heard of."

According to the plans, the new hospital will accomodate between thirty-five and forty patients and the front porch will be inclosed with glass for a sun porch. The improvements will include new floors in all rooms except four and it will be necessary to make all doorways four feet wide.

A silvery, pleasant voice answered the knock at one room in the womens' section. The voice belonged to Mrs. Mary Pryor, 72. She was found sitting in a comfortable rocker sorting out gay-colored pieces of colored cloth. The cloth was piled high on her bed which was covered with a white, unrumpled spread. A pretty red work basket was nearby.

Asked what she was up to anyway, Mrs. Pryor said she was starting work on a patchwork quilt. She seemed quite enthusiastic about it, talked happily, laughed at little jokes she made herself. Pictures of a religious and decorative nature adorned the walls. An old-fashioned pin cushion and a black-covered Bible which had a well-used appearance was noted on her table. It wasn't necessary to ask Mrs. Pryor if she was happy.

Mr. and Mrs. Lacey Ross, ages 83 and 86, were found resting underneath a shade tree on the front lawn. Mr. and Mrs. Ross, retired farm people, haven't been at the

Tells Kiwanians "Something Is Going To Be Done" at Tin Mill

Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday hinted that there is still hope for renewed activity at the Taylor tinplate mill and took a back-handed slap at the city manager plan.

In an informal talk at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Fort Cumberland hotel, Mayor Irvine state flatly, in referring to the tin mill, that "something is going to be done down there."

The mayor, although speaking with confidence, did not elaborate on this statement.

Turning to Cumberland's form of government, the speaker praised the present commission set-up as the "best system of government that can be inaugurated if men in it act honest one to the other."

Praises Present Plan

Under the commission form, he said, it is possible to "accomplish and get more per tax dollar and yet not wipe out the fundamentals of self-government."

(One member of his audience, to whom he made numerous laudatory references, was Isaac Hirsch, who was largely instrumental in instituting the commission form of government here, but who is now in favor of setting up the city manager plan.)

Mayor Irvine also hit at the merit system, or civil service, as tending to build up political machines and contrary to the intentions of the framers of the Constitution.

"I firmly believe," he told the Kiwanians, "that the founders of the Constitution never intended this country to have the merit system or so-called civil service.

"It has taken away the real fundamentals and the real rights as laid down by the founders of the Constitution."

The mayor referred particularly to Washington and its thousands of officer-holders and said he was "fearful that the present government can't be overthrown at the November election."

If such a condition exists in the national government, he went on, it also exists in other forms of government—state, county and city.

Discusses Annexes

Another present-day problem discussed by the speaker was that of Cumberland's annexes.

The city's area was more than doubled in 1930, he stated, when certain outlying areas were annexed in order to keep Cumberland's position as Maryland's second-largest city. Cumberland's area before this action was taken was three and one-half square miles, he said, while today, it is seven and one-half square miles.

Despite this increase in area, there are still the same number of fire departments, the same number of police and the same tax assesment to carry on the city's business, he pointed out.

Two-thirds of the acquired territory is undeveloped land, some of it laid out by real estate companies in sub-divisions as a money-making proposition, Irvine continued, but its residents expect all city conveniences.

Until recently, he went on, only money that could be spent in any annex was the tax money collected there. Money was not supposed to be taken from the general fund for annex services. Now, taxes from the annexes are placed in the general fund, and expenditures made accordingly.

To illustrate the city's dilemma formerly, he noted that the Dingle was the richest section, while Mapleside, Lintnerville and the Bedford road section developed the fastest. But no taxes collected in

Red Cross War Relief Fund Is Nearing $9,000

Fraternal, Civic Organizations and Business Men Contribute

Nearing $9,000 in the campaign to raise $14,000 for war relief, the Allegany County chapter of the American Red Cross yesterday reported a check for $100 received from the Woodmen of the World, Mountain City Camp, No. 5. This is the second contribution of $100 received from a fraternal organization since the drive began more than a month ago.

Other contributions received in the last few days include the Cresaptown branch of the county Red Cross chapter, $35; Pythian Sisters, Manhattan Temple, No. 8, $6; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, $5 as the first of the monthly payments pledged for the duration of the emergency; Pride of Allegany Council, No. 110, Daughters of America, $5, and the Personal Finance Company, $10.

Also included were donations from Schwarzenbach and Son, and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, making the total received to date from members of the Mercantile Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, $804.50.

According to reports from national headquarters in Washington, the American Red Cross has been called upon to aid American citizens fleeing from danger points in Europe and Asia. Funds have been cabled to Bilbao, Lisbon, Nice and Marseilles to assist Americans in these districts and Red Cross representatives are aiding in feeding, housing and registering these persons.

Since the threat of war in British possessions in China, thousands of British and American citizens have fled to the Philippines making it necessary to provide mass shelter and feeding facilities for several thousands. The Red Cross is being assisted in this work by the United States Army and Navy.

Hospital Stands Expense Of All County Cases, Superintendent Explains

In order to avoid any possible misunderstanding on the part of the general public, public officials yesterday called attention to the fact that county cases are not treated at the county's expense at Memorial hospital.

Chronic cases brought to the hospital are cared for at the expense of the hospital, Superintendent Harvey Weiss said last night when q[illegible]ied on the subject.

Due to the fact that the county home does not have an infirmary at the present time, cases are frequently taken to Memorial hospital. Plans are now underway to equip the county home with a modern, up-to-date infirmary-hospital.

Tax Case Taken To Court of Appeals

Two of three petitioners for taxation relief on Washington street properties took their case one step farther yesterday.

Following Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan's opinion that the Circuit Court is powerless to act in the matter, Joseph B. Finan, and the McMullen brothers yesterday appealed their case to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Former Judge Albert A. Doub, the third petitioner in the case, has not as yet filed notice of an appeal, it was announced yesterday in the office of the Clerk of Court.

The petitioners first took their case for relief to the county commissioners and were turned down. An appeal to the State Tax Commissioner upheld the county commissioners in the matter.

The case was then appealed to the Circuit Court and was dismissed on the grounds that the court had no jurisdiction to act.

Attorney Fred A. Puderbaugh filed yesterday's appeals.
